D.C. Votes 7-1 For Self-Rule, 13-1 for Seats In Congress

Weary Volunteer Staff Ends Tabulation of 94,728 Ballots.

Hundreds Answer Only One Question

House Judiciary Group Meets Soon to Study Franchise Pleas.

Results of Balloting.

Overwhelming sentiment for both national representation and local self-government was expressed by voters in Washington's first balloting in 64 years.

Members of Senate and House Judiciary Committees varied in reactions to the referendum. Their committees may be first to study the problem.—Page 6.

Suffrage Wins.

Final tabulation last night of 93,924 votes cast in the District's unique suffrage referendum disclosed a smashing 13 to 1 triumph for national representation, while local suffrage won by a margin of 7 to 1.

Clustered around adding machines, weary volunteer election clerks cheered appearance of the final figures:

|---|---|
| For national representation | 87,092 |
| Against | 6,832 |
| Total | 93,924 |
| For local suffrage | 82,977 |
| Against | 10,937 |
| Total | 93,914 |

Several hundred voters indicated their position on only one question, the spread in the two totals narrowing down to ten votes in the final results.

Early estimates of the total vote slightly exceeded the closing figures, partly as a result of the invalidation of 804 ballots. These were added to the vote on national suffrage, however, to produce a figure of 94,728, representing total participation in the plebiscite.

George H. Baldwin, of Silver Spring, Md., assistant manager of the firm which supplied the calculating machines, explained that all ballots bearing any marks other than one cross or check in answer to each of the two questions were discarded immediately.

Several hundred ballots were rejected because of erasures, although the intent of the voters was obvious.

Campaign officials attributed the high proportion of spoiled ballots to the novelty of voting procedure in a city which last marched to the polls in 1874.

Hailing the referendum results as an unmistakable demand from Washington for the right to vote for local officials, congressmen and President, suffrage leaders said American history revealed no unofficial demonstration of civic opinion to compare with Saturday's verdict.

With approximately 16 per cent of the city's population joining the procession to the polls, it was pointed out that the total vote approached the normal figure for participation in a regular city primary. The result was achieved after a whirlwind four-week campaign without candidates or regular electoral machinery.

Taking all possible precautions to safeguard accuracy of the results, election clerks today will check a sample of several thousand referendum registrations against names and

Yanks Beaten, 4-3, as Hogsett Yields Only 5 Hits in His First Victory; Thousands Wait for Standing Room in the Field.

By Shirley Povich.

To the unbridled glee of 31,000 customers who filled Griffith Stadium to the ridges, crammed the aisles and spilled into roped-off sectors of the field, ancient Elon Hogsett throttled the might of the Yankees yesterday and the Nats won a 4-to-3 ball game.

Outside the gates, but well able to judge the trend of proceedings from the joyous shouts inside, stood a mob of disappointed ticket seekers estimated at 8,000, money in hand and dolefully regarding the "sold out" sign.

Fifteen minutes before game time, the greatest Griffith Stadium crush since last summer's All-Star game had exhausted the 29,000 seats. To the milling thousands still frantically seeking tickets, ball park officials started to portion out standing room. Police and fire officials called a halt after standees were admitted.

Centerfield Roped Off.

As if on the chance that by some miracle Griffith Stadium would suddenly expand to meet their needs, the throngs outside lingered hopefully for an hour after the start of the game before finally accepting their plight.

Labor Board Faces Test in Court Today

Supreme Bench to Decide Whether Strikers Lose Wagner Act Rights.

The National Labor Relations Board yesterday prepared to reopen several cases in which its decisions are under court attack, and at the same time members looked to the Supreme Court in expectation of a possible decision today on another phase of its activities and powers.

It was made clear that in light of the Supreme Court's decision against Secretary of Agriculture Wallace last week in the Kansas City stockyards rate case, the board will reopen the Republic Steel, Ford Motor and several other cases to follow procedure in harmony with that ruling.

The case in which a Supreme Court ruling may be handed down today is that of the MacKay Radio & Telegraph Co., which has contended that employes who go on strike voluntarily sever their employment and thereby remove themselves from the protection of the Wagner labor relations act.

Lundeen Asks A Labor Party To Rescue U.S.

Old Political Groups Have Failed, Senator Tells 300 Socialists.

A single national labor party is the "answer to our problems," Senator Ernest Lundeen (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota, last night told a May Day rally of more than 300 members of the Socialist Party at 1012 Ninth street northwest.

Lundeen declared that the "old political parties haven't solved a problem that has dragged the country down into the depths of one of the worst depressions in history."

Waving his arms vigorously to quiet his audience, the speaker predicted a day "when labor's united front will control the country and provide the decent homes and family privileges that a democracy is supposed to provide."

Norman Thomas May Charge Kidnaping in Jersey Ouster

By the Associated Press.

Cold Spring Harbor, N. Y., May 1. Norman Thomas, veteran Socialist candidate for the Presidency, said today he was studying the question of criminal action in retaliation for his "deportation" from Jersey City, N. J., last night.

He and Mrs. Thomas were at home in their rambling Long Island farmhouse, recuperating from last night's experiences. Thomas said he had not been injured by the policemen who prevented him from speaking in a May Day rally.

Mrs. Thomas said, "I was only pushed; a policeman was pushing back the crowd and I don't believe he intended to hit me."

Thomas said that as the result of his being taken by police in a car from the center of Jersey City to a Manhattan-bound ferryboat he had written a letter to J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, asking whether the Jersey City police were not guilty of kidnaping.

He asserted he did not hold the police entirely responsible, saying they had received their orders from Frank Hague, Mayor of Jersey City and a national vice chairman of the Democratic Party. Hague has banned Communist and Socialist rallies in his city.

Thomas said he also had written a letter to President Roosevelt as head of the Democratic Party and to all members of the Democratic National Committee.

Zog's Guests Die as Plane Falls With 19

Diplomats From King's Bridal, N. Y. Woman Killed in Italy.

By the United Press.

Gaeta, Italy, May 1.—Nineteen persons, including a New York woman and the Albanian Minister to Rome, were burned to death when a big Italian passenger seaplane crashed from 2,500 feet into the side of Mount Maromola and burst into flames, an official communique said tonight.

The New York woman was identified as Miss Helen Lindheim and another victim as a British subject, Samuel Bretstaff, of London.

Many of the victims, including Albanian Minister Xhafer Aby Villa, were Albanian diplomatic officials returning to their posts from last Wednesday's wedding in Tirana of King Achmed Zog and Queen Geraldine of Albania.

The crash occurred about 10 a. m. Saturday near Formia in heavy fog hanging over the Adriatic Coast.

The plane was on the last leg of the journey from Tirana, a 300-mile hop from Brindisi on the Adriatic Sea. Formia is about 70 miles southeast of Rome, near the Tyrrhenian coast. Brindisi is about 110 miles southwest of Tirana, across the Adriatic.

The dead included 14 passengers and the crew of five.

Jewels valued at 20,000,000 lire ($1,052,000) were destroyed in the burning of the plane.

The gems, belonging to Paris and Vienna jewelry houses, had been sent to Tirana for Zog to select wedding gifts from for his bride. The flames of the burning wreckage melted away the gold and platinum settings.

The official version of the crash said:

"Owing to sudden poor atmospheric conditions making navigation most difficult, at around 10 a. m. Saturday near Formia a plane crashed against the mountains of the Cupa Valley near Maramola and burst into flames. The dead included the Albanian minister, Xhafer Aby Villa, also Ermeeggildo Pogni, honorary Albanian consul in Rome. Everyone, as well as documents and jewels, was burned beyond recognition."

Villa, who began his diplomatic career in the Albanian ministry of foreign affairs, held diplomatic posts in Paris, Belgrade and Athens, and was Albanian foreign minister from October, 1932, until late in 1935, when he was sent to Rome.

N. Y. Man Fears Wife Lost.

New York, May 1 (AP).—Norvin Rudolph Lindheim, architect for the Palestine exhibit at the 1939 world's fair here, expressed fear today that Helen Lindheim, American woman killed in the crash of an Italian airliner yesterday, was his wife.

Lindheim said she had intended to leave Palestine three or four days ago to take passage on the liner Queen Mary this week at Cherbourg for New York.

Mystery Shrouds Handy-Man Death At Lawyer's Home

Charles County, Md., authorities today are attempting to penetrate the mystery attached to the death of Charles Adams, of Fenwick, Md., found Friday slumped over a bench in the back yard of his friend, T. Morris Wampler, former Washington attorney.

Adams' death was "not from natural causes," a coroner's inquest found Saturday, after hearing testimony from Dr. George Bicknell, of Indian Head, Md., coroner, who described examination of bruises on Adams' head and testified the man had died from concussion.

Wampler said he had found Adams, who was employed on the place as a handy man, when he and his wife returned from Marshall Hall Friday afternoon. Attempting to talk to his friend, he shook his shoulder when he failed to answer. Adams then fell over, apparently dead, Wampler testified.

No arrests were made.

Let Reforms Wait, Advice To Roosevelt

Gen. Wood Joins Ford Aide in Appeal at New Deal.

President Away, Plans Face Critical Week of Attack.

By William V. Nessly.

President Roosevelt "should be still and let the country recover, and then inaugurate the reforms he has in mind," Gen. Robert E. Wood, president of Sears Roebuck & Co., was quoted as having declared at Seattle, Wash., yesterday.

Gen. Wood was mentioned last week as being under consideration for membership on a proposed "inner council" to advise the President on economic problems. While he praised yesterday the President's recent "fireside chat" as a "sane, temperate message," the Associated Press said the Seattle Post-Intelligencer quoted him as disagreeing with the antimonopoly message sent to Congress on Friday.

"If there is no recovery, there will be no reform," Gen. Wood was quoted. "Our business is down 7 to 8 per cent under last year, and that is a lot when you figure our volume of business is $40,000,000 a month . . . And if the Government isn't wise economically, we won't get back the business we have lost."

Ford Aide Joins Attack.

At the same time, William J. Cameron, of the Ford Motor Co., who participated in the White House conference between Henry Ford and President Roosevelt lats week, declared that "government's best service to economic life is to preserve a state of national tranquility in which public confidence flourishes." He declared that what begins as a business depression ends as a political depression, and the cure is "withdrawal of the cause by the return of political authority to its natural and proper sphere."

There were other attacks on the Administration's business and recovery policies, while the President cruised south toward Puerto Rico on a vacation trip at the start of a week apparently destined to be critical in the records of this Congressional session.

U. S. Chamber Meets.

Representatives of nearly 1,000,000 businessmen were gathering in the Capital to open today the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. Chief among their topics, the chamber said, will be "effects of the crushing burden of taxation on business and employment; public spending and the new 'pump-priming' program, vs. private spending in job-making enterprises; unemployment and labor relations."

The National Association of Manufacturers called for "avoidance of new Federal reform legislation that will result in a fresh period of uncertainty," a declaration that the Government "will not proceed in competition with private utilities," and revision of the Wagner labor relations act to correct its "one-sided character."

Another development in the recovery drive was a joint radio ap-

A double-barreled .41 caliber pistol was found on the seat of the automobile. Dr. Llewellyn Powell, Alexandria city coroner, returned a verdict of suicide.

Munford lived at 2207 North Rolfe street, Arlington, Va. Relatives said he had suffered a nervous breakdown.

He Departs Today For Visit to Rome

Conflicting Reports of Journey's Portent Fill Germany.

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, May 1.—A May Day celebration of achievements under Adolf Hitler provided a demonstrative prelude today to the Fuehrer's momentous week in Italy as the guest of Premier Mussolini.

Standing in the Lustgarten near a towering maypole cut from an Austrian forest, the dictator told his 75,000,000 countrymen that nations which had scoffed at Naziism were coming around to the Nazi point of view in the field of relations between capital and labor.

"Struggle Difficult."

"No people were treated more stepmotherly by Nature than ours," he said. "Limited in area, numerous in population and surrounded by many enemies, our struggle for existence is much more difficult than that of other peoples. * * * Yet we can confidently match our achievements with those of the nations about us."

Hitler's 33-minute address, the longer of two May Day speeches, was a "sermon" on national unity.

He referred to the visit to Italy, on which he will start tomorrow and to which Europe and the rest of the world look for some new manifestation of the accord between Berlin and Rome.

"With the exception of one state which I shall have the honor of visiting shortly," Hitler said, "all the others are wrestling with problems which rested heavily upon us in 1932 and 1923."

Reports Conflicting.

There were conflicting indications as to the portent of Hitler's Italian journey.

Officially inspired comment pointed out the size and composition of the delegation indicated the visit would be more than purely "representative." At the same time the public was cautioned not to expect any sensational results.

Official commentators said new treaties or agreements were not to be expected.

In contrast with these views, however, was the fact that Dr. Friedrich Wilhelm Gaus, legal expert of the foreign office, would be a member of the delegation. Gaus, a retiring person without social ambitions, would not go to Rome if the possibility of drafting legal agreements were not envisaged, it was held.

Topics to Be Discussed.

Topics which, according to inspired information, are to be discussed in Rome include the Spanish problem, the Mediterranean situation following the recent British-Italian accord and the British-French conversations in London last week.

It was definitely stated that no meeting between Hitler and Pope Pius was contemplated.

Propaganda Minister Goebbels presided today over a festival session of the Reich culture chamber with Hitler present.

Goebbels awarded the year's film prize of about $5,000 to Leni Riefenstahl, "Czarina" of the German film

Labor's Hosts Mark May Day

Violence Flares Only in Czechoslovakia and in Poland.

By the Associated Press.

Labor's traditional holiday passed yesterday in a torrent of oratory and scarlet-bannered parades, but with a minimum of May Day violence.

From Berlin to Moscow—the opposite poles of political thought—workers and their leaders celebrated.

Only casualties were in Poland and Czechoslovakia. Elsewhere the day could be summarized as follows:

MOSCOW—Russia paraded her military might before Josef Stalin and other Soviet chieftains.

STALIN.

PRAGUE—Czechoslovakia resounded to renewed clamoring of her German citizens for autonomy and the pledge of Czechoslovaks to "fight to the last drop of blood," to retain liberty.

WARSAW—Poland reported the first fatality of the day in street fighting at Kielce; 59 were injured, more than 100 arrested.

HENDAYE.—Both Spanish insurgent and government fighters, for the most part, quit hostilities for parades and celebrations.

LONDON.—Bobbies kept down the combative urge of Fascists and Laborites in the biggest May day celebrations of London's history. Two hundred thousand cheered speakers at a Hyde Park labor rally; thousands of Fascist British union members marched past Sir Oswald Mosley, their leader, on the other side of the city. Anti-Fascists stoned him.

PARIS.—Labor masses marched solemnly in the rain in Paris; in the snow in some sections of the nation.

RIO DE JANEIRO.—President Vargas brightened the celebration with a decree setting in motion machinery for establishing minimum wages.

BRUSSELS.—Twenty thousand marchers held aloft clenched fists and hugely lettered posters denouncing war, Fascism and anti-Semitism, and demanding armaments for government Spain.

STOCKHOLM.—Foreign Minister Richard Sandler pointed to the new Anglo-Irish agreement as an example of the superiority of negotiation over force.

VIENNA.—Nazi organizations celebrated their first Hitler May day.

Hunns, who had been stunting for 15 minutes, apparently lost control while doing a corkscrew spin.

Mediation Studied.

By the United Press.

London, May 1.—Great Britain probably will offer to act as mediator in the undeclared war between Japan and China within the next few months, persons close to the foreign office revealed tonight.

According to these sources, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and his associates will be ready to act in the Far East as soon as the machinery for pacification of Europe, which has been set in motion by the Anglo-Italian and Anglo-French agreements, "begins to show results."

The government was represented to be extremely anxious to "smooth out tension in the Far East" and to feel that British mediation is the logical procedure. Mediation would be attempted on a basis preserving both Chinese and Japanese prestige, since Britain does not desire to see either China or Japan defeated decisively.

Fears for Investments.

One of the informants, a veteran diplomatic observer, said the government wanted to see China emerge from the war in a position to assure a minimum of damage to Britain's huge investments in that country and was equally anxious that Japan not be humiliated.

"A proud nation like Japan, if faced with the terrible prospect of failure in China, might suddenly decide it would be better to suffer defeat at the hands of a great power like Britain," this informant said, explaining that the Japanese public had been educated to believe that Britain was their principal enemy.

If the Japanese military leaders sought an excuse for losing the war by engaging a third power, this informant was certain that Britain and not Russia would be the power selected.

Arms Sale Encouraged.

He understood, however, the British government recently had encouraged Russia to sell munitions to China, particularly airplanes, and had urged the Chinese to employ as many Russian fliers as possible. This move is in line with Britain's desire to see China hold out until Japan is so weakened she will welcome British mediation.

Another informant said he was certain Britain was ready to mediate as soon as she could get an indication Japan would accept.

To this end, he said, the foreign office was continuing to bring pressure on Tokyo in every way possible and hence welcomed the recent denunciation of Japan by the United States State Department, which branded Japan a treaty breaker, and the parallel action of Washington with London in demanding Japan abandon her policy of secrecy regarding her naval construction.

'Empress' Dead, Says Skipper Who Searched South Sea Eden

By the Associated Press.

Gloucester, Mass., May 1.—Baroness Eloise Bonsquet de Wagner, "Empress of Charles Island," in the Galapagos archipelago, who disappeared with her mate, Robert Phillipson, in July, 1934, is probably dead, Capt. Johnson, who anchored his schooner, Yankee, here today after a 35,000-mile cruise around the world, said today.

Johnson, who, on a previous cruise, had spent a New Year's holiday as the guest of the Baroness, said he had stopped at Charles Island and searched diligently for traces of the "empress" and her followers. He failed to find them, as other searchers before him had failed.

The baroness was the central figure in one of the most stirring mysteries ever spun from the barren crags of the Galapagos Islands.

Several months before her disappearance the dark-haired beauty—who wore only a pair of silken panties—established herself on the island and proclaimed herself the rightful possesor of the "nudist Eden."

With her were two men, Robert Phillipson and Alfred Rudolph Lorenz, said to be Germans. The baroness said she was from Vienna.

Rush to Recess Fought to Pass Wage-Hour Bill

22 Pennsylvanians Join Move to Force Plan Out of Committee.

A strong adjournment urge in Congress last night was being combated in an effort to get through both houses the explosive wage-hour bill before members rush home to begin in earnest the 1938 election campaigns.

Twenty-two of the 25 members of the Pennsylvania House delegation yesterday gave impetus to the movement to force the bill out of the Rules Committee by means of petition, when they signed a statement declaring the legislation "necessary for the economic well-being of our country."

The statement, released by Labor's Nonpartisan League, was received among leaders as apparently a hopeless move, since the Rules Committee last week refused to give the bill right-of-way to the House floor.

Mrs. Norton Backs Plea.

However, Representative Mary Norton (Democrat), of New Jersey, and chairman of the Labor Committee, backed the Pennsylvanians' plea by writing in the Democratic Digest that the legislation was essential to halt the depression.

"If the bill is passed," she wrote, "we will have at least succeeded in removing a blot from the name of this great Nation—we will surely have gone a long way toward removing sweat-shops from the United States. The bill should receive the support of both great parties."

It was pointed out, however, that the petition could not be filed formally until next Thursday, under parliamentary rules. Then 218 signatures must be obtained to make it effective. Should all the signatures be obtained this week, however, floor consideration would not be possible before May 23, and at that time the adjournment pressure is expected to be greatly intensified.

Early this week, the Senate is expected, by limitation of debate, to bring final passage of the President's naval expansion bill, under fire by a minority for the past two weeks.

Just how much of the legislation recently suggested by President Roosevelt can be squeezed through the legislative mill before sine die adjournment is a matter of conjecture.

Recovery Bill Next Week.

The bill or bills for the $4,500,000,000 recovery program probably will not reach the House floor until the first of next week. There a fight for earmarking of the funds appears certain, with the date of final passage indefinite.

The President also has requested action to remove tax exemptions from public salaries and securities, but little has been done to carry out the recommendations.

His Friday message monopolies, while asking quick action on some proposals, dealt largely with investigations and preparations for action at the next session. Some circles believed all the suggestions in the messages might be permitted to go over.

Wage-Hour Statement.

The Pennsylvanians' statement on wage-hour legislation warned that the bill was necessary to restore prosperity by increasing purchasing power and was essential to curb "sweat shop" conditions, end child labor and prevent wage cuts. It added that thousands of wage-earners in Pennsylvania had been placed on relief while others were facing pay cuts.

"High wages and a shorter work-week are, in our opinion, absolutely necessary at this time if a major economic catastrophe is to be averted," the statement said. "Mindful of the pledge in the Democratic Party of 1936, we demand that wage and hour legislation be given immediate attention of this Congress."

Road Program Expected.

Meanwhile, House leaders told the Associated Press privately they would be unable to prevent a $476,000,000 program of Federal highway aid for 1940 and 1941 from reaching the House floor at this session.

They added, however, they still were debating the advisability of attempting to reduce the amount involved.

President Roosevelt asked Congress last December to help balance the budget by slashing road appropriations. Recently, however, the President modified his position on the grounds of increasing unemployment and recommended that Congress double the $100,000,000 road appropriation for 1939.

The statement of House leaders came after Chairman Cartwright (Democrat), of Oklahoma, of the Roads Committee, had threatened to use the petition method of bringing the issue before the House if the Rules Committee refused it right-of-way.

"This is an election year," Cartwright said, "and if this petition is filed the members of this House will swarm to the Speaker's desk to sign it."

Dining Car Union To Fight Pay Cut

Chicago, May 1 (AP).—The joint council of Dining Car Employes' Union issued a statement today saying it not only would resist any attempt of the railroads to reduce wages, but was considering an effort to win pay increases.

Describing dining car employes as "one of the most exploited groups," the statement, issued under the name of the joint council's secretary-treasurer, I. P. Flory, said that their wages were as low as $40 a month and charges the railroads were "far overcapitalized."

The Association of American Railroads voted last Friday to put a 15 per cent wage reduction for about 1,000,000 employes into effect on July 1.

Individual Attention Program Of Mrs. Doyle as Schools Head

Bachrach Photo.

MRS. HENRY GRATTAN DOYLE.

First Woman President of D. C. Board of Education Also Wants to Replace All Outmoded Buildings.

By Christine Sadler.

Enough teachers to insure some individual attention for each child attending the District schools, and modern school buildings to replace all the outmoded ones are the two most important "musts" Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle would like to have written down for the City of Washington.

A tiny and attractive person with a lilting voice, Mrs. Doyle is serving her third year as the first woman president of the District of Columbia Board of Education. She has been intimately connected with schools all her life. Before her marriage in 1916 to Dr. Doyle, now a dean at George Washington University, she taught high school classes in Cambridge, Mass. Since that time she has mothered three school-going children. She has a son in Harvard, a daughter in Radcliffe, and a son in George Washington.

"The number of teachers in our schools has not been increased enough to bring a decrease in the number of students in individual classes. In the junior and senior high schools, especially, we need smaller class groups," she says.

Periodic medical examinations for school children and visiting teachers to go into the homes of sick pupils during their convalescence also have been advocated by Mrs. Doyle. The bedside teachers have been asked in three different budgets, but cut out each time because of lack of funds.

The bright and above-average child, Mrs. Doyle often thinks, gets much less attention in school than he deserves.

"Several years ago we became interested in the handicapped and the slow child because he did not have a fair chance in the classroom. Now, I believe, the pendulum has swung in the other direction and it is the child of unusual capabilities who is most often neglected," she says. "He will get along anyway, but I think we are missing a great opportunity in not giving him the superior training to which he is entitled."

Although Mrs. Doyle took an active part in getting the vote for women and served two years as executive vice president of the National League of Women Voters, she has never voted for President—because she has been living in the District. The year she was 21, she was permitted to vote along with other women of her New England home town for members of the board of education. That's the only vote she ever cast; but she hopes it will not be the last. She has worked consistenly for District suffrage.

Mrs. Doyle does not like to be looked upon as a "woman president" of the Board of Education, but just as the president. "I don't believe in speaking of women as if they were different from other people," she explains. She became a member of the board in 1926 and is proud of the fact that her present job is a successor to the one held by Thomas Jefferson, who was the first president of the board of trustees for schools of Washington.

Mrs. Doyle's living room at 5500 Thirty-third street northwest is filled with pictures of her children from the time they were babies. Usually a sewing basket is nearby, for Mrs. Doyle cannot resist bright remnants. She buys them and sews them into smocks and dirndls.

She is on the boards of various organizations, among them the Washington Hygiene Society, the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society and the Washington Self-Help Exchange.

St. Joseph, La., May 1.—More than 2,000 plantation colored persons of Tensas Parish tonight shuffled happily back to their lowland cabins from perhaps the largest graduating class in history.

They proudly carried certificates signed by ten Federal, State and local officials, signifying completion of a three-month "star-light and moonlight" Works Progress Administration school. They could read, white and "cipher" their cotton picking earnings, and 2,497 received equivalent of a third grade education in Louisiana's fight on adult illiteracy.

Young bucks with flashing teeth, woolly-headed former slaves, men and women grinned the equivalent of "I'se educated now."

Plantation owners, overseers and "de big men" from Baton Rouge and even as far off as New Orleans came to the commencement to watch the chuckling colored students "say a piece," sing and orate. Dressed in their Sunday best, the graduates filled a wooden school building and two nearby structures.

State Superintendent of Education T. H. Harris, of Baton Rouge, had a certificate for a 99-year-old man, but the oldest graduate present was Robert Johnson, 72, who was born in Maryland. Johnson had "picked up" a little reading, but today proudly said he could now read and write my name anywhere." Harris gave one-legged John Lee, 66, an artificial leg with the certificate.

The superintendent said 70 per cent of Tensas' population was colored and 95 per cent of them were illiterate before the WPA-State adult classes began.

Harris said Louisiana was listed next to last in literacy in the 1930 census. He planned to remove illiteracy in Louisiana by 1940.

Cost of Year's Arms Plans Put At 2¼ Billions

Unprecedented Program Is Pressed Apart From Fleet Bill.

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt is quietly pressing Congress to speed action on military and naval measures of unprecedented peace-time scope, entirely apart from the pending $1,156,000,000 fleet expansion program.

Little noticee in the midst of Senate debate on the bigger Navy bill, Congress has received from the White House, Navy or Army in the last few days proposals for additional outlays totaling more than $185,000,000 to:

1. Start work without delay on two more 35,000-ton, $70,000,000 battleships to replace obsolescent vessels. These dreadnaughts would be the fifth and sixth to be started within the next few months. They would put the United States in the van of the world naval race, at least temporarily. Great Britain and Germany each have five building or provided for by appropriations.

New Bases in Alaska.

2. Build a $5,000,000 naval air base at Kodiak Island, and a $1,450,000 Army air field, both in hitherto unfortified Alaska.

3. Build a seaplane base on Midway Island, extending the Navy's Pacific defense line more than 1,000 miles west of Hawaii. Army engineers already have started preliminary work on harbor improvements there.

4. Provide in Hawaii a new seaplane base, additional ammunition storage facilities and a drydock capable of servicing the largest battleship afloat.

5. Strengthen the aerial defenses of the Panama Canal.

New Building Facilities.

6. Increase Navy Yard facilities at a cost of $13,752,000 in preparation for warship building on the greatest scale since the 1922 Washington treaties brought a temporary holiday in naval construction.

Altogether, the Administration has proposed or given support this year to a preparedness program involving expenditure of more than $2,800,000,000. Not all would be spent immediately, however. Warship and some shore construction is a matter of years.

Champions of the fleet expansion bill are confident it will pass the Senate shortly. Chairman Walsh (Democrat), Massachusetts, of the Naval Affairs Committee, predicted a favorable vote today or tomorrow, which would send it back to the House for consideration of differences.

Army Reserve Boosted.

The supplementary naval and military proposals of the last few days are in addition to specific recommendations Mr. Roosevelt made in his defense message of January 28.

The latter are embodied in the Navy expansion bill, the War Department appropriation bill for the next fiscal year—the largest in 18 years, which both House and Senate have approved—or in other legislation already passed and signed by the President.

The first of the recommendations to become law was in a bill signed Tuesday, adding 75,000 trained men of a re-created army enlisted reserve to the land force available for service immediately in event of war.

Navy Bill Signed.

The following day the President signed a record peacetime Navy Department appropriation bill of $546,000,000, which included funds to start two battleships and a score of other warcraft.

Congressional conferees considering the War Department appropriation expect to meet early this week to compose differences between the $448,000,000 total approved by the House and the $489,000,000 voted by the Senate.

This measure provides for speeding construction of seacoast defenses as well as the increases recommended by Mr. Roosevelt in antiaircraft guns and ammunition storage.

Snow in July Is No Novelty— To 3 U.S. Boundary Engineers

It Takes Ten Years to Inspect Line Between This Country and Canada, Through Trackless Wilds.

If you ever happened to come face to face with a bull Moose in a snowstorm in July, the chances are you'd either swear off or retire to some quiet psycopathic ward for a nice, long rest.

But bull Moose and winter days in July are ordinary events in the lives of three engineer members of the Industrial Boundary Commission (United States, Alaska and Canada).

These men, housed in an obscure office in the Commerce Department, lead annual survey parties into trackless wilds of the far North to supervise this country's part in maintaining a peaceful boderline with Canada.

From three to five months each year the boundary engineers—J. Grant Hefty, Jesse Hill and Frank H. Bundage—leave Washington to live a primitive and adventurous existence in the vast forests along the United States-Canadian boundary from New England to the Pacific Coast.

As an example of its work, the commission points out that 10,311 straight-line boundary courses have been laid out, the longest of which is 647 miles and the shortest 2 feet. A total of 8,060 monuments or markers line the boundary.

It is the duty of Hefty, Hill and Bundage to inspect and re-establish these monuments and see that the border line carries out provisions of the treaties between the United States and Great Britain.

Each survey party covers approximately 100 miles of the boundary during the summer inspection. The entire line is covered once every ten years.

The engineer-inspectors frequently go months at a time without seeing another human being. Most of their traveling is done by mule pack-train.

They tell of tramping the swamplands of northern Minnesota wearing screen masks and heavy gloves as protection against insect swarms and the next season encountering heavy snowdrifts during July and August in the Rocky Mountain district.

Work of surveying the boundary is paid for jointly by the United States and Canada. Thomas Riggs, former governor of Alaska, is the United States commissioner and Noel J. Ogilvie represents Canada on the commission.

Word of the boundary surveyors is law. It is up to them to see that the line follows all treaty specifications. Frequently, they are forced actually to cut a town in half. In one instance, it was found the boundary ran directly through the center of a general store. The merchant promptly stocked with American-made goods on one side and Canadian on the other.

"Often, the commissioners are called upon by customs and immigration officials of both countries to make precise surveys of the boundary through the interiors of so-called 'line-houses'—houses which have been built directly on the boundary line," a recent commission report said. There are approximately 100 of these houses, erected presumably for the purpose of illicit trade and smuggling operations."

During prohibition a number of these houses contained bars, so arranged in the room that customers could stand in the United States and be served from the bar in Canada.

Political factors associated with the boundary are unique in the history of nations, the commission points out. No part of the line has ever been the cause of war. Nowhere along the line from the Atlantic to the Pacific, nor from the Dixon Entrance of the Arctic Ocean, is there a military establishment.

Although smuggling activities have shown a marked decrease since prohibition, there is evidence that illicit trade still is carried on. Survey parties frequently report finding well-beaten trails across the border far up in the northland wilderness.

Bankers Urged To Aid RFC in Credit Drive

National City Chairman Hopes for Results From Lending Program.

James H. Perkins, chairman of the board of the National City Bank of New York, called upon the banks of the country last night to assist the RFC "in every way possible" in its campaign to supply easier credit to business.

Perkins made the suggestion in a radio discussion with RFC Chairman Jesse H. Jones. The RFC recently resumed lending to business and political subdivisions.

Jones asked the banks to forward to the RFC all legitimate applications for loans which could not be fulfilled by the private lending agencies.

"Every business, however small, that is being honestly conducted is entitled to some line of credit," Jones declared.

Perkins said he hoped the lending program would produce these results:

That the banks would "take a new look" to see if they had "gone as far" as possible; that they would be able to give advice "that may easily be more valuable than to lend money;" and that they could help the RFC by doing "preliminary spade work" on applications before they reach the Federal agency.

"There are two reasons why the banks should co-operate with Mr. Jones," Perkins asserted. "The first is that every effort that can be made to help the business situation should be made. The second is that to no instrumentality of the Government or to no individual associated with the Government are the banks more indebted than they are to the RFC and its chairman, Jesse Jones."

Jones urged borrowers to apply for loans first to their own banks, adding that the RFC wanted these banks to participate if possible. Participation arrangements, he said, ran from 50 to 90 per cent of a loan.

Jones said the RFC would be glad to lend to utilities for extension and new equipment "upon terms and conditions appropriate to the terms of the investment."

Nippon Troops Raid America's Shanghai Area

Bayonet-Armed Soldiers Hunt for Bombers of Military Truck.

By the United Press.

Shanghai, May 1.—Japanese soldiers with bared bayonets occupied a large section in the heart of the Anglo-American area of the International Settlement tonight after Chinese terrorists had thrown a grenade at a Japanese military truck and wounded nine persons.

Hundreds of Chinese were searched and many arrested. The Japanese retained control of the area until 11 p. m.

It was the second armed mass occupation of foreign districts of the Settlement within 24 hours and aroused British and American residents, who long have feared the Japanese planned to assume absolute control of all the Settlement.

Hundreds of Japanese soldiers in motor trucks arrived within a few minutes after the explosion at 3 p. m. They blocked off large areas around Nanking road near the big race course and recreation grounds opposite the Y. M. C. A.

The explosion was near the spot where Chinese bombed a Japanese "victory parade" last December after the Japanese occupation of Nanking. All the injured were Chinese. Japanese in the truck were not hurt.

Japanese soldiers wielding pistols searched all the buildings over an area of more than a dozen blocks, including department stores and hotels. Chinese were handled roughly while Japanese searched them for arms.

Japanese riflemen patrolled the streets but did not molest Americans or other Occidentals. They also kept out of the defense areas assigned to United States Marines and British forces.

The volunteer corps of the settlement was called to aid in the roundup of Chinese suspects but it could not be learned whether the grenade throwers were identified.

The earlier incident occurred when Japanese forces entered the French Commission and remained until the French held up an outgoing shipment which the Japanese said was gold being exported illegally by the Bank of China.

Other developments:

A Japanese spokesman announced planes bombed more than 50 Chinese cities over an irregular line nearly 2,000 miles long Saturday and damaged airdromes, railways and munitions dumps.

One fleet bombed 40 points on the Canton Railway, vital link in China's communications line to Hankow—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's provisional capital—and "blew up several cars south of Ying Tak station. The railway was put out of commission for a time."

A second fleet conducted mass bombing operations on Kweiteh, one of the key cities in China's great fortified Lung-Hai Railway line defending the northern approaches to Hankow.

"Two hundred military freight cars were smashed near Kweiteh station and large munitions dumps nearby were exploded," the spokesman said.

A third fleet bombed and machine-gunned Chinese infantry concentrations near Wuhu, on the Yangtze River above Nanking; "and killed many of them."

The fourth fleet conducted mass bombing operations on the Chinese airdrome at Kukien, opposite the Japanese island of Formosa, and then split into groups which bombed Changting and Chu-hsien, stations on the Hangchow-Nanking Railway, and military concentrations in Anhwei Province.

Heavy fighting was reported in north China, where Chinese guerrilla bands penetrated to points near Peiping.

Filipinos to Ask Quezon Review Freedom Plan

Economic Mission Backs Pittman Doubts Because of World Unrest.

Copyright, 1938, by the United Press.

Political leaders of the Philippine Commonwealth, who have been here completing a Philippine-American economic report, plan to return to the islands and begin an intensive campaign for a "realistic re-examination" of forthcoming independence status, they announced last night.

They said in interviews with the United Press that they would urge President Manuel Quezon to lead a bold drive for "re-examination of the people's demand for independence," based primarily on warnings by High Commissioner Paul V. McNutt that Japanese aggression in the Far East makes such a course necessary, and a statement by Senator Key Pittman (Democrat), of Nevada, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Pittman said the United States regrets the impending severance of ties with the Philippines because of world conditions.

Would Be Free in 1946.

Under terms of the independence act the islands will receive complete political sovereignty on July 4, 1946, a status for which the Filipinos have campaigned for 30 years.

Assemblyman Jose Romero, floor leader of the Philippines National Assembly, told the United Press he and his associates would urge President Quezon to give simultaneous consideration to the economic reports and to the true implications of independence.

The group has been consulting with American economists on formulation of legislative recommendations for post-independence trade preferences. Their report, which will go to the White House for transmission to Congress, is said to provide for the negotiation of a post-independence trade treaty and certain economic modifications of the independence act to give the Filipinos wider latitude to adjust their economy to eventual freedom.

Filipinos Back Pittman.

"We cannot forget," Romero said, "that the future of the Filipinos as a people and a nation may depend upon our facing and examining facts boldly.

"When the economic recommendations of the joint preparatory committee on Philippine affairs come before us, we must not forget the necessity of studying and discussing our political and international relations."

Philippine Resident Commissioner Quintin Paredes, considered a potential candidate to succeed President Quezon in 1942, hailed Sen. Pittman's statement as "altogether healthy and sane."

Assemblyman Manuel Roxas, powerful Filipino leader and potential presidential timber, said that "re-examination is essential." He suggested that Filipinos would be glad to consider permanent dominion status, provided the islands were guaranteed the right of secession and if injustices in Philippine-American relations were removed.

The Filipino leaders will leave for the islands sometime this month.

Franco's Columns Join, Isolate Loyalists Northeast of Teruel

Central Army Cuts Off Advance Force in Surprise Push, as Rains and May Day Celebrations Keep Other Sectors Quiet.

By the Associated Press.

Hendaye, France, May 1.—The central insurgent army, defying storms which halted virtually all military action in Spain, drove northeast of Teruel today to join a northern column and isolate a government advance force.

The unheralded movement, which closed a 20-mile line between Aliaga and Molinos, came while a ghostlike silence fell over other fronts, where both sides quit fighting in the rain to hold May Day celebrations.

The insurgents drove northeast along the Guadalopillo River to complete the drive, surrounding government fighters holding out in the Montalban-Aliaga-Molinos triangle, about 50 miles northeast of Teruel.

The maneuvers strengthened insurgent positions for their push toward the Mediterranean in support of a salient already thrust to the coast northeast of Vinaroz.

Elsewhere on the eastern front, torrential rains, which turned trenches into rivulets, forced both sides to abandon lines and take up positions in the hills.

Artillery was at a standstill, food and munitions trucks slipped and sloshed over slick roads. Three feet of snow fell in the Pyrenees.

British gunboats have anchored off Valencia, Spain, to take on foreign consuls and other foreigners if Castellon de la Plana falls to the insurgents.

An American destroyer in touch with the situation may call at Valencia for United States Vice Consul Lee Worley.

The insurgents have been hammering for days at Castellon, important seaport 45 miles up the Mediterranean coast from Valencia, one-time capital of government Spain.

Castellon has been evacuated by its civilian population and a hospital there removed to Alicante, Coastal city 100 miles to the south.

Volunteers Join Legion.

Perpignan, Franco-Spanish Frontier, May 1 (U.P.).—Foreign volunteers of the loyalist international brigades—Poles and anti-Fascist German and Italians—trapped in the tiny republic of Andorra high in the Pyrenees, today joined the French Foreign Legion for service in Africa rather than return to their native lands.

Several hundreds of the volunteers sought refuge in Andorra after being cut off by Gen. Juan Solchaga's insurgent Navarrese. The foreigners refused to rejoin the loyalist armies.

After communicating with the ministry of the interior in Paris, French mobile guards took the refugees to the French side of the Pyrenees border and gave them a choice of joining the French Foreign Legion or being sent back to their homelands.

industry, for her sound pictures of the 1936 Olympics.

The day began early for Berlin Youth, most of whom had to rise at 4:30 a. m. to reach their places in the Olympic Stadium for exercises starting at 8:30 a. m.

Hitler told the youngsters they had the "great fortune of living in a period of which the German nation will not have cause to be ashamed. . . . You are the cornerstone of new Germany. Looking at you, my confidence in the future of Germany is unbounded."

Vienna Nazis March.

Vienna, May 1 (AP).—Nazi organizations, favored by bright sunshine, today celebrated their first Hitler May Day.

Parading through the decorated Ringstrasse, Vienna's big circular boulevard, hundreds of thousands of Nazis shouted "Sieg Heil!" (Hail Victory) and listened to Reichsfuehrer Hitler's broadcast from Berlin through 57 great loudspeakers.

Of 4,000 May trees in the city, 130 were thick pines shipped from Bavaria. These stood in Hero Square to symbolize Austro-German unity.

The Nazis said today's was the first May Day parade in Vienna since the World War without machine-guns hidden in barbed wire in the side streets to suppress possible outbreaks.

Hitler Proclaims Amnesty.

Berlin, May 1 (AP).—Chancellor Hitler proclaimed a general amnesty today for persons charged with minor common offenses.

A new law, effective January 1, 1939, also was enacted "for the protection of youth."

It regulates child labor, barring persons under the age of 16, with few exceptions, from all-night work, overtime and from being kept at work between 2 p. m. on Sundays and 6 a. m. on Mondays.

London, May 1 (U.P.).—British and French statesmen, attempting to run down reports that Fuehrer Hitler may give Premier Mussolini a "blank check" on German military aid, today apprehensively awaited the dictators' reply to the new Anglo-French military agreement.

There were rumors that Hitler may even offer Il Duce a military agreement providing for a unified high command.

Russia Parades Massed Might In Red Square

Davies and Wife See Giant March of Troops by the Thousands.

By the Associated Press.

Moscow, May 1.—Russia paraded her armed might in rainswept Red Square today in the annual observance of international labor day.

Troops, guns, tanks, people and airplanes passed in review before the tomb of Lenin, where Joseph Stalin, secretary of the central committee of the Communist Party, stood with other Soviet chieftains.

There was only one speech—by Klementi E. Voroshiloff commissar of war, who spoke after new conscripts among the troops recited the oath of allegiance after him.

Voroshiloff declared the Soviet ship of state, piloted by Stalin, "seeks neither international adventures nor sinking by enemies within, who are being ruthlessly exterminated."

Davies Sees Parade.

United States Ambassador Joseph E. Davies, retiring envoy to Russia and new Ambassador to Belgium, and Mrs. Davies witnessed the parade.

There were thousands of troops—picked detachments— followed by a mass of perhaps a million men, women and children.

With Stalin at Lenin's tomb were President Michael Kalinin, Premier Vyacheslaff Molotoff and other leaders.

Besides the army display of manpower there was a show of mechanized equipment.

417 Planes Fly Past.

As the people streamed behind the army, 417 airplanes—twin-engined bombers and single-engined fighters—flew past through a steady rain.

The military parade, which began at 10 a. m., took an hour to pass through the square. The celebration lasted until late in the afternoon.

Huge cartoons carried by civilians caricatured Japanese, Germans and Italians. Posters condemned Germany's annexation of Austria as well as the wars in China and Spain. Slogans called for heightened vigilance against spies and traitors.

35,000 Torches To Light Hitler Route in Rome

Gas Flames to Spurt High Along 4-Mile Avenue of Triumph.

By the United Press.

Rome, May 1.—Squads of workers labored after dark tonight putting finishing touches on a carnival setting along a 4-mile route from the new St. Paul's railroad station to Quirinal Palace over which Fuehrer Adolf Hitler will ride when he arrives in Rome Tuesday night.

Rome's imperial monuments along the 4-mile route such as the Colisium and the Arch of Titus will be floodlighted, while the Quirinal will resemble at night a huge floating palace with 35,000 torches outlining its classic lines.

These torches will be lighted simultaneously by 180 workmen.

Flags Canopy Avenue.

Along the Avenue of Triumph, buried beneath a veritable canopy of Italian and German flags, will be placed 80 bronze Roman candelabra 30 feet in height spurting long gas flames.

Along Empire Way, Mussolini's favorite avenue, will be two large monumental groups, 54-foot flagpoles and 100 bronze tripods 21 feet high burning gas flames.

The monument to the unknown soldier, Venice Palace and Venice Square will be lighted by multicolored rays.

Rome officials have been required to erect more than 30 special power boxes and install nearly 100 miles of special wiring as well as 4,500 floodlights.

Arrives at Night.

Hitler's schedule calls for his special train to leave Berlin at 4 p. m. Monday. He will arrive in Rome about 8:30 p. m. Tuesday.

On Wednesday he will place a wreath on the tomb of Italy's unknown soldier, followed by a speech to Rome's German residents and a review of the Italian Youth organizations.

Mussolini's big naval review in honor of his guest will come Thursday at Naples, with a banquet given by Crown Prince Humberto and a festival performance at the St. Canzo theater.

Sham Battle Slated.

Friday the Italian army will parade before Hitler in Rome with a gala reception and mass meeting at the Piazza Disenna.

A military sham battle will be staged Saturday at Santa Marinella, followed by a demonstration of Italy's air strength at Furba, near Rome.

Sunday will be devoted to a festival performance of "Lohengrin" at the Forum and fireworks display on the Tiber. Monday Hitler will go to Florence, then back to Berlin.

Car Stolen in '34 Recovered—It's Still Brand New

On December 9, 1934, Irving Garfinkle's brand-new Chevrolet sedan was stolen from Fourteenth and Emerson streets northwest.

On April 30, 1938, Garfinkle, who lives at 4114 Thirteenth street northwest, recovered his sedan—and it was still brand-new.

Detective John Payne, of the police auto squad, told him last week that a car listed to him had been found in Baltimore. Garfinkle learned that George Keyser, owner of several private garages, had rented one over three years ago to a man who paid the rent for six months and then disappeared.

The car was offered at auction for nonpayment of rent, and Keyser bought it in for $60. When the new owner recently attempted to obtain title, it was discovered that the sedan was listed as a stolen car.

At the time the auto was stolen, it had run only 500 miles. When Garfinkle bought it back for $60 Saturday, the mileage stood—after three years and five months—at 700.

Myron C. Taylor Named U. S. Refugee Body Aide

President Roosevelt has named Myron C. Taylor, former chairman of the board of U. S. Steel Corporation, to serve as American representative on the international committee for refugees. In announcing Taylor's appointment yesterday, the White House said the President also had selected a number of other "representative American men" to form part of the American committee on refugees which will seek to aid Austrians and Germans exiled from their countries. Taylor sailed from New York yesterday.

Mgr. Haas Urges New NRA With Voice for Labor

Member of Old Mediation Board Addresses Catholic Parley.

Milwaukee, May 1 (AP).—A revival of the principles of NRA was advocated today by Mgr. Francis J. Haas, member of the original national labor meditation board and now of Catholic University, Washington, at opening of the four-day national Catholic social action conference.

The conference, planned by Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch, Milwaukee, was designed to apply Christian principles of social charity and justice to economic problems.

Why NRA Collapsed.

Mgr. Haas, adressing 2,500 representatives from all sections of the Nation, and that in a Christian social order all groups would negotiate wages, hours and output, while the Government's function would be to "direct, watch, stimulate and restrain."

NRA was based on that idea, but collapsed, he said, because "labor had little to say in making any of the codes and very little in administering them."

Dr. Paul Kiniery, Chicago, dean of Loyola University Graduate School, asserted the annual national income should be $90,000,000,000 or more, and that labor should have a greater share in ownership and management.

Fears U. S. Disintegration.

"If this Nation does not accept a Christian solution of our troubles, we shall witness the disintegration of the United States within the next generation," Dr. Kiniery said.

The Rev. Raymond A. McGowan, of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, Washington, defined the Government's role, quoting Pope Pius XI's "Reconstruction of the Social Order." It was, he said, to regulate working conditions, make a living wage possible, "control free competition and still more the new despotism of wealth and of corporate and credit control," preserve a "just freedom," promote international economic co-operation, and "own those things which would let the private owners dominate the community."

Tinkham Blames Oil Land Seizures On Roosevelt, Hull

Representative George Holden Tinkham (Republican), Massachusetts, bewhiskered critic of the Administration's foreign policies, last night accused President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull of encouraging "Communistic Mexico" to seize American property through silver subsidies and other assistance.

Tinkham alleged in a statement that Mexico already has become a "Communistic state with a dictator" and that the movement might sweep into Central and South America because of recent statements by President Roosevelt and Hull that the Mexican government can "rob citizens of the United States of their possessions" with impunity.

Angered by the recent seizure by Mexico of hundreds of millions of dollars of American oil, farm, factory and other properties, Tinkham charged that the action was a reflection of the New Deal's policies of "hostility" toward private ownership and legitimate profits.

Fate of $150,080 PokerHand Hinges On Type of Game

Hollywood, May 1 (U.P.).—The outcome of a poker game in which a young Englishman complained of dropping $150,080 on a single hand to Fanny Brice's brother appeared tonight to hinge on whether the game was stud or draw.

Harry T. Clifton, the losing player, insisted they were playing stud when dapper Lew Brice unholed a third seven to beat his two pairs and win a $150,080 pot. Brice said the game was old-fashioned draw and that he had a full house with which he won a mere $40,000.

The question of whether the game was stud or draw was considered important because of a recent ruling by the State attorney general that while draw poker is permissible under the penal code, stud is never legal. As a result of his ruling draw poker parlors have sprung up along the beach amusement zones with the "proprietors" charging a small "rental fee" for tables and cards.

Townsend Assails Unions as 'Selfish'

Chicago, May 1 (AP).—Dr. Francis E. Townsend, old-age pension advocate, criticized labor unions today for what he said was a "selfish" attitude. He spoke at a meeting of the Townsend Unions Club of Chicago, an organization of American Federation o Labor groups.

The 71-year-old Californian said labor unions had reached a stage where they were for themselves and seemed to forget that they were only "a portion of the Nation." Dr. Townsend told his audience the "constant demands" workers were making on employers were forcing the latter to reduce the number of employes and added that it was a "national curse" 'to be forced to support people in unemployment."

Brazil to Set Up Minimum Wages For All Workers

Rio de Janeiro, May 1 (AP).—President Vargas marked international labor day today by signing a decree, effective immediately, creating regional commissions charged with establishing minimum wages for all workers. There will be a commission in each of Brazil's 22 governmental divisions.

The decree defined a minimum wage as the remuneration for an adult worker of either sex for a normal day's service which would permit at a given time in a given region "the satisfaction of normal needs."

1,200 Van Drivers Strike in Detroit

Detroit, May 1 (AP).—A strike of union moving van drivers and helpers in Detroit, affecting more than 1,200 workers, was called tonight, effective immediately, by the Van Drivers and Furniture Drivers Union, Local No. 242, of the American Federation of Labor.

Frank Singer, union business agent, said the Detroit Van Owners Association had refused to renew its present contract.

Both Judiciary Groups Split On Poll Results

D. C. Vote 'Doesn't Mean a Thing' to Borah While Others Applaud.

Members of the House and Senate judiciary committees, before whom the questions of local suffrage and national representation for the District would first have to be presented, expressed sharply divergent opinions last night on the significance of Saturday's suffrage referendum.

Representative U. S. Guyer (Republican), Kansas, a member of the House Judiciary Committee which has scheduled hearings on the suffrage question for May 18 and 19, declared that the poll "indicated the determination of Washington residents to have local suffrage and national representation." "And I think they should have them," he added, "especially in view of such an overwhelming prosuffrage vote."

Another member of the committee, however, Representative Earl C. Michener (Republican), of Michigan, asserted that "the unfortunate thing about the referendum was that the organized propaganda was all one one side—the side that wanted the vote. It wasn't adequately pointed out that if the District gets the rights of a State, it also will assume the obligations of a State."

Borah Rejects Result.

Senator William E. Borah (Republican), Idaho, declared that the unofficial peoples' demand for suffrage "wouldn't influence me at all."

"That kind of vote doesn't mean a thing to me," he said. "Everybody voted who wanted to vote, without any kind of restrictions. I don't think it represents a fair cross-section of public opinion in Washington."

Senator Frederick Van Nuys (Democrat), Indiana, took the opposite viewpoint. "I think the people want local government and national representatives and ought to have both," he said. "While I wouldn't be controlled in my judgment solely by the referendum, I think that its results will have an important influence upon all members of Congress."

Representative Charles F. McLaughlin (Democrat), of Nebraska, member of the House Judiciary Committee, termed the referendum "a very strong indication that people here desire a voice in their own government." Saturday's balloting, he said, should prove "one of the first steps" in attaining the goal of self-government.

"I wish the people here did have the vote, said Representative Robert L. Ramsay (Democrat), of West Virginia, another committee member. "It would mean much less work for us."

McCarran Unimpressed.

Other comments by Senate and House Judiciary Committee members:

Senator Pat McCarran (Democrat), Nevada: "The referendum didn't impress me at all. That so-called election would have no effect in swaying my judgment. One reason that it wouldn't influence me is that there were no residence requirements and I believe that only bona fide District residents—as well sa Congress—should determine whether Washington gets the vote."

Representative Edwin V. Champion (Democrat), Illinois—"If the results are indicative of the feeling of District people I can't help but feel that their expression of opinion should be given careful consideration. I think that Washingtonians with no legal residence elsewhere should certainly be entitled to the franchise if they want it."

Representative Frank W. Towey, jr. (Democrat), New Jersey—"In view of the large vote and the interest shown, the citizens of the District may be assured that I'll give the matter serious consideration when it comes up in committee."

Representative Edward W. Creal (Democrat), of Kentucky: "I'm not ready to make any commitments yet. The vote would at least indicate what the people here want and would settle that question."

Organizers of the whirlwind four-week campaign, which took nearly 100,000 citizens to the polls, believed that the spectacular margins for national and local representation would prove beyond question the District's desire for full political stature.

David Babp, secretary of the Federation of Citizens' Associations and a leader in the District Suffrage Association, declared that he was "highly gratified" at results of the referendum and said that the total vote was three times greater than he had expected.

Wilbur S. Finch, president of the District Suffrage Association, said that he believed the District's chances for suffrage had been "considerably enhanced" by the referendum. "If any member of Congress has doubts about our poll," he said, "I'd suggest he authorize the Commissioners to hold an official referendum."

'St. Louis Blues' Writer Coming For Festival

Handy Will Participate in Discussion Panel on Saturday.

One of the headliners at the discussion session of the National Folk Festival, to be held Saturday morning at the Raleigh Hotel, will be W. C. Handy, internationally famous colored composer who is popularly known as "the granddaddy of the blues."

Handy introduced the indigo hue to American music when he gave the world "The Memphis Blues." As originally written this song sent Ed Crump to Congress and Handy to Broadway. Handy will tell at the discussion session how he adapted political words to a work-song, plaintive, snappy rhythm that welled straight out of his being and thus broke loose from the white musical tradition that never did anything except cramp the style of the colored folk. Audiences had been listening patiently to Handy before, but after he gave them the music that was native to his people, they went wild with enthusiasm.

After "The Memphis Blues" came "St. Louis Blues," "Beale street Blues" and scores of others. Thousands of victrolas blared out: "St. Louis woman with her diamond ring, leads that man around by her apron string." America took to the blues and, from the initial impulse supplied by Handy, went on to jazz and swing.

Handy was born in Florence, Ala. His father and grandfather were Methodist preachers, but Handy would pass up a sermon any Sunday to hear the rivermen sing their mournful songs as they toiled. He can make a cornet talk, and he is one of the best-liked musicians of America.

Dr. Ben Rotkin, of the University of Oklahoma, will be chairman of the discussion panel, which is the "serious and learned" part of the festival. The six show performances of the festival will be held at Constitution Hall, with more than 500 participants from 30 States presenting the songs, dances and legends of America in the most complete folk show ever staged in this country.

Mrs. Sanderson Is Dead in Texas

Mrs. John W. Sanderson, wife of John W. Sanderson 3d and niece of Col. and Mrs. Shepler Ward Fitzgerald, of this city, died Saturday night at San Antonio, Tex., after a brief illness.

Mrs. Sanderson attended the King Smith School here and lived with Col. and Mrs. Fitzgerald at 3505 Davis street northwest. Besides her husband, she is survived by a sister, Mrs. Harry Deuschbein, and a brother, Thomas Wilson Smith.

Plunge of Auto Kills Woman; Husband Dying

Accidents in Washington and Nearby Sections Injure Eight Others.

A 69-year-old woman was killed, her husband injured critically and eight other persons hurt in traffic accidents in Washington and nearby sections of Maryland and Virginia yesterday.

The mother of a metropolitan policeman died of injuries suffered in an accident in Maryland March 13.

Mrs. Horace Hunt, of Angola, N. Y., was killed when the car in which she was a passenger left the Richmond-Washington highway about 12 miles south of Alexandria and plummeted down a 10-foot embankment. Her husband was taken to Alexandria Hospital, where he was not expected to live through the night.

Mrs. Elizabeth Rice, 63, mother of Second Precinct Private John D. Rise, died at her home, 723 Taylor street northwest, of injuries received in an automobile accident at Bacon Hill, Md. Mrs. Rice's husband, Joseph A. Rice, also a victim of the accident, died March 22.

Other survivors are another son, Joseph A. Rice, of Washington, and a daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Cooke, of San Diego.

Four persons were injured when an automobile driven by Samuel Kirk, 18, of Silver Spring, veered off Sligo avenue near Sligo Parkway, and crashed into a tree. Kirk, who was cut and bruised, was charged by the Takoma Park police with reckless driving. Bail was set at $500.

Joseph Allington, 17, of Silver Spring, and Archie Collins, 21, of Chevy Chase, were injured in the crash.

Mrs. Mary Knott, 38, of 222 Twelfth place northeast; James Oliver, 44, of 1224 Thirteenth street northwest; Margaret Henning, 23, of 1258 Talbert street southeast, and Lorenzo C. Addison, 48, of Marshall Hall, Md., were injured in other accidents in the Washington area.

Woman and Son Injured.

Mrs. Inez Casey, 36, and her son, Timothy, 6, of 208 H street northwest, were injured when the taxicab in which they were passengers collided with an automobile at Fourth and C streets southwest last night. Police said the cab was operated by George Hodge, 36, of the 1900 block of Tenth street northwest, and the other machine was operated by James Allen, colored, 23, of the 300 block of New York avenue northwest. Mrs. Casey and her son suffered concussion of the brain and possible skull fractures.

Mrs. Belmar Shepley, 65, of the 2200 block of Twenty-seventh street northwest, was injured seriously when she was struck by an automobile last night in the 600 block of Eighteenth street northwest. She was treated at Emergency Hospital for a possible skull fracture, a fracture of the left leg and internal injuries and transferred to Naval Hospital. Police said the car was operated by Charles R. Nice, 44, of the 2500 block of K street northwest.

Make Your Dates Now to Attend the 5th Annual National Folk Festival
Next Friday, Saturday or Sunday

- 500 performers from 29 States will be here to make this the greatest folk festival ever produced in America.
- The 5th Annual National Folk Festival has been planned for the past ten months. It will play only in Washington—and for three days only.
- The 5th Annual National Folk Festival is being sponsored by The Washington Post Folk Festival Association.
- In addition to the many dances, songs and plays, there will be an interesting exhibit of handicraft.

You'll see square dances from the Carolina and Tennessee hills. Cowboys from Anson, Texas, with their ranch fiddles will give the festival a wild west touch as they do their famous "Cowboys' Christmas Ball." Mexican dancers will show you their folk dances. Five Indian Tribes will whoop it up with their war dances. Lumberjacks will chant their songs of the forest. An Irish group will present the "Four Hand Reel." Sailors will sing sea chanteys that date back to the Armada. Ten months of planning to give you three days of entertainment you will never forget!

peal by James H. Perkins, chairman of the board of the National City Bank of New York, and Jesse Jones, R. F. C. chairman, for banks of the country to assist the R. F. C. "in every way possible" in its campaign to supply easier credit to business. "Every business, however small, that is being honestly conducted is entitled to some line of credit," Jones said.

At the same time, Postmaster General Farley, after a 4,000-mile tour, declared business conditions are improving and the upswing would be "accelerated by the program that will be passed in Washington during the next month."

On Capitol Hill, the House Appropriations Committee planned to wind up today its hearings on the President's $4,500,000,000 spending-lending recovery program. Legislation to put the program into effect is expected to be drafted by end of the week.

William Green, head of the American Federation of Labor; John L. Lewis, leader of the Committee for Industrial Organization, and Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York are slated to be the last witnesses.

Cameron's close relationship with Henry Ford led to the assumption that views he expressed last night were in sympathy with those of the motor manufacturer, who has refused to discuss publicly the trend of his discussion at the White House last week.

Calls Slump Political.

In a radio address from Detroit, Cameron declared that "for a political depression there is no economic remedy," only the withdrawal of Government to its "proper" sphere.

He said that wherever "Government control of economic recovery" has been tried experience shows "that Government can vastly upset and injure the economic process, but has no equal power to build and help. Where its gigantic effort monopolizes the field it sterilizes the natural forces of recovery, paralyzes the country's native recuperative power and makes a transient condition chronic."

In the present case, he said, the need is for "less talk of leadership," and he added:

"There need be no recriminations—if there is blame, it rests with all of us. The situation in our Nation today is the logical result of fallacies we as a people have been nursing for 40 years. We have formed the habit of demanding of Government something entirely beyond its sphere and, as a result, administrators of Government have contracted from us the habit of trying to be something they are not and cannot be."

Directors of the National Association of Manufacturers, following an all-day conferenceon Friday of 47 representatives of various industries, issued a statement yesterday saying:

"Pump-priming to stimulate business cannot succeed unless it is accompanied by Governmental policies that will permit business to accept the priming and go forward.

"Pouring public funds into pump-priming projects, no matter how freely, cannot provide permanent jobs and economic stability if private enterprise is not encouraged simultaneously to proceed and expend. On theother hand, if all possible encouragement is given to private enterprise, then little, if any, pump-priming will be necessary."

Ear Marking Urged.

The board's seven-point program, in addition to the no-competition-with-private-utilities and Wagner act revision planks, urged "adequate definition of specific purpose in the appropriating of further national funds for relief purposes. It thus joined with groups in Congress seeking extensive ear-marking of funds to be appropriated in the new recovery program, instead of "writing blank checks" so the President may apply the funds where he decrees.

The board also urged prompt solution of the "underlying railroad problem," and "constructive steps by Government to create confidence in the fundamentals of the private enterprise system."

Postmaster General Farley based his business improvement views partially on reports of the postal service, in a New York address reported by the Associated Press.

He said the new recovery program would restore prosperity for "another considerable period of time."

"During that period," he declared, "our Government will have opportunity to review some of the causes of our present difficulty and, no doubt, will succeed in finding a remedy for many of them, just as we have found a remedy in the last five years for many of the ills that we recognized during the last depression."

was that I had intended barely to mention Mayor Hague in my address," Thomas said. "In my speech I had intended to point out that the real danger to this country is from fascism within.

"Had I been permitted to make my speech in peace, the Sunday newspapers in their stories of the May Day celebration would have mentioned me only with one line down at the bottom of the account: 'Norman Thomas also spoke.'"

Of the short-lived melee in Jersey City's Journal Square, Thomas said: "I was interested to observe that the Jersey City police are using a new technique. They hit their victims just below the nape of the neck. It doesn't leave a mark, but it stuns the person hit."

Red Agitation Charged.

Jersey City, May 1 (AP).—Public Safety Director Daniel Casey asserted today the presence of Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, escorted out of the city by police who restrained him from making a May Day eve speech, created a disturbance and "attracted a Red element imported from New York City to cause disorder."

"Norman Thomas," said Casey, "took the lead in assailing Mayor Frank Hague at the time the mayor was having trouble with Roger Baldwin and the Civil Liberties Union and the Communist-Red element."

"I want the public to know that Norman Thomas is nothing more than an agent for this Red-Communist group."

Landon Flays Action.

Topeka, Kans., May 1 (AP).—Alf M. Landon, 1936 Presidential nominee, today said he considered the treatment given Norman Thomas, national chairman of the Socialist Party, in Jersey City last night "gross violation of our sacred right of free speech."

In a letter to Thomas, Landon wrote: "I am shocked at your treatment in Jersey City and at such a gross violation of our sacred right of free speech.

"I am glad to note that you have just begun to fight. I want you to know that I stand shoulder to shoulder with you in this fight for the right of free speech."

out of the Galapagos—tales of the fierce temper of the "empress," who carried a pistol from a silken cord about her neck and knew how to use it.

Four months later the mummified body of Lorenz was found on lonely, waterless Marchena Island, far to the north.

Nearby was the body of a second man, identified as that of Trygve Nuggrud, a sailor supposed to have joined the baroness' colony or to have been a member of another group which went to the islands to practice nudism and eat raw vegetables.

Everyone aboard the Yankee was healthy at the end of the 18-month voyage—particularly 2½-year-old Arthur Cook Johnson.

Mrs. Johnson, the former Miss Electa Search, of Rochester, N. Y., stood by silently while her husband related his story.

Wild West Circus Opens With Parade Here Today

In a circus parade, Washington's first in seven years, Col. Tim McCoy's Real Wild West and Rough Riders of the World will march down Constitution avenue at 10 a. m. today, as a prelude to the opening of the show this afternoon.

Afternoon and evening performances will be given today, tomorrow and Wednesday, at Union Market Show Grounds, Florida avenue and Fifth street northeast. The 500 human performers and 500 animals arrived at Eckington freight yards Saturday in a new 40-car circus train.

addresses listed in the city directory.

Tabulation of a few hundred absentee ballots, mailed by invalids or Washingtonians out of town on "election day," also will take place today.

Elated by the swift snowballing of ballots which nearly reached the 100,000 mark, campaign workers said they could have obtained an even higher total if more precinct polling places had been available. Many residents in outlying sections lived more than a mile from the ballot box, they pointed out.

A breakdown by precincts revealed throughout the city uniformly greater popular support for national representation than for local suffrage.

Precinct totals ranged from 4,684 votes recorded at Mott School, Fourth and W streets northwest, to 392 ballots cast at Mann School, Newark street and New Mexico avenue northwest.

Thirteen precincts rolled up more than 2,000 votes each, while three polling places were visited by fewer than 500 persons.

The most spectacular majority for suffrage was achieved by Third Precinct voters at the Randall Junior High, Second and D streets southwest, which turned in a 900-to-1 verdict in favor of national representation. The actual count was 2,949 votes to 2.

Seven other precincts yielded margins of more than 100 to 1 for the right to vote. They were:

Fourth, Syphax School, Half and N streets southwest; Fifteenth, Smothers School, Forty-fourth street and Washington place northeast; Sixteenth, Burrville School, Division avenue and Hayes street northeast; Twenty-eighth, Cardozo High, Ninth and Rhode Island avenues northwest; Twenty-ninth, Mott School, Fourth and W streets northwest; Thirty-eighth, Howard University, and Thirty-ninth, Garnet-Patterson Junior High, Tenth and U streets northwest.

The smallest margin of victory for adherents of local suffrage appeared in the Ninth Precinct, where 1,531 affirmative voters at the Hine Junior High, Seventh and S streets southeast, topped 690 supporters of the status quo in District government.

Five fashionable precincts north of Reservoir road and west of Massachusetts avenue northwest averaged only 4 to 1 for local suffrage.

A staff of 30 volunteer election clerks, who had sealed the uncounted ballot boxes at an early hour yesterday morning, returned refreshed to their task in the afternoon, with 65,000 votes still to be tabulated. Nine more hours were required to complete the count.

100,000,000 Trees To Be Planted by May 31 by CCC

Addition of 100,000,000 trees to the national forest areas of the United States under the spring planting program of the Civilian Conservation Corps, will be completed by the end of May, it was announced yesterday.

A major portion of the program already has been completed, particularly in Southern States where 45,000,000 trees have been set out. Large areas through these States have been planted with longleaf and shortleaf pine, slash pine, spruce and white oak, according to report of the National Forest Service which has directed the CCC planting.

An additional 40,000,000 trees are being planted in the North Central and Lake States, with the bulk of the work in Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

It Takes Two to Make a Loan
—the business man willing to borrow and the bank willing to lend.
THE bank's willingness to lend its loanable funds is limited only by its ability to find able, reliable business men whose business plans call for sound bank loans.
To many of its business neighbors this bank is extending good loans—loans that are good because the borrowers are able and reliable and their business activities are sound and profitable.
As business improves, this bank is ready and eager to play a constructive part. It is well supplied with loanable funds to co-operate to the fullest extent with business men willing to borrow.
To them we supply not only the money loaned, but also our best information and counsel regarding local and national conditions affecting their own fields of business.

Another Failure.

From the strictly political viewpoint, opposition to the wages-and-hours bill should theoretically be weaker now than at any previous period of its stormy history. Both major factions of organized labor have strongly indorsed the measure. The President continues to advocate it vigorously. Coming just prior to the beginning of the 1938 election campaigns, such appeals are difficult to resist.

Yet the bill has once more met a severe setback. In view of the Rules Committee's decision to prevent a vote on the measure only herculean efforts on the part of its sponsors, and probable disruption of adjournment plans, can dislodge it during the current session. Evidently purely political considerations have not been able to overcome the strong economic and Constitutional objections to the bill.

Last December the House discharged the Rules Committee from further consideration of a wages-and-hours bill of a very different sort. But when that measure was subjected to critical examination it was sent back to the Labor Committee for drastic revision. Its flexible provisions had been found unsatisfactory. So the committee drafted an inflexible bill applying the same minimum wage and maximum hours to all parts of the country without regard for local differences. As the Rules Committee vote now indicates, this revision has succeeded only in raising new problems.

The exploitation of labor, especially in the lower income brackets, cannot be defended. No doubt every member of the House favors the payment of reasonable minimum wages to say nothing of abolition of child labor. Especially at this time the Congressmen would be delighted to vote for any bill giving promise of accomplishing these objectives fairly and within the terms of the Constitution. But in spite of this willingness to satisfy organized labor, and extend the social security of their constituents, many Congressmen are courageous enough to face the fact that no practicable measure has as yet been drawn.

In the experience of the House is a definite implication that no satisfactory Federal wages-and-hours legislation is likely to be devised. Instead of trying in desperation to force an arbitrary bill through an unwilling Congress, organized labor might better bring pressure directly on employers and State legislatures.

Approaching A Show-Down.

The forcible ejection of Norman Thomas from Jersey City by Mayor Hague's "strong arm" men adds another chapter to the colorful history of that city of organized lawlessness. Mr. Thomas obviously welcomed the opportunity to test the temper of the Hague regime by holding a public meeting after a permit had been denied him.

Nobody questions the right of any municipality to impose reasonable restrictions upon the use of public streets and property as places of assembly. But it was long ago evident that the Jersey City authorities, under the pretext of suppressing disturbers of the peace, are really intent upon suppression of free speech and freedom of assemblage.

So long as these elementary rights of free Americans were withheld chiefly from "Red" sympathizers or other obscure troublemakers, it was difficult to arouse the rest of the country to the menace of this "city state" which is a law unto itself. In accepting the challenge thrown down by Mr. Thomas, however, the authorities are asking for a "show-down." The Socialist leader is widely known; he is respected by many people who do not share his political views, and he is a courageous fighter for principle. This is a combination of qualities that may spell real trouble for Mayor Hague and his following.

Agreement At Last.

After nine months of disagreement, House and Senate conferees seem to have reached a compromise on the District Juvenile Court bill.

The main point of contention has been the matter of the corporation counsel's jurisdiction in delinquencies. The House, eagerly subscribing to the theory that minors should not be punished so much as rehabilitated, has been strong for exempting juvenile crimes from the inflexible strictures of the criminal code. The Senate, in contrast, has argued the need for legal checks even on children and has insisted that the District prosecutor have the initiative in all cases.

Now it seems agreed that investigations will be begun and conducted by social workers who will submit their recommendations to the corporation counsel for approval. Moreover, in case no action is recommended, the complainant may appeal to the corporation counsel. This seems an acceptable plan, particularly since Corporation Counsel Seal is known to believe that a minimum of prosecution is wanted in treating with children.

It passed as now drawn, the bill will permit consideration of the social influences which generally lie behind juvenile delinquency. It will minimize, too, the stigma which today usually attaches to a child haled into court. No mere sentimentality dictates these changes. Social welfare experience indicates that they greatly assist efforts to reclaim youths tending towards criminal careers.

Votes For A New Government.

Washington responded to the suffrage poll in a creditable manner. Votes were cast by somewhat less than one-third of those believed to have been eligible. In view of the short period devoted to preparation of the poll, however, that is an impressive showing. Of course, the poll was entirely unofficial. No candidates were named on the ballot and there was no political organization to stimulate interest in the voting.

In some instances voting quarters were not organized until shortly before the polls opened. Because of the relatively small number of polling places they were not easily accessible in all parts of the city. Under these circumstances it is a real accomplishment to have mobilized more than 90,000 votes. The Citizens' Conference on District Suffrage is entitled to congratulations on what will doubtless prove to be a very useful undertaking.

The problem now is to turn the poll to the greatest advantage of the community. There has always been a strong presumption that the people of Washington want a government more responsive to community needs than is the present regime. Now that desire can no longer be questioned. In considering future plans for the District Congress ought to be duly impressed by the protest against present conditions which local citizens have recorded at the polls.

No definite conclusions can be drawn, however, as to what precise form the new District government should take. The ballots cast were overwhelmingly in favor of representation of the District in Congress. Probably that vote will carry considerable weight on Capitol Hill. But national representation is a subject in which the States and the Nation, as well as the District, are interested. In this case Washington can do little more than submit its appeal for a constitutional amendment to Congress and the States.

Sentiment in favor of an elected local government is less pronounced, although the ratio of affirmative to negative votes on this query is about seven to one. In view of the fact that most of Washington's problems are local it might seem strange that there is greater interest in national suffrage. But that fact can be readily explained. Establishment of a government responsible to local residents in a city built to serve the entire Nation would be an extremely complicated matter.

Moreover, there is a reasonable alternative to the election of city officials here. That would be modernization of the present commission form of government in line with the Prettyman report. There is every indication that the Commissioners would give Washingtonians the type of municipal service they seek if they had the power to do so.

No opportunity was given citizens voting in the poll to express their views on reorganization of the existing District government so that it might function effectively. It is not improbable, however, that the most immediate effect of the poll will be to stimulate interest in the reorganization movement. A vast amount of spade work along this line has already been done. Several valuable reports, in addition to that of Mr. Prettyman's committee, supplement the current demand for more adequate municipal government. On the very day that the poll was held leaders in District affairs on Capitol Hill began laying plans to revive this lagging movement.

Without in any way minimizing the significance of Saturday's balloting, citizens should realize that it is valuable chiefly as a stimulus to further action. The next step ought to be carefully planned with reference to Washington's urgent social needs, to the voting habits of Government employes who still maintain legal residences in the States and to the unique character of the District as the Nation's Capital. With those precautions, it should not be difficult to turn this impressive poll to the early advantage of the community.

Training For Journalism.

In his presidential address James G. Stahlman urged the American Newspaper Publishers Association to join with other newspaper organizations in creating a committee to set standards for schools and departments of journalism. This is a recommendation well worthy of consideration. Mr. Stahlman's purpose is two-fold: to encourage the better institutions and to weed out those he calls "the bunk." He is looking at the problem primarily from the viewpoint of the newspapers. They need protection, he thinks, "from the constant deluge of unfit, so-called journalists that constitute the annual crop of graduates from these lower-bracket institutions."

The newspapers could, however, do a great service to the community as well as to themselves by guiding the choice of young people who seek training for newspaper work. A mistaken choice often entails a tragic loss of time and money to the student. Indeed, students are the chief victims of what Mr. Stahlman denounces as a "mushroomlike growth of so-called schools and departments of journalism."

In all lines of activity in which professional training is not absolutely essential to success, opinions differ widely as to the value of formal preliminary instruction. There is no doubt, however, that the better schools of journalism requiring a solid foundation of general education from their students have much to contribute to the journalistic profession. It is to their interest, also, to co-operate in any movement directed against the type of institution whose graduates are given a superficial training but lack the fundamental knowledge necessary to make them efficient reporters.

Fair Labor Hearings.

With the aid of the courts, the National Labor Relations Board may eventually become an effective agency for the enforcement of collective bargaining without revision of the Wagner Labor Relations Act.

A few days ago, for instance, the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Chicago invalidated an order of the NLRB to reinstate employes who had struck in disregard of a contract to arbitrate. This emphasis upon the mutuality of the obligations entered into by employers and employes under collective bargaining agreements is most encouraging. It shows that the courts do not intend to condone or ignore irresponsible conduct on the part of employes merely because of the one-sided character of the Labor Relations Act.

The decision handed down last week by the Supreme Court in the Kansas City stockyards case is, however, of much greater significance, because of its sweeping nature and its finality. The Court invalidated certain rate orders issued by Secretary Wallace on the ground that the commission firms affected had not had a fair hearing. It also explained what it meant by a "fair and open" hearing. "Those who are brought into contest with the Government," it said, "in a quasi-judicial proceeding aimed at the control of their activities are entitled to be fairly advised of what the Government proposes and to be heard upon its proposals before it issues its final command."

In course of the decision it was made very plain that the Court was outlining a method of procedure for the guidance of Federal administrative agencies in general. "If these multiplying agencies deemed to be necessary in our complex society are to serve the purposes for which they are created and endowed with vast powers," the Court stated, "they must accredit themselves by acting in accordance with the cherished judicial tradition embodying the basic concepts of fair play."

In justice to Secretary Wallace it should be said that he changed the procedure of which the Court complains some time ago and approves the decision.

Counsel for the Ford Company opposing an order of the NLRB has been quick to perceive the bearing of the stockyards decision upon that controversy. And Charles Fahy, general counsel for the NLRB, has also been prompt in taking steps to reopen the inquiry in the Ford case with a view to making procedure conform to the general rules laid down by the Supreme Court. For the same purpose Mr. Fahy is considering similar action in case of the Republic Steel Company and others.

Regardless of the motives that induced the NLRB to consider a reform of its procedure, a change in the methods heretofore followed would be greatly to its advantage. Partly because of the defects of the Labor Relations Act and partly because of the faulty nature of its administrative practices the NLRB has come to be regarded as a biased agency, indifferent to the rights of employers.

Arbitrary orders to employers which lead to prolonged court controversies do not, of course, help the cause of collective bargaining. Instead they retard its development and create antipathy for the administrative agencies created to foster it. If employers could always be assured of their day in court and of full opportunity to reply to the charges of their employes, the chances for a friendly settlement of differences would be immensely improved. By such means the basic purpose of the Wagner act—the fixation of wages and conditions of work by negotiation between employers and their organized workers—would be furthered.

Changes in procedure along the lines laid down by the Supreme Court would help to destroy suspicions that the NLRB does not give both sides a square deal. Instead of weakening its position, moreover, such action would raise the prestige of the board. For it would then be much easier to enlist employer co-operation in developing a responsible system of collective bargaining, advantageous to both sides.

The Dies Alien Bill.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: On April 19 Senator Schwellenbach reported to the Senate the so-called Dies alien bill, H. R. 6391.

Section 1 of the bill grants amnesty to habitual alien criminals now in the United States by expressly limiting their deportation to "hereafter" convictions for two or more crimes and then only at the discretion of the Secretary of Labor in most instances by the express exception: "or Section 1 (3) of this act" thus repealing existing law deporting mandatorily aliens "convicted of two or more crimes involving moral turpitude."

One of the worst amnesty provisions in the bill is the proposed amendment of the sub-committee expressly offering administrative indulgence to aliens bribing immigration officials, entering on forged immigration papers or by their own perjury. Such is bound to induce perjury, forgery and bribery.

The four seeming additional deportation provisions the bill has are mere "window dressings" for the autocratic authority the Secretary of Labor has sought now for five years in one crudely drafted Kerr-Dies-Dickstein-Coolidge bill after another—14 drafts in all—that have been pressed on Congress annually by her for the purpose of allowing lawbreakers to remain in the United States.

The bill should be defeated in fairness to law-abiding and law-observing aliens and in the interest of government by written law instead of by autocratic persons.

Presents Invention.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a new and added menace to any attacking fleet, I present to the Army and Navy my invention which will produce a smoke screen from bombs dropped at great altitudes out of range of fire and exploded at any desired height above the fleet to form a curtain of dense white smoke.

Hidden and protected by this curtain of smoke, our bombing planes can swoop down through this screen to deliver their heavy depth torpedoes practically on top or alongside of the ships. In an instant they can disappear above the screen before their range can be found or fire delivered. J. E. MEYERS,

Ireland's Tolerance.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: While religious intolerance prevails throughout Europe it is good to find one bright spot over there. I refer to Ireland in electing the son of a Protestant minister as their first President under the new constitution.

Recently in Dublin a Jewish minister, the Rev. A. Gudansky, speaking to his congregation, said: "Providence in its great mercy has thrown in our lot with a people whose creeds of faith and liberty shine forth brilliantly from the annals of its sad but glorious history—a people that may justly take pride in the fact that not a drop of Jewish blood has ever been shed on its soil.

What a beautiful tribute to the tolerance of the Irish people!

JOSEPH M. OWENS.
Washington, April 24.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the midst of the world's midnight of wars and frantic hatreds, it is wholesome and refreshing to turn to the example Ireland has just given of the spirit of tolerance, fraternity and good will that alone can lead the nations back to sanity and peace.

Ireland, restored and become again a nation after 700 years of enforced subjection, signalizes its deserving of a place in advanced civilization by choosing as its first chief magistrate a Protestant to head the government of a population over 90 per cent Catholic.

The choice of Protestant Dr. Hyde to be the first President of Ireland reveals in a white light how monstrous is the falsehood upon which Great Britain prevents the return of Ulster to its due and proper place in the Irish Republic. All men can see now and finally that it is not because of any religious differences among the people that Ulster is kept out.

Honor For Franklin?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why is Benjamin Franklin's birthday overlooked by the Government when Jefferson's was commemorated by Presidential proclamation?

Instead of placing Lincoln's likeness on five-cent pieces and Franklin's face on the pennies, as patriotically urged by many societies, the Treasury Department is putting Jefferson on the nickel. The Postoffice Department is demoting Franklin to half-cent stamps and featuring Jefferson on the much-used threes.

In the Constitutional Convention of 1787, it was Franklin's wise counsel and compromises that helped to make our Constitution acceptable to the delegates and States and also, later, workable. It is probably fortunate that Jefferson was overseas as our Ambassador to France. The Department of State in a tribute to Franklin's memory ("The Amazing Benjamin Franklin," now out of print) has well stated:

"Not until 1785 did Congress grant his request to be allowed to return, and appointed Thomas Jefferson to relieve him. Jefferson, when asked if he replaced Franklin, replied, 'No one can replace him, sir; I am only his successor!' This may well stand as the verdict of posterity."

Minton's Proposal.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Is Senator Minton trying to make himself ridiculous by urging that newspapers be restrained from utterances not favorable to the New Deal? Whether such was the intent, that is the effect.

He claims readers do not go beyond the headlines. Senator Minton is asked to look about the park benches of Washington to see how thoroughly papers are read under the headlines by some of the 13,000,000 victims of the Roosevelt depression.

Let no raid like this endanger a free press. I don't blame the Dealers for wanting criticism suppressed. But when the Administration in power learns to keep its outbursts free from distortions of the advantages claimed won for the "Forgotten Man" will be time enough for proposals such as these.

More On District Suffrage.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The verse quoted below should have been included in my letter of April 28 and may, perhaps, satisfy Mr. J. R. Magill, who has made a very proper suggestion, but the actual translation of the original script seems to cover the case and to prove the soundness of the King's position:

"And the King further answered the people who lived in his city and among his palaces and his gardens, saying: 'And ye have not faith that I will rule my own city fairly and in proper manner for the good of all the people, why, therefore, should ye have a part in ruling the whole kingdom? Would ye not then also complain? Would the King's enemy act in a different manner?'"

FRED B. WOODARD.
Washington, April 30.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There seems to be a small number of persons in this fair city who, having surrendered all desire to be American citizens, see fit to call upon the rest of us to yield to a government of dictatorship.

Certain people seem to forget that this democratic country was itself born out of a struggle against oppressive living conditions, against taxation without representation, out of a fight for self-rule, out of a battle for a government responsive to the will of the people. And upon what ground do they warn us, these advocates of "remote control" government, these persons who believe that the farmers of Arkansas and the woodsmen of Oregon are better able to govern us than we? On the ground that once we had a government that became corrupt and ceased to fulfill its obligations to the people? That once, more than half a century ago, an attempt at a people's government failed?

Perhaps, on the basis of such evidence, it might also be well to inaugurate a drive for the abolition of all our existing governments. Perhaps we should forthwith delegate our rule back to the Georges of England. SUFFRAGER.
Washington, April 29.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: For 28 years I lived under the Czar of Russia and of course there was no thought of ever voting. Destiny brought me to Washington 28 years ago and, while I did not find the rights of citizens usurped as they had been under the Czar, I lived and longed for the time when I, as an American, should have the chance to cast a ballot. Today, for the first time in 56 years, I had that chance and it was a great thrill for one who has worked and helped in a humble way to build our great country.

As for the opponents of District suffrage, they seem to miss the point entirely. Their words sound like 1878, not 1938. What's behind their arguments? Only one thing—the race question. They forget that the Negro race has made tremendous progress in the last 50 years. The opponents don't seem to believe in our glorious Declaration of Independence, which sets forth that all men are born equal and are equally entitled to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

Let all Americans remember the glorious past of our Nation and refrain from injecting racial issues into present-day questions. It may be Negroes today, Poles tomorrow, Germans another day, and Jews later. Let us all stand together in these trying times, Americans all, regardless of color, race, nationality or political opinion.

SAMUEL SHINBERG.
Washington, April 30.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Some of the writers of your letters feel strongly that because the District of Columbia had a corrupt government from 1871 to 1874 it should not now be allowed to govern itself. No doubt that was the same reasoning Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin used.

But the government of 1874 would not have been changed, corrupt or not—we have stood for corruption elsewhere—if 29 of the 44 delegates had not been Negroes. The question of proper color representation in this city has been adequately settled, for instance, on the Board of Education by a gentlemen's agreement of three colored to six whites. It could be so arranged by the Democratic and Republican primaries, if the District is, as I presume it shall be, to be afflicted with parties if it gets the vote.

Personally I do not believe that full suffrage is the most logical solution for the peculiar position of the residents of the Capital of the United States. Nevertheless, we should have representation on the committees on Capitol Hill in some way. In spite of the nonattendance by other members of Congress some method whereby we could say how the money we are taxed for is used and our schools are run could surely be worked out.

Here's mud in the eyes of those afraid of bosses and machines! That there are Americans incapable of good self-government should not deprive us here and now of the right to vote. ANN HABECKER.

Quercus

DOWN on Twelfth street below Constitution avenue they have been cutting down a row of oak trees, so that the street can be widened. Now it is easy to indulge in sentiment about trees (Joyce Kilmer did not help matters any), but I think it is just as sensible and wholesome to go wild over a tree as over a pet cat or a pedigreed dog. Once there was a woman who kissed her cow, and her remarks have been put into Latin in an oft-quoted adage beginning "De gustibus . . ."

Now about these oaks. For a long time I have felt perhaps inordinate admiration for this row of trees. Probably there was nothing to be done to save them. They had to be sacrificed, I suppose, in the name of progress. Some of them had died anyway. After all, another row can be grown in half a century or so. And the Mall has lost so many fine old trees that a few more now don't seem to matter. I know, however, that many people, especially residents and workers in Southwest Washington, will note the passing of these oaks with sadness, for they have lost old friends. But let these friends not be slaughtered unceremoniously. Let us sing the Oak!

* * * *

There was a rousing song we used to sing in high school that first awakened, I believe, my admiration for the oak. It was called "The Brave Old Oak," and we sang it maestoso:

A song for the oak, the brave old oak,
Who hath ruled in the greenwood long;
Here's health and renown to his broad green crown,
And his fifty arms so strong.
There is fear in his frown when the sun goes down,
And the fire in the west fades out;
And he showeth his might on a wild midnight,
When the storms through his branches shout.

Then sing to the oak, the brave old oak,
Who hath stood in his pride so long;
And still flourish he, a hale green tree,
When a hundred years are gone.

A few pages farther on in our songbook was another good oak song, with a spirited tune unfortunately not here transcribable:

Behold the monarch of the woods!
The mighty old oak tree;
He braves the raging of the storm,
On land or rolling sea;
He waves his branches decked with green,
In summer's golden glow,
And ivy clothes his leafless form
Through winter's frost and snow.
King Time, the conqueror of all,
He boldly doth defy,
For green and hearty will he stand
When ages have gone by.

The oak, says the botanist, is a member of the beech family, genus Quercus, leaves not straight-veined, entire, crenate, lobed, or pinnatifid; fruit an acorn (1-seeded nut) partially inclosed in a cuplike involucre; staminate flowers in slender pendulous aments; pistillate flowers borne singly or in clusters. But that, of course, does not tell us what the oak is. The botanists do not tell us that the oak is a god, and has been sacred from time immemorial. We shall have to go elsewhere for such oaklore.

We may go, first of all, to Sir James Frazer's great work "The Golden Bough" for a chapter on the worship of the oak. "The very name of Druids," says Sir James, "is believed by good authorities to mean no more than 'oak men' . . . A god of the oak, the thunder, and the rain was worshiped of old by all the main branches of the Aryan stock in Europe, and was indeed the chief deity of their pantheon."

Then we may go to the poets: William Cowper wrote a long imaginative piece to the Yardley Oak, a tree 23 feet in girth that stood near his house in Buckinghamshire and was said to have been planted by the daughter of William the Conqueror. Wordsworth wrote a sonnet on the Oak of Guernica, which dated back to the reign of Ferdinand and Isabell, who under this tree swore to the Biscayans to maintain their liberty. Tennyson gave us a narrative poem called "The Talking Oak." Edna St. Vincent Millay reminds us that there is a great deal to be learned from oak leaves:

They have boasted to the nudging frost and to the two-and-thirty winds that they will never die,
Never even grow old.
(These are those russet leaves that cling,
To the dormant bough, in the wood knee-deep in snow the only colored thing.)

Yes, there is plenty to be learned of oaks, not from the botanies but from song and myth and legend. Somehow these make us feel that the city street after all is not the place for the oak, for it is pretty hard to set up a sacred grove amid the fumes of petrol, even in Washington, D. C.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler.

Pugilism And Nazism.

IT IS a little too early, but every day I turn to the sport page expecting to read that Joe Louis, the heavyweight champion of the world, has broken a hand in a training contest, necessitating the postponement of his fight with Max Schmeling, the hero of the Hitler youth. This really cannot be expected to happen until about the first or second week in June, as the date set for the struggle is June 22.

PEGLER.

After that Louis would need two months for mending, for this would be a very serious fracture and his recovery would bring us deep into the month of August. And after that, according to tradition, the champion would be entitled to a tune-up contest in which to test whether the injury had healed sufficiently to permit him to do himself justice in a contest involving the highest bauble in fistiana's realm. Training for the tune-up contest would require four weeks, thus throwing the tune-up bout back to the middle of September. And then, in simple justice, Louis would need two weeks' rest before going into training again for the meeting with Schmeling, which would take four weeks more.

That would defer the championship fight until November, which is football season and no time of the year for the presentation of an outdoor prize fight as every practical sportsman knows. So the hero of the Hitler youth would have to be chivalrous and bide his time until the summer of next year.

• • • • •

THERE MIGHT BE some who would doubt the genuineness of a broken hand in view of the fact that Schmeling knocked out Louis the last time. But the injury could be substantiated by X-ray photographs, of which there is a large file available in the hospital libraries at all times. In fact, a broken hand could be authenticated by an X-ray photograph right now, and a fracture would be consistent with the best traditions of pugilism.

The Nazis of Germany and our own Nazis, of course, would regard this as a dirty trick, but pugilism is very much like Nazism, and it may be laid down that there is no trick so dirty but that a Nazi would play it on the other party if he had a chance.

Moreover, Schmeling himself has set precedents which would justify the fracture of one of Louis' hands.

Soon after Schmeling came to this country he was matched to fight a slashing tiger named Whoops O'Malley in Boston. Mr. O'Malley was called Whoops because he had a rather pronounced development of his left brisket and the customers would emit falsetto cries of "Whoops" whenever a opponent struck him there. He was stout and pugnacious, however, and Mr. Schmeling developed some diplomatic equivalent of the broken hand, declining to have traffic with him.

Later on Schmeling won the bauble, as it is called, by a special favor of Jim Farley and the New York Prize Fight Commission, which declared the bauble to be at stake in his contest with Jack Sharkey when obviously it was not. He promised to give Sharkey a return match as a return favor to Mr. Farley and the commission, but returned to Germany, and the next year fought Willie Stribling instead. He knew he could beat Stribling, but he had doubts about Sharkey, because Sharkey had been striking him with furious lefts and rights to the face and body, as the saying goes, when he won their previous match, and the bauble, on a foul.

He also postponed and eventually completely avoided Primo Carnera, who looked rather difficult at that stage, and when he was ultimately crowded into a ring with Sharkey for his long-deferred return match he lost the bauble.

So a fracture or a run around of some kind seems imperative in the case of the proposed Louis-Schmeling fight if the finest traditions of pugilism and Nazism are not to be lowered into the dust and Schmeling's own precedents are to be respected.

• • • • •

THE Prize Fight Commission, which was a pattern for the Nazi dictatorship long before Hitler rose to power, might reasonably forbid the fight on political grounds, having stopped one some years ago on social grounds. That was a rank case of class discrimination in which Enzo Fiermonte, the stepfather of John Jacob Astor, was refused permission to fight Slapsie Maxie Rosenbloom for the light-heavyweight bauble. Determined to keep the grand old game democratic, the commissioners ruled that no stepfather of John Jacob Astor ever should have a chance to win the second highest bauble in the realm.

The beautiful Fascist thus was forced to make his living by other talents, which he was able to do, being a versatile athlete, although he used to mope around the office of his manager, Mr. James J. Johnston, saying, "I wanna earna my leeving fighting. Theis is a helova way to earna my leeving."

As the hero of the Nazi youth, Schmeling should be treated according to his own precedents and an adaption of David Harum's version of the Golden Rule, "Do unto a Nazi as he would do unto you and do it fust."

Henry Lets Us Down.

("To the amazement of all who had awaited his speech, Mr. Ford said, 'We are all on the spot,' and sat down"—News item.)

"Oh, tell us what you think," we cried,
"You must have lively views;
Let down your hair and open up—
Say anything you choose."
"You must have much to say," we said,
"Come, make it good and hot!" . . .
But Henry simply cleared his throat
And said, "We're on the spot!"

II.

"A breathless world now gives an ear—
Speak out and do your stuff.
Unburden, Henry! Loosen up!
Our cry's 'Lay on, MacDuff.'"
"You must have much to say," we thought,
"So come and say a lot" . . .
Said Henry simply, "Gentlemen,
We all are on the spot."

III.

This man has been all through the mill,
He knows what it's about,
We reasoned as we whispered, "Hank,
Come on and sock it out!"
Both barrels he will let us have,
We fancied, but Great Scott!
He uttered this and nothing more:
"I think we're on the spot."

IV.

"Oh, boy, will he have lots to say!"
We thought, and grabbed a chair
To hear him thump the table and
To watch him curl our hair;
We never felt such great suspense
In story, play or plot . . .
But Henry said, "Stick by your guns.
We all are on the spot."

V.

Vast millions rushed for papers so
They'd quickly get the news
How Henry had let go his punch
And uttered flaming views;
"He'll tell 'em," they had all agreed,
"And every 'i' he'll dot" . . .
But Henry said, "All I can say
Is that we're on the spot."

VI.

Oh, Mr. Ford, how could you, sir?
Why did you leave us flat?
With expectations running high,
You did not come to bat;
We were all set for much hot stuff,
Our hopes have gone to pot;
We rise and simply say to you,
"You left us on the spot."

Correspondent Sees France Reassuming Position In European Chess Game, With Italian Rapprochement In Prospect.

By Europax.

Paris.

UNDERLYING the Anglo-French conversations in London this week-end is a crucial attempt to put relations between France and Britain on a new basis, and to rebuild European peace on this altered foundation. France being the principal link between England and the Continent, British policy in Europe is closely connected with the French government's position. Franco-British diplomatic relations are, therefore, inevitably of paramount importance to world peace.

Superficially, it might seem that diplomatic matters have never been so settled or so simple between London and Paris. France has in effect a strictly defensive alliance with Great Britain, and for some months now this accord has been implemented by frequent contacts between the military and air general staffs. It is a bit hard to see what more France could want.

But in fact the situation is far more complex and by no means definitely settled. From the French viewpoint, Franco-British relations are inseparable from the whole problem of Europe's balance of power. This European equilibrium has, in French eyes, been modified by recent developments.

Austrian Coup Hit Italians Especially.

AUSTRIA'S absorption by Germany is, of course, the main alteration of the diplomatic map. This change not only affected Central Europe and France, but Italy as well. The presence of German troops on the Brenner has undoubtedly had the effect of making Mussolini stop and think. And this is beyond question the principal reason for the success of the Anglo-Italian negotiations and the background against which both the Anglo-French talks and France's conversations with Italy must be viewed.

Britain, taking the initiative, is playing a bold game. Premier Neville Chamberlain is convinced that now or never is the time to pry Italy loose from the Rome-Berlin axis. Or at least, if this is not possible at present with Hitler's visit to Rome scheduled for early May, to dilute the axis by transforming it first into a London-Paris-Rome triangle, and then later into a four-cornered arrangement bringing in Berlin.

In other words, the British government is endeavoring to conciliate the dictators and to englobe them gradually into an accord with France and Britain, thus substituting for the current trend toward two hostile blocs, a policy of collaboration between the four principal powers of Western Europe.

It cannot be denied that, despite the tremendous obstacles to be overcome before such a plan can succeed, the prospect of its being tried has brought a detente. For weeks after the German troops marched into Austria the atmosphere was heavy and the horizon black. Lately, however, the diplomatic barometer has been rising. Europe breathes a bit more freely.

There are two main reasons for this change. One is the Anglo-Italian agreement. The other—perhaps even more important—is the brighter outlook in France under the new government headed by Premier Edouard Daladier.

It is too early to say whether either of these two factors will prove permanent. The first Anglo-Italian "Gentlemen's Agreement," concluded early in 1937, did not last even a week. This one seems to be made of stronger stuff, but the test of its fiber will come later. As to the lasting qualities of a French cabinet, any prophecy is hazardous in the face of the mathematical fact that the average life of governments in France is a bare four months!

Outlook For Daladier Government Encouraging.

NEVERTHELESS, there are indications that the Daladier cabinet has particularly good prospects of staying in office until fall, at any rate. Essentially, the present ministry comes pretty close to representing "the average Frenchman," that elusive yet undoubtedly existent typical citizen who is so well defined by Andre Siegfried as having "his heart on the left but his pocketbook on the right." After almost two years of the Popular Front, his sympathies are leaning, not perhaps to the right, but at least toward the center.

For most French governments of the past 10 or 12 years, the League of Nations and collective security really meant little more than a convenient screen for a defensive encirclement of Germany. Under the patronage of the League Covenant, and of the Locarno accords, France had alliances or "understandings" with Belgium, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Yugoslavia, and she was co-operating closely with Italy in maintaining the independence of Austria.

France's erstwhile network of alliances with which Germany was encircled has now been badly unraveled. Nor is that all; Hitler has gone pretty far toward turning the tables completely. In the spring of 1935, before the Ethiopian affair antagonized Italy, France had only one frontier to defend. Now she has three. In addition to the Rhine, she must guard the Alps and the Pyrenees as well.

In place of a Franco-Italian accord amounting virtually to a military alliance, there is now the "Rome-Berlin axis." And instead of a friendly—and negligible—government in Spain, there is a troublesome "international civil war" under way, with the uncomfortable prospect of a Franco victory, which would be a nuisance to France at best and might very possibly become a grave peril if the Italians and Germans maintained naval and air bases there.

Furthermore, the Franco-Soviet pact, which for a time was hailed in France as a master stroke on the side of peace and the status quo, is now regarded as a questionable asset. The recent treason trials not only made Moscow extremely unpopular in France; they uncovered a state of rottenness in Russia that throws serious doubts on the military value of such an ally. Also, the pact with Russia is now being held against France, diplomatically, by England, by Italy, by Poland, by Belgium, and of course by Germany.

Recent Developments Forced Bonnet To Shift.

THIS FORMIDABLE list of reverses faced Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet when he arrived at the Quai d'Orsay. It is not exaggerated to say that he found an entirely new and different map of Europe, diplomatically, from that of his predecessors a year or two ago. Naturally, therefore, his policy could not be the same.

Almost the only solid element left in French foreign policy was the Franco-British alliance, and he logically began by building on this foundation. Like Neville Chamberlain, Foreign Minister Bonnet is an economist, a conservative (despite his political tag of "radical") and a "realist." His six months as ambassador in the United States have given him what might perhaps be called an Anglo-Saxon outlook on the international situation. Accordingly he was ready to fall in line with the British government's plans for muddling through the present tight place in European affairs in the attempt to preserve peace, or at least to postpone war till some more "convenient" time.

The Anglo-Italian accord was the cornerstone in this effort. In British eyes this agreement is intended, not perhaps to separate Rome from Berlin, but at least to open a door toward European cooperation which was tight shut so long as the tension between England and Italy continued. Smarting from the German slap on the Brenner, Signor Mussolini was glad to have this new avenue opened, though it is too soon to say whether he will go very far down it.

At any rate France, backing up Britain's endeavors, is now trying to bring about a rapprochement with Italy. Here again, Mussolini is willing to talk, but cautious about committing himself. For one thing, Spain must be settled first. For another, the visit of Hitler to Italy might introduce some new element into Italian policy.

So, for the moment, Europe pauses. The powers hesitate, ponder various possible paths. The outcome is uncertain. But at least France—out of the picture for so many months because of its internal troubles—seems to be getting a grip on itself and coming back into the great diplomatic chess game, bringing a bit of stability into the troubled European scene.

Next In Spain?

By Charles A. Thomson

Victors Will Face Herculean Task.

WITH A heritage of debt and destruction, "any new regime in Spain will face a herculean task," according to a survey of the Spanish civil war published today by the Foreign Policy Association.

The report, written by Charles A. Thomson, points out that the chief wealth of Spain is agriculture and that "to raise its masses from the poverty level, it must increase agricultural production—which almost inevitably involves some measure of agrarian reform." Another problem which "bears the seeds of future strife is the newly stimulated regional sentiment of Catalonia and the Basque provinces, which will not be easily crushed, even by programs of enforced centralization."

"Complete triumph for Franco," the author declares, "may strengthen reactionary and intransigent tendencies, and encourage policies of repression rather than conciliation. Should the Nationalists prove unable to free the country promptly of the presence of foreign troops, their political difficulties will be further intensified. In any case, Franco's authoritarian state will be confronted with a far more severe test of its claims to disciplined unity and constructive advance than that faced by Nazi Germany or Fascist Italy."

• • • •

IN DISCUSSING the political differences which underlie the surface unity, Mr. Thomson says that "the progress of the conflict has been attended by a shift in the political balance to the right, in part an apparent result of British influence. Within Nationalist Spain the influence of "extremist" Falangistas was curbed. Among the loyalists, the more conservative elements—Republicans, right-wing Socialists and Communists—have undermined the position of Anarcho-Syndicalists, left-wing Socialists and the POUM.

"Both sides have witnessed a resurgence of nationalist sentiment, directed on the one hand against Italian and on the other against Soviet influence. Within the two factions there has also been a trend toward restoration of the old bureaucracy, as well as the police and politicians of pre-civil-war days. Had a stalemate resulted in the field, these elements might have cast their weight toward political compromise and a negotiated peace.

• • • •

"WHILE THE COMMUNISTS have played a major role in the government coalition, the republican regime has not been 'communistic' in the sense of the loose charges often directed against it. The Spanish Communists, their prestige enhanced by Soviet aid, have exercised a decisive influence, whose importance, however, has varied from time to time. But in the social and economic field they have been 'reformist' and anti-revolutionary rather than revolutionary, and their influence has been consistently cast on the conservative side. In general, recent tendencies within republican Spain have pointed toward abandonment of social capitalism.

"Nor is nationalist Spain as thoroughly Fascist as it is sometimes pictured. An insurgent victory is expected to result in the imposition of some sort of authoritarian state. But it is not yet clear whether it will be headed by a monarch or by Gen. Franco. To date, political life on the insurgent side has been much more effectively regimented than economic activities. In any case, the army officers are likely to prove the dominant factor for some time in the new state. But in the long run they will have to make terms with their old-time allies—landowners, clergy and monarchists—and to an important degree with the new force of the Fascist phalanx, whose dynamic growth has been one of the most significant developments of the civil war."

Most Popular Plays

By Merrill Denison

Three Leaders Over 50 Years.

ASK any well informed theatergoer to name America's most popular plays of the last half century and he will invariably mention "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and "Abie's Irish Rose." Given another try, he may recall old favorites like "The Pirate Secretary," "Way Down East," or "The Two Orphans."

None of these answers is correct. The most popular plays of the last 50 years have been "Among the Breakers," "Mr. Bob," and "Aaron Slick from Punkin Crick." Any one of these classics of the crossroads has established a performance record which makes even that of "Abie" seem very small-time stuff, indeed.

• • • •

"AMONG THE BREAKERS" is by long odds the most popular drama this country has ever known. It is a simple heart-tugger in two acts about a lighthouse keeper and was written in 1872 by one George W. Baker, famous in his day as the "Shakespeare of the Vestry." Published by the Walter H. Baker Co. of Boston that same year, this great Sunday school favorite had sold, up to the end of 1937, almost one million copies.

As "The Breakers" is a nonroyalty play, no exact count of the number of performances it has enjoyed is possible, but Theodore Johnson, the present head of the Baker firm, estimates that these must be approximately 125,000. Compare this outlandish figure with those for Broadway's greatest runs, and one begins to get an inkling of the prodigious character of this other theater: "Abie's Irish Rose," 2,532 performances; "Lightnin'," 1,291; "Tobacco Road," 1,500, and still going; "The Breakers," 125,000!

• • • • •

FOLLOWING "The Breakers" as the all-time dramatic favorite comes another Baker play, "Mr. Bob." This is a two-act comedy of double mistaken identity, written in the early '90s by Rachel M. Baker, daughter of the Shakespeare of the Vestry. A quarter of a million copies of her appealing drama have already been sold at 35 cents the copy.

And third in point of sales and performances comes America's most successful play of the postwar decades: "Aaron Slick from Punkin Crick," by Lieut. Beale Cormack. First produced in 1919, "this great rural laugh classic has played to more than 25,000 enraptured audiences in every hamlet, town, city, metropolis and most of the crossroads in these United States."

A NLRB Decision.

(From the Wheeling Intelligencer.)

No action of the National Labor Board, in the judgment of this newspaper, more clearly reveals the true character of that tribunal than its decision in the case of the Eagle Manufacturing Co. of Wellsburg, W. Va.

Some days ago, the board ordered this company to withdraw recognition of the Eagle Employes Alliance as the representative of Eagle employes for purposes of collective bargaining. The order went further. In effect it directed the company to cease interfering with and dominating the administration of the union, contributing financial or other support to it, or in any manner interfering with, restraining or coercing employes in their right to self organization.

According to all of the testimony, there was no coercion, no intimidation of any kind, no domination of the union by the employer, no contributions by the employer to the union, nothing, in short, to indicate company interference of any kind.

Even the labor board admits that the Eagle Employes Alliance is a labor union within the meaning of the Wagner act; that it was organized in July, 1937, at a meeting of employes at which no company officials were present and in which no company influence was exerted, and that a secret vote was taken which resulted in unanimous acceptance of the Eagle Employes Alliance as the bargaining agency for Eagle employes.

Clearly, the labor board is not interested in giving effect to untrammeled labor organization.

which the senator announced he would fight.

Representative Henry George Teigan (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota, also addressed the Socialist group with a strong attack on the neutrality policies of the country.

Teigan also urged a united movement among all labor parties, adding, "If we had an economic system today which would give the full fruits of labor to the workers, we would be free of this unemployment problem."

G. O. P. Hopes Boosted.

Salt Lake City, May 1 (AP).—Herbert Hoover, in a between trains interview, said today Gov. Philip La Follette's proposed third party may be the wedge for returning the Republican Party to power.

The former President is en route to Oklahoma City and Chicago.

"If the Republicans continue to stand together as they have recently, and the liberal and conservative Democrats continue to widen the breach between them as they have recently, we should be able to regain leadership," he said.

Hoover said he planned to speak at Oklahoma's "grass root" convention May 5 on "The Dangerous Road for Democracy," a topic based on his recent trip to Europe.

La Follette to Campaign.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, May 1 (AP).—Gov. Philip La Follette, of Wisconsin, today said he expects personally to campaign in Iowa this year for National Progressive Party Congressional and State ticket candidates.

The Governor returned to Madison, Wis., today after two days of speeches and conferences with liberal leaders on the question of organizing his new-born national party in the Tall-corn State.

"From expressions of people I have talked with, it seems reasonably clear that there will be a National Progressive ticket in Iowa in 1938," he said.

La Follette added that any ticket tinkering with the present Farmer-Labor State slate would be a question for Iowans to decide:

"The Progressive Party is not promoting candidates," he commented.

Support in California.

San Francisco, May 1 (AP).—Directors of the Progressive Commonwealth Federation today voted "complete approval" of recently announced plans by Gov. Philip La Follette of Wisconsin for a new political party.

The federation, which calls itself "the 'steering group' within the Progressive Party of California," asked La Follette for "official recognition as the California division of the National Progressives of America."

A pledge of co-operation by the Progressive Party of California also was sent to La Follette by its executive committee.

It was announced both the federation and the party would assist La Follette's projected speaking tour of the State with a view of solidifying Progressive Party forces.

His Brother Speaks.

Copyright, 1938, by the United Press.

Senator Robert M. La Follette (Progressive), Wisconsin, said last night that formation of the new third party, the National Progressives of America, by his brother, Gov. Philip La Follette, of Wisconsin, was forced by failure of the two major parties to fulfill campaign pledges.

"I doubt," he said, "if there are any who belong to the old parties who are willing to assert, without qualification, what kind of Democrats and Republicans they are. There are no clear-cut issues between them now and there have been none since 1932 except on questions of Presidential candidates."

"In 1932, 1934 and again in 1936," he said, "the people gave the Democrats a mandate to solve the Nation's problems but, despite overwhelming majorities in Congress, internal fights within the party have blocked the entire program." He added that a sharp schism in Republican ranks had prevented that party from getting together on anything more concrete than the Democrats have offered.

From Both Parties.

In response to fears voiced by liberals such as Senator George W. Norris (Independent), of Nebraska, and Senator Sherman Minton (Democrat), Indiana, that the party will split New Deal ranks and result in election of a "reactionary" President in 1940, La Follette conceded freely that the National Progressives might draw strong support from factions in both parties.

"I think that the anomalous situation of having reactionary and liberal elements in a political party prevents achievement of any thoroughgoing program," he said.

"I don't think that anybody will join the new party who is not in sympathy with its principles, thereby preventing possibility of factional fights immediately."

He said that the "real significance" of the new movement is the speed with which organizers can press it throughout the country on the basis of popular clamor, but that it is "impossible to predict its scope aside from the Wisconsin and Minnesota" elections this year.

"Naturally," he said, "the inception of this movement will be in the more liberal Northwestern States, although by this I do not wish to convey that it is to be designed on a sectionalism basis."

Pastor Plays Hooky To Fish on Sunday

Springfield, Vt., May 1 (AP).—Some of his congregation objected, but the Rev. Lawrence Larrowe, young Methodist minister, today observed the opening of the trout season by leaving a substitute minister in his place—and catching eight fish.

Then he attended services at another church and later remarked: "When I look back over the day, I feel that I have spent a Christian Sunday."

Dodd, Hutchins Talk at Parley On Education

National Council Opens Its 21st Annual Session Here Friday.

The twenty-first annual conference of the American Council on Education will open at the Mayflower Hotel Friday, it was announced yesterday.

Karl W. Bigelow, council director of teacher education, will discuss the education of teachers in a democracy at the opening meeting, scheduled for 10 a. m. Friday. Dr. William E. Dodd, former United States ambassador to Germany, will speak on "The University and the Totalitarian State," at a dinner meeting Friday evening.

Speakers Saturday morning will be C. C. Carmichael, chancellor of Vanderbilt University; Alan Valentine, president of the University of Rochester, N. Y., and John A. Sexson, superintendent of schools at Pasadena, Calif.

The council will hold a joint meeting Saturday afternoon with members of the Middle Eastern Library Association. Dorothy Canfield Fisher, author, will discuss schooling for youth in the light of adult education and Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, will speak on education and the improvement of society.

The library association's one-day conference will open at 10 a. m. Saturday in the Auditorium of the National Archives Building. Speakers will be R. D. W. Connor, chief of archives, and Ralph G. Dunbar, head of the library service division, United States Office of Education.

Former Ambassador Dodd, and the Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, regent of the Georgetown foreign service School, will address the final meeting at the Carlton Hotel Saturday evening.

Florida Registers Record Vote List

Jacksonville, Fla., May 1 (AP).—Registration lists, closing yesterday, indicated an unprecedented vote in Florida's primary Tuesday, where the five-man Democratic senatorial contest holds the national spotlight because many consider it the first proving ground this year of New Deal popularity.

Estimates of the expected vote range upward to 450,000. Florida's previous record was 328,000 in 1936.

United States Senator Claude Pepper, New Dealer, seeks election after serving two years of the unexpired term of the late Senator Duncan U. Fletcher.

Opposing Pepper are former Gov. Dave Sholtz, Representative J. Mark Wilcox, T. C. Merchant, weekly newspaper publisher, and Finley Moore, an abstract man.

Labor

buked Secretary Wallace and termed "fatally defective" the hearings on which the Secretary had based his order reducing fees that could be charged by operators who buy and sell cattle on a commission basis. Chief Justice Hughes held the Secretary should not have accepted the findings of other officials as his own, without giving commission agents an opportunity to contest them, and warned that in administrative proceedings of a quasi-judicial nature there should be the "rudimentary principles of fair play."

Contest Held Barred.

In the Republic Steel, Ford and some other cases, it has been contended trial examiners for the board omitted their customary "intermediate reports" while the hearings were in progress, thereby depriving the compnaies of the unexpected preview of recommendations on which the board decisions were to be based. The companies were thus deprivod, it was said, of any opportunity to contest the examiners' findings before the board itself.

Officials of the board yesterday said that few of the board's decisions were in danger because of this alleged fault. They held fully 98 per cent of its rulings would comply with the high court's requirements.

Charles Fahy, general counsel for the board, Saturday asked the United States District Court at Philadelphia to withhold action on Republic Steel's petition for an injunction against a board order and revealed plans to reopen the case in view of last Monday's court pronouncement.

Senator Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska, who has steadily urged revision of the Wagner act and changes in the personnel of the board, said he was glad to see the "retreat" of the board and that its decision to reopen some of the cases was "a very healthy sign."

"I am glad to see the board has seen the light of reason," he said. "I think some amendments of the act are necessary, but the chief trouble has been the administration of the act by the board. If it settles down, and becomes fair and unbiased, reasonable amendments may be worked out.

"There has been a growing demand throughout the country for the repeal of the act, due more to bad administration than to the law itself."

Of the Kansas City decision, Burke said:

"I think the courts, whenever they have the chance, will see that both parties in labor relations live up to their obligations. The board apparently has not been doing that."

Faby, returning to Washington yesterday, declared:

"Although we believe strongly we are perfectly sound in all these cases, nevertheless several objections have been raised that the companies involved have not been given every opportunity to be heard before the board.

"We are going to give them what they are asking for. Thus we will get away from collateral issues and be sure to get decisions on the merits of the cases and not on procedure."

Fahy said in the Ford and Republic Steel cases there had been elaborate hearings for months. The defendants knew the charges against them and complaints had been filed, he added. He pointed out that the board's procedure had never been found invalid by the Supreme Court, where all ten NLRB cases thus far taken before it had been decided in favor of the board.

In 20 more cases decided by circuit courts the board had been upheld, he said.

The general counsel indicated if the cases were reopened the board certainly would not start all over again or cover the same ground covered in previous hearings.

The reinstatement of discharged employes was not open to procedural objection, he said, although Republic Steel attorneys have said the board's order to reinstate 5,000 men presented a development which they could not have anticipated in the hearings.

After a wedding trip, the couple will live in New York.

Mrs. Meeks Heads Group Arranging Congress Dinner

Mrs. James A. Meeks, wife of Representative Meeks, of Illinois, is in charge of the committee completing plans for the annual dinner of the Wardman Park Congressional Circle, scheduled to take place tomorrow evening in the dragon room of the hotel.

Mrs. Claude A. Fuller, wife of Representative Fuller, of Arkansas, is chairman of the executive committee of the organization, and is assisting Mrs. Meeks. Others on the committee are Mrs. A. L. Bulwinkle, Mrs. Robert L. Doughton, Mrs. Paul H. Maloney, Mrs. John H. Overton, Mrs. Robert F. Rich and Mrs. Fred Vinson.

Donnellys to Live in D. C. After Trip

On their return from a wedding trip through Virginia, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Alvan Donnelly will reside in Washington. Their marriage took place on Saturday, April 23, at the Sacred Heart Church in Bayside, Long Island.

The bride, the former Miss Eleanor Florence Taylor, is the daughter of Mrs. Francis A. Lowe and the late Capt. Reginald E. Taylor, U. S. A. Mr. Donnelly is the son of Mrs. Walter M. Donnelly and the late Maj. Walter M. Donnelly, U. S. A.

Miss Frances Farmer, of Baltimore, Md., who was a classmate of the bride at American University, was her maid of honor and only attendant. William Heath, of Washington, was best man and the ushers were Carl Beckwith, of this city, and William Kappy, of Flushing, N. Y.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her stepfather, Francis A. Lowe, wore a lace dress in a dark pink shade with pink accessories and a large leghorn hat. She carried Talisman roses.

Party to Honor Lisa Gardiner

A garden party will be given tonight at 9 o'clock at the King-Smith Playhouse, when the committee for the Washington National Ballet holds a reception for Miss Lisa Gardner, director of the Ballet. The affair will be under the sponsorship of Mrs. Roosevelt.

The reception and the program will take place in the theater itself, and afterward the guests will be invited to the lantern-lit garden, where, at tiny tables, refreshments will be served.

Miss Gardiner will be assisted in receiving the guests by Mrs. Atherton Macondray, Mrs. John Magruder, Miss Cecil Lester Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gregor, Edward Potter, Miss Grace Fox, Mrs. Ben S. Fisher, Mrs. Herbert E. Flynn, Mrs. John Putnam Marble, Mrs. Woodlief Thomas and Mrs. Edward T. Willson.

Among those who will attend the reception and the program of dances by members of the Washington National Ballet are Admiral and Mrs. Ralston Holmes, Capt. and Mrs. Robert Munroe, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Finkenstaedt, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Piggot, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Burchard, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Banfield and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bernard Tate.

Also Mrs. Demarest Lloyd, Mr. and Mrs. James Cunningham Rogers, Mrs. D. Buchanan Merryman, Mrs. Granger Blair, Mrs. Alfred Tawresey, Miss Agnes Tawresey, Mrs. Alfred Lowry, Mrs. Frank P. Howard, Miss Marie Hall, Miss Lucy Howard and Paul Wilstach.

Envoy to Entertain.

The Minister of Norway and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne will entertain members of the legation staff tomorrow evening at the opening of the International Ice Carnival at the Shoreham.

Miss Widome Becomes Bride Of Dr. Nimetz

Rites Unite Graduate and Senior Student at Medical School.

Miss Blanche Widome, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Widome, was married at 1 o'clock yesterday to Dr. Aaron Nimetz, son of Mrs. Jennie Nimetz and the late Abe Nimetz, of this city.

The ceremony took place under a canopy of palms and lilies in the Carlton room of the Carlton Hotel, the Rev. Solomon H. Metz officiating.

The bride wore an afternoon gown of Molyneux blue crepe with Dubonnet accessories and a corsage of white orchids and lilies of the valley. Her only attendant was her cousin, Miss Florence Kressfeld, who wore dusty rose crepe with a corsage of gardenias and lilies of the valley. Max Nimetz served as his brother's best man.

A luncheon and reception followed the ceremony. Among the out-of-town buests were Miss Louise Widome, Harry Widome and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Horowitz, of Pittsburgh; Mrs. Lawrence Metz, of Youngstown, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Murray Keshonover, Mr. and Mrs. William Rubin, Mrs. Leah Kantrowitz, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Levine, Miss Louise Feinstein and Dr. and Mrs. Henry Blum, of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. Saul Kantrowitz, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Kantrowitz and the Misses Adeline and Jean Kantrowitz, of Hartford, Conn.

Mrs. Nimetz was graduated from George Washington University and now is completing a course at the school of medicine there. Beginning July 1, she will be a member of the interne staff of Garfield Memorial Hospital. She is a member of Phi Sigma Sigma and of Alpha Epsilon Iota medical sorority.

Dr. Nimetz received both his A. B. and M. D. degrees from George Washington University. He is a member of the faculty of the pediatrics department of the George Washington University School of Medicine, in addition to being attending physician of the children's department at Gallinger Municipal Hospital and assistant attendant physician at Children's Hospital. He is a member of Phi Lambda Kappa.

Dr. Robertson, Wife to Leave in June to Visit England

Dr. David Allan Robertson, president of Goucher College, and Mrs. Robertson will leave their Baltimore home the middle of June to sail for England, where they will join their son, David Allan Robertson, jr., who has spent this year in Trinity College, Cambridge, as a Henry fellow.

Mrs. Robertson has issued invitations to a reception May 17 for the junior and senior classes of Goucher College.

Jewish Women To Meet Today

Takoma Park Club Meets Tomorrow

17 New Members Will Be Guests of Honor.

Seventeen new members will be guests of honor at a meeting of the Takoma Park Women's Club tomorrow at Town Hall on Carroll avenue. Following the luncheon, Mrs. Lillian Tinkham, monologuist, will give readings, accompanied at the piano by Grace Pratt, and Arsenio Calle, guitarist, will play.

Election of officers and annual reports will be features of the business meeting.

Each of the 12 tables at the luncheon will be decorated in a different pastel color.

The flowers for the meeting will be furnished and arranged by the members of the garden section, of which Mrs. John N. Quinn is chairman. Mrs. Harry E. Dodge is chairman of the luncheon with the following hostesses: Mrs. W. C. Magathan, Mrs. Walter G. Mitchell, Mrs. Ernest Crandall, Mrs. Sidney A. Anderson, Mrs. John Hartman, Mrs. Frederick Blackburn, Mrs. Eugene Bond, Mrs. Lewis Jones, Mrs. W. McAinsh, Mrs. R. S. Washburn, Mrs. Robert W. Buckner, Mrs. Harry C. Hensley, Mrs. M. C. Goldsworthy and Mrs. C. G. Royle.

The 17 new members will be seated at a special table. The address of welcome and introductions will be made by Mrs. Walter P. Harman, president.

About The Town

With Dudley Harmon

OUR wandering former Ambassador at Large, Norman H. Davis, at last is going to settle down, and has chosen nearby Alexandria as the spot. Mr. Davis, who must be thoroughly sick even of the best hotels by this time, has purchased the Smoot house at 804 Prince street, and with Mrs. Davis, the newly appointed chairman of the American Red Cross, will make his permanent home there.

DUDLEY HARMON.

This house is one of the few places in Alexandria which never have sheltered George Washington, Lafayette or Robert E. Lee. Lacking completely in any historical interest, it is nevertheless a large and handsome residence, of red brick with a formal garden. There is also a conservatory. Judge Ewin L. Davis, brother of the new owner, lives in the old Carlin house at 215 North Washington street nearby.

Mr. Davis has bobbed in and out of Washington frequently in recent years and served almost 20 years as Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and later as Undersecretary of State.

• • • •

THERE is an aura of glamour these days about the home of Mr. and Mrs. Percival S. Ridsdale, of 1847 Lamont street, where Actress Jean Muir, of Hollywood, has arrived for a visit. Lucky Mr. and Mrs. Ridsdale are uncle and aunt of the movie star.

The neighbors will be lucky if they catch even a glimpse of Miss Muir, however, for she is here for a very informal visit which she hopes will include a big rest. She recently returned from England, where she starred in a new play by J. B. Priestly, and will go back to London shortly to do a picture. She has just finished a week's engagement as the star in Maxwell Anderson's play, "High Tor," produced in Baltimore.

Miss Muir is a cousin of Mrs. Edwin Somers, the former Miss Patricia Ridsdale.

TRAVELERS returned from Green Spring Valley near Baltimore report that this section was very, very subdued yesterday until late in the afternoon, owing to the heavy social activities the night before—the Maryland Hunt Cup.

They tell us that the Hunt Ball at the Alcazar in Baltimore was a great success, especially colorful because the men wore their pink coats. The main ballroom was lined with trees, and racing colors of the country's leading hunt clubs festooned the balcony. The supper room had been transformed into a paddock for the occasion.

Tulips of a real shade of hunting pink were the floral motif. They are a very special kind of tulip, and one man spends almost his entire time raising thousands of these blooms, which are used at the Hunt Ball.

There was also a more informal dance at the Green Spring Valley Club, where young people were in the majority. After the race the James Bruces (he is a brother of David Bruce, husband of the former Ailsa Mellon) entertained hundreds at a colossal cocktail party.

All in all, it was Baltimore's gayest week-end of the year.

Rafal Lepkowski, secretary of the Polish Embassy, will speak at a dinner of the Polish Club of Washington at the Wardman Park Hotel tomorrow evening, to celebrate Polish Constitution Day.

Mme. Orlicz-Dreszer will sing, accompanied at the piano by Prof. Osborne. Leon Wedding is chairman of the arrangements committee. More than 250 persons are expected to attend.

Kelloggs Hosts On Their Yacht

An informal and original breakfast was given yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kellogg aboard their yacht Tech.

It was all very nautical, with the guests offered a ration of rum apiece before they ate. The dining saloon was decorated in Mexican style, with pottery, gourds and colorful hangings.

Those present included Judge and Mrs. Walter Edward Blount, Col. and Mrs. Edwin Emerson, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Messineo, John Hannah, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Horace T. Campion, Mr. and Mrs. David Allen, Mr. and Mrs. John Paul Gensener and Barbara and Robert Kellogg.

C. D. A. Group Has Its Annual Service

Father Paul Celebrates Mass for Orders.

Members of Court District of Columbia, Catholic Daughters of America, held their annual communion service yesterday morning at the Franciscan Monastery, Fourteenth and Quincy streets. Mass was celebrated by Father Paul, O. F. M., and the sermon was given by the Rev. Herbert N. Gallagher, O. F. M. Following the mass about 150 of the members attended a breakfast in Pilgrimage Hall. Miss Cecilia O'Leary was chairman of the committee of arrangements.

The annual election of officers of Court District of Columbia will be held tomorrow, at 8 p. m., at the Willard Hotel. The officers elected will be installed on May 17.

Mrs. Roosevelt To Give Party For Young Folk

Children of Congressional Set Invited to See White House.

Young "Congressionals"—legislators' sons and daughters who are too young to receive invitations for formal events at the White House in the season—are to have a party planned especially for them at the White House tomorrow. It will be a garden party and guests will include boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 18.

Reports have it that the event was inspired by the wife of a Representative who has a daughter in the 10-18 group and who told Mrs. Roosevelt that many younger "Congressionals" have as little first hand knowledge of the White House and its occupants as do out-of-town sightseers. Between 200 and 300 invitations have been issued.

Rectory Plans Garden Party

Mrs. Roosevelt again this year will be the guest of honor at the annual tea and garden party to be given by the Rector's Aid Society of St. Thomas' Episcopal Church. The affair will take place this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the rectory, 1320 New Hampshire avenue.

Patronesses include Mrs. William D. Leahy, Mrs. William L. Beale, Mrs. Walter Edge, Mrs. Bertrand H. Snell, Mrs. E. V. Bookmiller and Mrs. G. Bowie Chipman.

Also Mrs. D. Buchanan Merryman, Mrs. R. Reynolds Hitt, Mrs. Charles B. McVay, Mrs. F. H. Calvert, Mrs. Harry Taylor, Mrs. Albert Niblack, Mrs. Charles Stanley White, Mrs. William Bowie and Mrs. Henry Hough.

Mrs. C. F. M. McGuire, the president of the Rector's Aid Society, and Mrs. Howard S. Wilkinson, wife the rector of St. Thomas', will receive with Mrs. Roosevelt.

Miss Doris Hohberger Mr. Abramson Engaged

Dr. and Mrs. S. J. Hohberger have announced the engagement of their daughter, Doris Hohberger, to Norman Abramson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Abramson, of Washington. The bride-elect is a graduate of George Washington University. Her fiance is a graduate of the George Washington University School of Law.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Greatly Worried by Fiance's Admission That He Loses Track of Idea in Thought, Speech, Girl Asks Advice.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been called upon to solve many problems in my life, but this one I am bringing to you is too much for me. I have been going with a very fine boy for over two years and at last we have set our wedding date. Throughout our whole relationship I have noticed certain odd weaknesses in this boy. He has always been very good, considerate and upright, yet, in spite of these characteristics, he seems weak.

• • • •

He cannot talk to older people without falling utterly to keep his poise. He dreams, but never translates his dreams into action. He always says, "I will," but he never does. Now that we are planning to marry, I carry the burden of planning. I look for apartments, etc. He does nothing. He has been saying for two years that he is going to get another job as there is no chance for advancement in his present berth. Yet he hasn't lifted a finger, in all that time, to get a new job.

• • • •

Often he gives up something he wants in order to buy things for me. He tries so hard to make me happy. Sometimes I think he tries too hard. For instance, when he is talking to older, more experienced persons he keeps glancing at me to see if he is doing the right thing. Sometimes I think it may be because he hasn't been taught proper manners. He is one of a large family and his sweet mother has had little time to train her children.

• • • •

I have wondered, too, if ill health could be responsible. He is not particularly healthy. The other day, when I asked him why he doesn't help with our marriage plans, he promised sincerely to help, as he has done scores of times before, and finally confessed that he seldom is able to carry out a train of thought; that he usually loses track of the idea both in speaking and thinking. This really worries me. Please help me. BAFFLED.

• • • •

Diagnosis Needed.

DEAR BAFFLED: Before proceeding further with marriage plans, it seems to me imperative that you make some systematic, scientific inquiry into this boy's mental and physical ability to cope with the social and economic burdens of family life. Either his physical and nervous energies are dangerously depleted for lack of proper food, rest and sleep, or he was mentally shortchanged at birth. Probably the only way you can arrive at an approximation of the truth is to obtain a certified internist's diagnosis of his condition.

• • • •

An internist, by the way, is a specialist in internal medicine, a man professionally certified to speak with authority on matters of organic, functional and psychic sickness, and mental disability. There are, I am told, two classifications of diagnosticians: Those certified to practice, and those self-ordained for the work. The only way to be sure you are obtaining the services of a really qualified diagnostician is to secure a list of such practitioners from the District of Columbia Medical Society, and then make your own choice of doctor from the list furnished.

• • • •

Any 15-year-old of normal physical and mental endowment should be able to carry any train of thought through to some actionable conclusion, be that conclusion right or wrong. Naturally, even the best minds will fail at times to arrive at the wisest or most constructive conclusion when dealing with a given problem or tentative program of action; but, as I say, any person who isn't a congential moron and whose health is somewhat near par feels himself capable of handling his every day problems, and actually enjoys the effort entailed. Health or mentality is under suspicion when he dreads the effort or refuses altogether to essay it.

• • • •

Your fiance could be suffering with a thyroid condition, for instance. The malfunctioning of this gland has a tremendous influence for ill on personality. Anemia, too, is another malefactor in personality health. It makes for timidity which reaches morbid excesses at times, just as thyroid ailments make, sometimes, for nervousness, indecisiveness, melancholia, etc. Any glandular disturbance affects one's personality, and one's social adequacy to a pronounced degree.

• • • •

Yet there is no category of illness which requires such enlightened, precise and precautionary treatment as that which has to do with the glands. It is not a field for careless or callous experimentation on the part of the patient. He needs the finest care, if his last state is not to be worse than his first. Therefore, I cannot be too emphatic in urging you to see that your fiance gets in the right hands, supposing, of course, he concedes the necessity of enlisting medical or psychiatric help in overcoming his personality handicap. M. H.

YOUR FIGURE MADAME!

Doctor, 80, Who Runs Four Miles on Birthday, Advises Activity.

By Ida Jean Kain.

THE AVERAGE REPORTER is a skeptic by training, and not very long ago, when it became known that a member of the New York Athletic Club intended to celebrate his eightieth birthday anniversary by running 4 miles around the track, there was some speculation among the gentlemen of the press as to whether he would even show up.

They just didn't know Dr. Graeme H. Hammond! "Why, I always run 3 miles three times a week," Dr. Hammond told me later, "and I thought it only fitting that I run 4 on my birthday. I get going at a jogtrot and keep it up. I am not out for speed at my age—that would be silly. What I want is a good sweating, and I get it. Been doing it for years."

Began Sports in College.

That is how a doctor of 80 keeps fit, and if many of you half his age could run 4 miles in an afternoon I would be surprised. As a matter of fact, the good doctor would not recommend it for you—not unless you are used to exercise. Dr. Hammond began his athletic career in college. He was a member of the crew, went out for football and broke all kinds of records in track. In one afternoon he won the quarter mile and the half, and came in second in the mile race.

During this time he was accumulating a few degrees. He finished engineering, and then decided to be a doctor. When he completed his medical work he practiced medicine in the day time and went to law school at night until he had his law degree. About this time he took up fencing and held the national fencing championship for 15 years. He liked bicycling, too, and is sorry it has gone out, for it provides splendid exercise.

Activity Cures Fatigue.

You can see that it probably was not always easy for Dr. Hammond to find the time or the energy to engage in sports. He has always been a busy man and even today he works hard.

"Sometimes when I go over to the club I just sit there by the locker and think maybe I won't run," he told me, "But I make myself do it, and afterward I feel refreshed. I lie down under a blanket for awhile. Maybe I sleep. Then I have a rubdown and I'm ready for anything."

Fatigue, Dr. Hammond explains, is simply a feeling in the body induced by presence of poisons caused by the use of the muscles or the brain, and when enough of these poisons accumulate, you feel tired. Vigorous physical activity helps to rid the body of these poisons.

Start Easy, He Advises.

But don't rush into any program unless you are in condition for it. If you are around 40 year old and have been getting no exercise, Dr. Hammond suggests a setting-up exercise class two or three times a week for an entire year. Being something of a skeptic himself, Dr. Hammond is convinced that the average man will continue on exercise program only if he gets entertainment along with it. You will find, however, that you enjoy your gym classes. Then, next year, take up some game such as squash or tennis. Horseback riding is good, he says, but the horse gets most of the exercise.

And how about golf? Well, in 10 or 12 years Dr. Hammond thinks he may get around to golf. "Not much exercise in golf, or jackstraws," he says with a chuckle, "but I may get around to it yet."

As to diet, Dr. Hammond eats anything that is set before him, but he eats only two meals a day, breakfast and dinner, and he eats sparingly. In his opinion, "The average man could prolong his life by ten years by moderating his appetite for food." Dr. Hammond likes an occasional highball and he smokes, but he never does anything to excess.

. . . And there is a program for you! You will not find any better advice than is given here by this young man of eighty.

Lace for Summer—As Paris and America See It

THESE lovely lace creations were outstanding in the all-lace fashion show at the Shoreham Hotel, Saturday, which combined Paris imports and American designs. Maggy Rouff's genius with drapery is illustrated in the sophisticated dinner dress at right, of petal pink peau d'ange lace. Note smart front decolletage, long fitted sleeves and slim silhouette with side fullness; it is backless. Below, a smart gown from a local store, of buttercup yellow net and cobweb lace. The chiffon ascot, which also may be worn as a scarf or head-dress, is bright green; flowers are green and yellow.

Lace an All-'Round-the-Clock Material for Summer Outfits

Presented at Fashion Show in Hats, Tailored Street Clothes, Garden Party Frocks, Formal Evening Dresses and Harem Veils.

By Ethel Ehlen.

TO USHER in the month of May and romantic summer styles, the luncheon-fashion show in the blue room of the Shoreham Saturday featured an entire lace promenade. This fragile-looking material has always been associated with romance, glamour and luxury, and is particularly appropriate this season because of the unprecedented trend toward femininity. The modern laces, however, while still the epitome of charm, are sturdy in construction and durable as well as beautiful. The styling is as varied as that of any other material.

The lace revue included tailored costumes for day wear, lace-trimmed clothes for day and evening, garden party frocks of subtle-colored lace, and formal evening gowns. Imports from Paris fraternized with American-designed versions. The hats, designed especially for the occasion and available now in Washington, were created by Lily Dache.

Among the imports was a soft summer day suit of sheer blue lace patterned with daisies, by Bruyere, worn with a huge blue cartwheel hat bordered in large white daisies. Outstanding in this collection, also, was a Robert Piquet dinner gown of heavy mesh lace in navy, made with a long sweater bodice; the fitted sleeves ending in quaint-looking mitts. In the realm of formal evening wear was a black lace with green bowknot pattern, by Paquin, made in the popular off-the-shoulder styling; and a Patou model of Winterhalter inspiration of white Chantilly lace and net.

A cocktail frock of French blue Alencon lace, worn with a small fishnet hat trimmed with huge deep pink roses, received much favorable comment from the audience. Venise lace, so much talked about in the Paris collections, was shown in an American-designed creation of black, combining sheer crepe and lace. Perfect for Washington garden parties was the lovely pale pink peau d'ange lace dress, made with short puffed sleeves, a low decolletage and floor-length skirt. The showing concluded with a wedding party entirely in lace, the bride in white Chantilly and the bridesmaids in blue, pink, green and yellow, with huge "picture" hats of straw matching the dresses in color tones and dramatized by velvet ribbons tied under the chin and hanging to the waist.

The imports in the lace fashion promenade were brought to Washington by courtesy of International Fashions. The American-designed clothes were from a local store.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York, May 1.

THE BUXOM ITALIAN ladies of Henry street, deep in the lower East Side, are losing pounds and pounds, not to mention shillings and pence, and their new shapes are the envy of the neighborhood. For the free beauty clinic at Jacob Riis Settlement House, of which I wrote several months ago, is showing results! The business of streamlining the large Latin women proceeds apace.—and they ask what have the Fifth avenue ladies got that they haven't—except money?

This brain wave of Mrs. Nancy Hatch has now been running eight weeks, at absolute capacity, which means that a total of 53 women are being re-shaped by scientific means. Diet plays a large part in the Riis Costless Clinic, for most of its clients are women in the mid-forties who have lived their lives long on spaghetti, ravioli and such starch-crammed staples of the native diet. Then, too, they are put through a vigorous course of physical jerks, and I tell you it is a rare treat to see these mountainous mamas going through their squats and bicycling!

Take Mrs. Nancy Nucitelli, who weighed in eight weeks ago at a hearty 220. Prize pupil of Mrs. Hatch's slenderizing squad, Nancy has gone vigorously through exercise, massage, diet and electric baths, and has fallen away to a dismal 201-19 pounds less to haul around during a hot downtown summer! Of course, she's still a big hunk of lady, but she perseveres! Mrs. Betty Buttacavolli is down to 185 from 196½, and others have records just as good. And the waiting list is longer than a Moscow bread queue. The big girls just can't wait.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—As usual, our May Day is all things to all people. Thousands of radical workers stage their annual demonstration in the streets, bearing red flags and hollering for the demolition of Fascism and for Tom Mooney's freedom. It's an awe-inspiring sight. And in the parks the tots in white dresses issue from the tenements and hop around municipal maypoles. . . .

Hurry up if you want to see Mr. Rockefeller's first batch of spring flowers, in the heart of town, at Fiftieth street and Fifth avenue. They are very lovely and draw more crowds than a street fight. Nature, agree many citizens here, is wonderful and rare.

• • • •

Still the girls explode in new fields, always the property of the trousered sex. Now Tin Pan Alley is invaded—for Mrs. Nola Arndt has just started the first music-publishing house run by one of us. Her first number is one of her own, "Mia Cara." Yes—she's the "Nola" for whom the famous piano piece was written—by her husband.

The Club Pin.

PRESIDENT—Ladies, It has come to my attention that many of our members are not wearing their club pins properly——

MRS. FLAGG—May I interrupt, Madam President, to say that some of our members are not even wearing their pins at all!

MRS. FLYTIE—I move we amend the constitution to fine everybody who doesn't wear a pin——

MRS. POSEY—Well there are just some dresses that the pins don't show up on. Now my little mustard print—you know, the one with the bolero——

MRS. FLINT—I rise to a point of order.

DR. NANNIE B. HOPPER—Madam President, it's all because women won't stick together. Look at men! Did you ever see a man without his lodge pin?

PRESIDENT—Ladies! Ladies! We are getting off the subject. Will the secretary please read the club pin by-law?

Secretary—"The club pin shall be worn on the left breast——"

MRS. WRIGHT—Just a minute! I think it would sound nicer if it read "OVER" the left breast.

MRS. JOYNER—I move an amendment to the by-law.

MRS. SMILEY—Wait! I think it would sound still nicer to say "ABOVE" the left breast.

MRS. PIPER—I move an amendment to the amendment.

MRS. LIGHTCAP—But ladies! What are you going to do about those people whose hearts are not in the right place—I mean not on the left side?

MRS. NUTTER—Let them present doctors' certificates.

MRS. McADDLE—I make another amendment to that effect.

MRS. JOYNER—I rise to a question of privilege. I don't think we ought to be too definite about where to wear the pin. Now you take me. I belong to 19 organizations——

MRS. GINK—I belong to 23!

MRS. FLYTIE—I belong to 27 . . . counting the Radio Tapioca Homemakers——

MRS. FLAGG—I'm on 16 boards alone——

PRESIDENT—Ladies! Mrs. Joyner has the floor!

MRS. JOYNER—As I was saying, I belong to 19 organizations of which at least 17 require the pin to be worn over the left breast. Now with an evening gown, you simply can't——

MISS WIGGLE—Or with a swim suit!

DR. NANNIE B. HOPPER—As a pioneer in the woman's movement may I suggest that we approach the other organizations with the idea of working out a large composite badge——

MRS. CLOSE—I would NEVER be in favor of surrendering our own pin!

MRS. LIGHTCAP—Well I think we ought to use the pin wherever it's needed. Now say that you are somewhere and your slip shows——

MRS. FLAGG—Madam President, I would NEVER countenance the club pin being used for such a purpose.

DR. NANNIE B. HOPPER—No, a man would never——

MRS. POSEY—I move that we wear the pin where it looks best.

MRS. WRIGHT—I object! This isn't a matter of looks. It's a matter of principle.

MRS. PIPER—Question! Question!

PRESIDENT—You have all heard the motion——

MRS. FLINT—Madame President, there's already an amendment before the house.

MRS. FLAGG—I rise to a question of privilege.

MRS. McADDLE—What are we voting for?

PRESIDENT—Just a minute, we will let the parliamentarian decide. Where is the parliamentarian?

MRS. GINK—She went downstairs to call her husband. He's going to pick her up——

MRS. FLINT—Question!

PRESIDENT—Will the secretary please read the motion?

SECRETARY—Which motion?

MRS. FLAGG—Just a minute, Madam President. I don't think we ought to do anything rash. There are a lot of angles to this thing of how to wear our club pin. We really ought to have some kind of a code.

CHORUS—That's right!

PRESIDENT—All right. I will appoint a committee to draw up a code on how to wear the club pin and to report back at the next meeting. We will now hear the report of our chairman on international co-operation.

Legion Groups Observe May Day at the District War Memorial

'To Make Right Master of Might.'
'To Promote Peace and Good Will.'

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

Washington, May 2.

ROTUNDA WHISPERS: The President's bete noire, O'Connor, of New York, rejoiced in a red bow tie and red vest with his tuxedo at the Shoreham wassail the other evening . . . If the John Lewis-Guffey-or-Else slate is licked in Pennsylvania, Senator Guffey could stifle his sobs; he'd like a minute to comb John Lewis' blackjack out of his hair.

* * * *

With some relish, a Southern dignitary recently told the President a tale of a strapping given a "labor agitator," in his town, and added that a spanking wouldn't have hurt the imported organizer's female assistant either. The President was fairly flabbergasted.

Senator Copeland . . . obstetrics?

* * * *

Two roll calls again killed the first 85 minutes of a House session the other day, and there's more talk of a push-button system to allow more time for oratory. . . .

There's some fear, though, that some reckless members might push other member's buttons.

"—a spanking for her, too?"

Virile John Hamilton was a fifth at a ringside table at a Washington glamour spot the other evening . . . His new $20,000 a year press wizard, youthful Franklyn Waltman, sat at a big round table nearby with a coterie of young marrieds. After the floor show Waltman nudged a journalist on the dance floor:

"Did you notice," he bantered, "that they played 'Happy Days Are Here Again' and then put on a juggler?"

* * * *

CAPITAL CAVIAR: At a diplomatic cocktail party an aristocratic lady announced coyly that she wouldn't have another baby unless Dr. Copeland, the medical Senator, would preside . . . He hasn't officiated at a birth for some years . . . One of the most artistic lobbies in years is at work to rescue the American oil wells in Mexico.

* * * *

When the extreme isolationists get noisy, Roosevelt and Hull can glance out the White House and State windows across the street to Lafayette Square . . . Its four corners are adorned with statues of Lafayette, Kosciusko, von Steuben and Rochambeau, non-isolationists who took 6 or 8 weeks to cross the Atlantic . . . It's a smaller world now.

* * * *

In celebrating the reorganization bill victory, a sardonic Republican quoted a little verse:

"The other night upon the stair,
I saw a man who wasn't there;
He wasn't there again today;
How I wish he'd go away!"

"That," he added, "was the dictator we got the country so stirred up about."

"—high official gets dictated to."

The fair sex reared its pretty head in a House debate the other day. A statesman quoted a paragraph by the world's most vehement female columnist.

"I'm willing to go along with Dorothy Thompson," he added.

His colleagues laughed loudly. But they don't put "laughter" in the Record; only "applause."

* * * *

It's easier to be a good listener in Washington than anywhere in America. Everyone has so much of urgent importance to get off his chest (or hers) that it's possible for a lanquid listener to go for hours without needing to say a word, even a mere "Uh-huh."

In fact, in some circles, if you aren't an aggressive interrupter, you can go for days without uttering a sound.

One way to get a word in edgewise is to offer the talker a cigarette and burst out with your own paltry observations while he's lighting it.

* * * *

GILT OFF THE DOME: Friends of Ambassador Joe Kennedy would not be surprised to see a picture of him soon with a monocle . . . Some of the Capital's masterminds send their tots too young to write to a school which requires them to dictate an essay a day to their busy parents . . . Since Landon demanded higher taxes, while other G. O. P. speakers yell for lower taxes, the New Dealers are wondering which branch of the Republican Party to argue with.

Roosevelt Son Heads Honor Guests at Dance

James Roosevelt heads the list of honor guests expected to attend the annual dinner and dance of the Massachusetts Democratic Club of Washington Wednesday, at the headquarters of the National Democratic Club of America, 1500 Rhode Island avenue, John J. McCormack, jr., president of the club, announced yesterday. Other guests will be Senator David I. Walsh and Representatives John McCormack, Joseph Casey, Arthur Healey, Lawrence Connery and Thomas Flaherty.

Horace Russell Still Running For Bar Office

Resigned HOLC Counsel Continues Candidacy for Presidency.

Horace Russell, resigned general counsel of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, last night announced he would continue as a candidate for re-election to the presidency of the Federal Bar Associatoin, an organization composed of attorneys in Government service.

Russell said rules of the association permitted members to continue in the organization after retirement from Government service.

Russell resigned recently after he had been accused of sending more than 9,000 postage-free letters praising the qualifications of Judge O. B. Taylor, who quit as associate counsel of the HOLC to enter private practice.

Opposing him in the bar election is Robert E. Freer, Federal Trade commissioner and a member of the executive council of the association.

Other candidates for office are Robert H. Jackson, solicitor general, and William N. Morrell, member of the Board of Veterans' Appeals, candidates without opposition for the offices of first and second vice presidents, respectively; for third vice president, Freer; Miss Ellyne E. Strickland senior attorney, Bureau of Internal Revenue, and Rene A. Viosca, United States Attorney, New Orleans. William E. Reese is unopposed for fourth vice president and editor of the association's Journal. For the offices of secretary, financial secretary and treasurer there is no contest, the candidates being David S. Davison, of the Civil Service Commission; Harold E. Jacobson, Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and Herbert H. Rice, War Department, all incumbents.

New Yorker Heads Eastern Students At D.C.Convention

John Skinner, of the New York School of Social Work, was elected chairman of the Eastern division of the American Association of Social Work Students yesterday at the closing session of a conference at Catholic University.

Other officers elected were Gertrude mobbs, cochairman; Zipporah Shapiro, secretary-treasurer, and Mark Neaf, director of publications. Jennie Howe was appointed to prepare a paper summarizing practices of various schools in the matter of student-faculty relationships.

The conference voted to send delegates to a national convention uninstructed on election of national officers.

Deadliest Sin Is Unchastity, Cleric Asserts

Seventh Commandment Is Subject of Rev. Dr. A. J. McCartney.

Rev. J. Lowrie Fendrich Picks 'Sins of Middle Age' as Topic.

Terming unchastity the deadliest of sins, the Rev. Dr. Albert J. McCartney, Covenant-First Presbyterian Church, yesterday struck out in defense of the sanctity of marriage and the home.

"How can men and women of intelligence persuade themselves that reform in housing is a cure for vice," he asked, "when the most vicious people of the community are housed in decency, comfort and in luxury?"

An advocate of better housing, education and diet "throughout my lifetime," Dr. McCartney said the problem "of first and ultimate importance is man's spiritual nature."

Speaking on the Seventh Commandment, Dr. McCartney asserted the "clever man and personable women who crawl out of Hollywood and Reno" would be unable "to tear down the barriers of chastity."

Admitting that "prevalence of sin" was common, Dr. McCartney said: "I believe it to be the noble ambition of thousands upon thousands of people to pass through life in such a way that when God brings them face to face with the man or woman of their destiny, they may look one another in the face and be unashamed.

"We shall have to confess that much modern life is a sad satire and an arresting commentary upon the claims of the institution of marriage." But, he added, the "happy children of God do not turn longing and hopeful eyes toward Reno."

The Rev. J. Lowrie Fendrich, speaking on "Sins of Middle Age," at a Fellowship Night at Metropolitan Presbyterian Church, said that "the sins of youth keep us looking in one direction—on the passionate side, but the sins of maturity are often more calculating and more vicious."

Religion is becoming "strong and vital enough to take its rightful place among us as our guide, our strength and stay," asserted Dr. Russell J. Clinchy at Mount Pleasant Congregational Church.

Speaking on the twentieth anniversary of his ordination, Dr. Clinchy declared that "the great tragedy" of recent times "is that our religion in this period has not been great enough or deep enough or realistic enough to save us."

At Washington Cathedral, services marking the seventy-fifth anniversary of Harmony Lodge, F. A. A. M., the Rev. Clyde Brown, lodge chaplain, asserted the world "needs a big brother as it never has before, but we cannot be a big brother to the world until we have recaptured true brotherhood in this country."

The Sodality Union of Washington held a demonstration for universal peace in honor of the Immaculate Conception, at the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, Catholic University.

An audience of 1,200 heard the Rev. Patrick J. O'Connor, dean of men at the university, speak on "Mary, the Queen of Peace." Other participants included the Rev. James L. Harley, S. J.; the Rev. Dennis C. Keenan and the Rev. J. J. Clark.

Dr. ZeBarney Phillips, speaking on the thirty-eighth anniversary of his ordination, urged his audience at the Church of the Epiphany to "live up to the ideals as members of the royal priesthood of the laity."

After more than 11 years' service in Washington, Dr. Frederic W. Perkins announced at the Universalist National Memorial Church his intention to resign as pastor. He said his decision was not the result of "any sense of failure or dissatisfaction . . . Rather it is prompted by the success we have achieved in the distinctive service that the National Memorial Church was established to render." Dr. Perkins added that he had "no desire to retire from active service."

New Jerusalem Church Meets Here This Week

The 117th general convention of the New Jerusalem and its affiliated bodies, a church founded on Swedenborgian principles, will be held in Washington beginning tomorrow. Convention headquarters for the week-long session will be the New Church, at Sixteenth and Corcoran streets northwest, and the Roosevelt Hotel.

Speakers will include Senator M. M. Logan (Democrat), of Kentucky, the Rev. S. J. C. Goldstack, of Birmingham, England, former head of the New Church in Great Britain, and the Rev. F. Sidney Mayer, of Baltimore, president of the New Church in the United States.

Taxes, Priming Targets as U. S. Chamber Meets

2,500 Delegates to Attend 36th Annual Session Opening Tomorrow.

Taxation, public spending and the new pump priming program of the New Deal will be among subjects discussed by some 2,500 delegates to the thirty-sixth anfnual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States opening tomorrow. The chamber will hold its annual election with George H. Davis, of Kansas City, president, scheduled for re-election.

John W. O'Leary, chairman of the chamber's executive committee, will lead with an address on tomorrow morning's program. Other speakers at the session will be Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the board of the Chase National Bank of New York; William S. Knudsen, president of General Motors Corporation; Davis; Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and Harry H. Woodring, Secretary of War.

Delegates will take part in round table discussions of taxation, based on figures which, the chamber said, show that 25 per cent of the national income is absorbed by costs of government.

"The influence of taxes in blocking the flow of capital to industry also will be analyzed," the chamber said. "Studies indicate that by retarding investment in business enterprise, taxes seriously hamper increases in business activity that produce employment. There must be a reduction of tax barriers if once again there is to be an adequate flow of capital to industry and such revival in durable goods lines as is necessary for a sustained recovery."

The annual dinner of the International Chamber of Commerce, American section, will be held tonight, with Eliot Wadsworth of Boston, chairman of the American section, presiding. Speakers will include Thomas J. Watson of New York, president of the International Chamber of Commerce, and Aldrich.

First Lady Sends Hurt Officer Roses

Boston, May 1 (AP).—Motorcycle Officer Thomas F. Johnson lay on his hospital bed a happier man tonight—because of two dozen roses and a card signed "Eleanor Roosevelt." He was thrown from his machine and injured Friday while escorting Mrs. Roosevelt's car on her visit to Boston.

Automatic Radio Time Signal Brings Honor to D.C. Inventors

The Edward Longstreth Medal of the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia will go to Capt. J. F. Hellwig, U. S. N., retired, head of the Naval Observatory, and Paul Soilenberger, an associate, officials of the institute announced yesterday.

Annual awards of the organization are made for the encouragement of invention. Capt. Hellwig and his associate are inventors of a device which "increased the accuracy of radio time signals."

The machine they devised sends radio time signals automatically by means of a quartz crystal controlled oscillator. It is used here and at Mare Island, Calif. Its signals are put on the air every hour, and picked up by all naval vessels at sea. Many commercial broadcasters also use the signals of the new machine.

Other medal awards announced by the institute were:

Edwin H. Land, Boston, Mass., Elliott Cresson Medal for original research; Lars O. Grundahl, Swissvale, Pa.; Howard N. Potts Medal for research in science or the arts; S. S. Kurtz, jr. and A. L. Ward, both of Philadelphia; Louis Edward Levy Medal for a scentific paper of special merit; Clyde C. Farmer, Pittsburgh; George R. Henderson Medal for meritorious inventions in the field of railroad engineering.

Robert Brinton Harper, Chicago, Walton Medal as author of the most notable advance in the science of gas manufacturing; Norman F. S. Russell, Burlington, N. J.; Frederick C. Langenburg, deceased, and Clarence W. Blake, Chicago, Edward Longstreth Medal for invention.

Methodists Shelve Conference Battle On Church Union

Birmingham, Ala., May 1 (AP).—Southern Methodism's Quadrennial Conference shelved temporarily today the struggle over unification for its Aldersgate observance, marking the 200th anniversary of the conversion of John Wesley, founder of the church now split into three branches.

The judicial council—"supreme court" of the church—had under advisement the plan of union approved 434 to 26 Friday by the conference.

Bishop James Cannon, jr., of Washington, D. C., last night declared before the council he believed merging the Methodist Episcopal Church South, the Methodist Episcopal Church (northern) and the Methodist Protestant Church was illegal under the procedure now before the Southern Conference.

A decision from the "supreme court" on legality of the union was expected Tuesday.

WPA Worker Dies Waiting for Ticket To See Ball Game

William E. Thompson, 67, of 300 Sixteenth street northeast, collapsed outside a Griffith Stadium box office yesterday afternoon at height of the rush for tickets preceding the Yankee-Nat game. Carried into the stadium office, Thompson was pronounced dead of a heart attack by a Casualty Hospital physician.

Thompson, a WPA carpenter, is survived by his wife, Mrs. Sara Thompson.

Birthday Finds Neutrality Law Under Fire Here

The neutrality act, intended to prevent the United States from becoming entangled in any foreign war, was one year old yesterday.

Its first anniversary found the measure under attack both in Congress and without, but informed legislators said there was little prospect that any change would be made at this session of Congress.

Most attacks on the act recently have come from persons and organizations seeking to lift the embargo on arms shipments to the Spanish government.

Chairman McReynolds (Democrat), Tennessee, of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, noting the first anniversary of the act, said Congress did not consider it perfect when it was enacted, but much of the law, the credit section especially, was splendid.

On the other hand, Senator Pope (Democrat), Idaho, member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, asserted there was a "general feeling of discontent" with the measure in the Senate.

1937 Exports to Holland Show Increase of 72%

By the Associated Press.

The United States exports to Holland increased 72 per cent in 1937, the first full year of a trade agreement between the two countries, as compared with 1935, the State Department announced yesterday.

Exports totaled $75,102,000, compared with $43,779,000 in 1935. Imports from Holland increased from $39,325,000 to $53,071,000.

Legion Pledges Patriotism for Youth of U. S.

May Day Crowd Hears Dedication to Child Welfare.

The District Department of the American Legion yesterday paid tribute to Washington's war dead with a pledge to promote the welfare and patriotism of the present generation of American childhood.

Designed to counter the utilization of May Day for demonstrations by left-wing groups, the legion ceremonies were attended by 500 men, women and children at the District World War Memorial in Potomac Park.

The crowd stood at attention in the grove as the legion guard of honor escorted the massed colors to their position by the colonnaded memorial.

Miss Katharine F. Lenroot, head of the United States Child Wedfare Bureau, praised the legion's interest in an effective child health program for the Nation, describing the human resources of the country as "its greatest asset and only justification for existence."

Other speakers included Mary K. Killeen, president of the District Gold Star Mothers; Representative Bertrand W. Gearhart (Republican), of California, past district commander for his State, and Frederick F. Money, first vice commander for the Washington department.

Rev. Mr. Gray Speaks At Young Peoples Fete

The Rev. Arthur Gray, of Plymouth Congregational Church spoke yesterday at exercises celebrating the thirty-third anniversary of the Phyllis Wheatley branch of the Young Peoples Christian Association. The celebration will continue today.

Short Assails Spending as Recovery Aid

Blasts Coyle's Pump-Priming Theory in Debate With Economist.

National Personal Security Plan Is Outlined by Fell.

Agreement on the present-day need to practice the historic American virtue of thrift last night led David Cusman Coyle, economist, and Representative Dewey Short (Republican), of Missouri, into a tangle of disagreement over whether the Government should spend or save its way out of depression.

Nearly 100 persons attended the meeting held at the Department of Commerce Auditorium, under auspices of the Thrift and Security Foundation of New York City.

Coyle found that a "realistic" thrift today would require Government spending to provide security for Americans, and Government "investment" in soil conservation, development of forests and other natural resources to insure a prosperous future for the Nation.

Short declared the past five years was a "refutation" of the theory that government can spend its way out of depression. Describing pump priming as a "ghastly" failure, he said prosperity would not return until "we cease this government regulation and dictation, and government competition with private industry."

Security Plan Outlined.

A third speaker, Herbert N. Fell, executive secretary of the Thrift and Security Foundation, outlined a plan for a "national personal security fund," which, he said, would supplement and eventually replace the Social Security program. Coyle characterized Fell's plan as "too radical."

Coyle declared that to early American settlers thrift meant saving things, not money, but today "we have reached the point where thrift and waste represent the same thing."

"We have treated our country not as our home, but as a conquered land," he said, pointing out that the main motive during the expansion of America had been to convert natural resources into money.

He said the crash of 1929 had resulted from America's failure to turn to a spending economy after the war. While Americans were saving about $15,000,000,000 a year in post-war prosperity, he stated, industry could use only about $5,000,000,000 on productive enterprises. Part of the balance, Coyle explained, was "invested" in foreign bonds to support a favorable balance of trade, and other "paper promises."

Visions Serfdom.

Short warned that where the depression which began in 1929 was a man-made one, "the depression we're in at this hour is a Government-made depression."

He said that "five years ago we closed the banks, opened the saloons, and then everybody got drunk and went on the biggest spending spree America has ever known."

"It's an awful indictment, to say that after five years, one-third of the American people are ill-fed, ill-housed and ill-clothed—the worst indictment a man could return against his own program of spending."

"The wards of the Government today will be the serfs of the Government tomorrow," declared Short.

Film Play at Belasco Has Will Fyffe and Canine Stars in Leads.

By Nelson B. Bell

"TO THE VICTOR." Gaumont British picturization of the story, "Bob, Son of Battle," by Alfred Ollivant, adapted to the screen by J. B. Williams, starring Will Fyffe, with John Loder, Margaret Lockwood, Graham Moffett, Moore Marriott, Wilfred Walter, Bromley Davenport and H. F. Maltby. Directed by Robert Stevenson. At the Belasco Theater.

The real stars of this picture, which opened yesterday on the screen at the Belasco Theater, are Owd Bob and Black Wull, two fine Scottish shepherd dogs, not even listed in the cast or mentioned in the billing. The star of the picture, ostensibly, is Will Fyffe, that venerable artist who has been around the theater a long time now and is almost as well known in America as he is on the other side.

In "To the Victor," Gaumont British has executed one of those simple and unadorned tales of an authentic aspect of human living that achieves greatness by its very emancipation from the usual claptrap of the cinema. Made for the greater part on location, this film reflects that rigid adherence to actuality that always seems to submerge the artificialities of the studios, whether in Hollywood, Aintree or anywhere else.

The sheepherders of the Cumberlands are a simple people, engaged in simple pursuits. They have their prides and their weaknesses. The pride of old man McAdam was his dogs; his weakness the village jug. He was the town toper. That is the role played by Fyffe. His own mild villainy, combined with that of Black Wull, the craftier of the canines, conspires to subordinate the picture's romantic interest—inspired by John Loder and Margaret Lockwood—to the more exciting adventures of the sheep pastures.

Offers Real Thrill.

There is a genuine thrill—at least for all dog and animal lovers—in the field trials, during which each dog is tested in his ability to bring in five sheep in the shortest possible time. There is as much character differentiation among the dogs as there usually is among the human members of any cast of conventional actors.

When Black Wull, a two-year winner, is defeated by the stranger's dog, he and McAdam take to seclusion and demonstrate the compatability of the spirit of kindred rascals. But when McAdam learns that his prize pet is a killer he dispatches him. The end of the picture, however, finds McAdam not wholly disconsolate. The stranger, who had married his daughter, gives him his choice of pups mothered by the winner of the field trials. Only McAdam knows that Black Wull was their sire.

The usual short-reel subjects and news events supplement this admirable feature, which offers further evidence that there is strength in simplicity and vast entertainment in types of screen drama that do not reach the American screen often enough.

Columbia

An expected return engagement. "The past, the dear, beloved past"—that is what "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer" almost completely and satisfactorily recaptures.

Our reservations are (1) a disappointment in the Huck Finn of Jack Moran, and (2) a feeling that there is entirely too much chin-quivering and tearfulness indulged in for a joyous Mark Twain picture. But these were to be expected. It is a hard task to bring a classic, and particularly a living and loved classic, to a life with the vividness and reality read and imagined into it and remembered about it.

However, there is an abundance of life and of joyousneess in this picture, enough to afford keen delight. There are first and foremost a practically perfect realization of Tom Sawyer in young Tommy Kelly and a devastating and fascinating Becky Thatcher in the red-headed, freckled Ann Gillis. Both youngsters are, as Washington learned at President-Birthday-Ball time, adorable and both are fine little actors, Mistress Gillis being particularly right in every reaction. Her beaux and stag-lines will be something to gasp over in a few years time, for she is a minx if there ever was one. Master Kelly is a beautiful child with enough mischief in his eyes to lift that curse.

Jackie Moran, for all his not being quite Huck to us, lacking in sturdiness and self-reliance and surety, is a pleasant lad, and the boy who plays Joe Harper is swell in the runaway scene. Sid is, well, Sid, perhaps a bit too Siddish, but May Robson is a grand Aunt Polly. Little dark-haired Cora Sue Collins, Walter Brennan and Victor Jory (Injun Joe) add greatly, and the color photography is particularly fine.

The newsreel, an unusually skillful and entertaining Our Gang comedy, and a chapter of that "Lone Ranger" serial complete the bill.

Metropolitan

One of Technicolor's finest expositions of the possibilities of natural color photography is brought back to the screen of the Warner Brothers' Metropolitan Theater this week, where "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" constitutes the major feature of the bill. There are scenes in this picture that never have been surpassed in sheer loveliness. There is more to commend this film version of a hardy old play than its merely visual aspects. It has been cast with fine discretion and given a dramatic fiber that it did not always possess, even on the stage. This John Fox, jr., novel and play has been shifted a bit in locale in its newer manifestation, greatly to its advantage. The present environment of the story is immensely picturesque.

Reverting to the cast, we have here a group of favorite players that includes Sylvia Sidney, Fred MacMurray and Henry Fonday, in the principal romantic roles, and such others as Fred Stone, Beulah Bondi, Fuzzy Knight, Robert Barratt, Spanky McFarland—a tragic symbol in the picture—Nigel Bruce, Margaret Armstrong and Frank McGlynn, jr. There are, of course, numerous others in less important parts.

Three Famous Bands and Star Singers Are Booked for May at Loew's Capitol

Sammy Kay, Abe Lyman and Shep Fields All to Be Heard Here in Next Few Weeks—Plus Phil Regan, Sybil Bowan and Others; Miss Watson Writes a Letter; Notes of the Theater and Its People.

THERE seems to be something more than hearsay about this "merry month of May." The Loew interests in Washington appear to have set their minds to the task of resetting the old saw and making it come true.

BELL.

Eastern Division Manager Carter Barron and his associates submit an affidavit making it reasonably certain that May, at the Capitol, will "swing" you right out of your pew. As evidence, they cite the fact that Sammy Kay, Abe Lyman and Shep Fields all have been booked for stage appearances during the immediately impending weeks. Each, as goes without saying, will have his orchestra with him.

The return of Abe Lyman to the rostrum at the Capitol will be welcomed by at least one of the theater's important functionaries. That one is Phil Lampkin, the fork-handed guest conductor, who has occupied the podium for so long that he seems no longer a "guest." He is a fixture.

But the point is that Phil is by way of being a bit of a protege of Lyman. When he was tooting his trumpet—and he still can—on the West Coast, it was Abe who yanked him out of the doldrums and started him on his way. They have been pals ever since—I hope.

There probably isn't much you need to learn about Shep Fields and his instrumentalists. It ought to be enough to offer the mere reminder that he is the "rippling rhythm" man.

But before these three nationally famous bands arrive here, May will be well on its way with one of the most lavish revues of the season—so I am told. This will be the "Waikiki Nights" item, opening on the Capitol stage next Friday. There are said to be something like 50 talented entertainers engaged in this Hawaiian frolic—so much like 50, as a matter of fact, that there are 50!

The revue carries its own wicki-wacki Hawaiian orchestra and otherwise attempts to bring to America something of the color, the languorous charm and the pulchritude of the Pacific island.

And another thing. Among the personalities booked for the Capitol stage in the near future are Phil Regan, Sybil Bowan and others of similar note.

This Phil Regan fellow is quite a chap. Formerly a New York policeman, or detective, or something of the sort, I am told he now would prefer to be known no longer as "the singing cop." I don't blame him.

It seems to me very much more suitable to let him be known simply as a swell egg and let it go at that. Because that is what he is.

• • • •

And speaking of revues, George Jessel has a high-pressure sort of musical fracas on the boards at the Capitol this week, starring his wife, Norma Talmadge, foremost star of the silent screen, not too many years ago. There is a comedian in the revue whom you never would know if I didn't tell because he is more or less of a pinch-hitter. I won't mention his name, but his initials are Jack Raymond. Owing to certain lamentable circumstances, involving one of the most indefensible pieces of District legislation of which I know, Jack has stepped into the picture briefly as a sparring partner of Norma and George. He packs a very mean punch. I ran across him in an elevator the other night and, fortunately, he didn't throw it at me. When not clowning, Jack is company manager. I like him better clowning.

It is that amiable and articulate stentor of the theater, "Bill" Fields, who advises me, from the offices of the Curran Theater, in San Francisco, that Victoria, capital city of British Columbia, in Canada, named after, but never visited by, England's beloved queen, will be host to Helen Hayes and the members of her company in "Victoria Regina" during this, the 100th, week of the famous play's presentation on this continent.

The Laurence Housman drama had its first presentation on any stage in the National theater, in this city, in December, 1935, and since has been acted for 100 weeks in New York and on tour.

The current "centenary" week is to be divided among Seattle, Victoria and Vancouver, with the one-night Victoria engagement booked for Thursday of this week.

All of this brings back the recollection that Washington's Miss Hayes was not pleased with her performance that first night at the National. When seen later in the week she confessed that she had been on the verge of abandoning the part as one to which she could not bring all that it deserved. And now look at it! A run of 100 weeks and one of the most brilliant gems in the Hayes thickly studded diadem.

• • • •

Now that the 1937-38 subscription season of the Theater Guild and the American Theater Society of Washington has come to an end, with last week's presentation of "Yes, My Darling Daughter," if it had slipped your mind, emphasis is laid on the fact that the books close for the new season of 1938-39—and definitely—on May 15. Those desiring to continue their present seat locations had better be getting about it. Incidentally, the policy of adding plays over and above the scheduled six, to be made available at subscription rates, will be continued next year. At the moment the top-flight attractions on the new schedule are Alfred Lunt's and Lynn Fontanne's production of "The Sea Gull" and the New York Drama Critics' Circle's prize play of the current season, "Of Mice and Men."

• • • •

Lucile Watson, whose rapid reading of her lines in "Yes, My Darling Daughter," at the National last week, was made the subject of comment in this space had the graciousness to write this desk a very sweet note from the Hay-Adams House before she left town.

There are extenuating circumstances in all cases. Miss Watson has played the part of the mother for 525 consecutive performances without a break; she has undergone trials and tribulations that would have crushed a less valiant soul. Last September she lost her first-born, Peggy Conkling, and since has devoted her maternal interest to Haila Stoddard, who did so splendidly in the role of the daughter.

Certain engagements have been a sore drain on the endurance of this distinguished actress; Washington was, one is led to believe, a happy one. I salute a Spartan trouper.

• • • •

The Warner Brothers are shooting scenes for the film version of "Brother Rat" down at V. M. I. The technical crew, director and others essential to the successful making of a picture are hampering away at the "atmospheric" scenes. Some of the action, of course, will be shot in the studios in Burbank, on the West Coast. But there they are. All you have to do now is try to get in!

The Variety Club, of Washington, is planning—has planned and launched, to get down to brass tacks—a lustrous occasion for Tuesday night, May 10, at the Willard.

The columnist who was sure there are no beautiful women in Washington will be principal guest, surrounded by such luminaries as James Roosevelt, son of the President; J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI; Marvin H. McIntyre, of the Presidential secretariat, and others of comparable importance.

The evening will take the form of a cocktail party, banquet and selection of the most beautiful of the Washington young women who are not beautiful.

Call-for-Help Note.

Will someone please send in a last line to end all last lines?

Gayety

Supported by a cast of outstanding entertainers, the one and only Hinda Wausau makes her initial bow of the season at the Gayety Theater this week, bringing with her one of the fastest and funniest revues so far seen.

Hinda, who recently completed a long and successful engagement at one of New York's better night clubs, offers several musical routines, such as have stamped her as one of burlesque's outstanding feminine artists.

Returning to town after an absence of many months is Bimbo Davis, as funny a comedian as you've ever seen. Bimbo has a comedy technique all his own, and the amusing routines he has to offer are different, funny and original. Also present is Johnny (I'll kill 'em) Barry, another topnotch funster and local resident, whose wit and humor never fail.

The voice of Vickey McNeely is heard in several colorful and pleasing musical numbers, while the beauty parades presented by Nadine Marsh, Evelyn Brook and Estelle Montillo complete a "girlie" show that rates among the best seen at Mr. Collin's theater this year.

MOVIES: MGM purchased the screen rights to Dale Carnegie's book, "How to Win Friends and Influence People," and assigned Ogden Nash and S. J. Perelman to write the screen play . . . Perelman, who is in New York now, met Arthur Kober, the author of "Having Wonderful Time," and said: "It's not an easy job, making a movie story out of 'How to Win Friends and Influence People.' Got any ideas?" . . . "I got a great idea," Kober offered. "Have MGM sign Ronald Colman—to play 'Influence.'"

• • • •

BUSINESS DEPT.: Richard "Dixie" Davis, counsel for the late Dutch Schultz, who was arrested and charged with the operation of Schultz's policy-slip machine, will appear for trial here May 16 . . . James C. Murray, his attorney of record, will retire from the case . . . Davis, who was disbarred by the appellate division, will try the case himself.

• • • •

TAX DEPT.: Henry C. Lytton, head of the Hub Department Store in Chicago, addressed a Better Business Bureau meeting in that city and confessed that he had written to the Illinois delegation in Congress complaining about high taxation . . . "If the President had his way," Lytton declared, "business would be ruined by taxation. Why in 10 or 12 years I'll be bankrupt" . . . Mr. Henry C. Lytton is 92 years old.

PUZZLE DEPT.: Mayor Frank Hague, of Jersey City has been subpenaed before the grand jury to testify in regard to a tampering-with-the-mails investigation, resulting from the interception of a letter mailed by the American Civil Liberties Union to a person in Jersey City. The letter, never was delivered to the addressee. Copies were reproduced by the Hague organization . . . This will be Hague's explanation of how the letter came into his possession: He will allege that he purchased it—from an unknown and unidentifiable man.

Trans-Lux

The bill at the Trans-Lux Theater will please the most critical this week, for it has everything that goes to make up a delightful and satisfying "breathing spell" to compensate for the daily grind.

The news section is extra good with a high percentage of foreign films educationally important and inspirationally impressive. Czechoslovakia preparing to defend its democracy, with good pictures of President Benes and the late Thomas Masaryk, father of his country, is an item; China's new volunteer army on parade is another; Premier De Valera signing the Anglo-Irish pact, another, and so on.

Locally, Henry Ford is seen visiting the President; Mrs. Roosevelt reads an excerpt from her book for transcription for the blind; Vice President Garner is shown spreading good humor in the selection of a new hat. There is a "Vogue" fashion item, with the best looking girls ever, and the week's high spots in sport are well represented. A newsshot of Canadian field dogs in action—retrieving and pointing—is alone worth the price of admission. Lew Lehr's contribution is one of his best—needless to say, very funny.

The shorts, too, are above par this week. A Fitzpatrick travelog, "Natural Wonders of the West," in color, is very worth while. "White Magic" is the best skiing pictorial yet. "Three On a Rope" is the title of a mountain-climbing sport film, and it shares honors with the other two for extraordinary photography.

Little

William Powell and Kay Francis are the costellar players in the revival of "One Way Passage," presented for the first time yesterday as chief feature of the screen bill for the new week at the Little Theater.

This is the subject in which Mr. Powell impersonates a suave young gentleman wanted by the police and Miss Francis a handsome young woman returning to the United States from the Orient. They meet aboard ship and fall in love. Not only that, but they pledge a rendezvous at Agua Caliente on New Year's Eve and thereupon hangs the cryptic denouement of the picture. What happens will give every thoughtful theatergoer something to mull over in the way of "unfinished business."

Mr. Powell and Miss Francis are impeccable, as always, in their roles, and are supported by a competent cast that includes Frank McHugh, Warren Hymer, Frederick Burton, Douglas Gerrard, Herbert Mundin and Aline McMahon.

Much of the action of the picture takes place on a transpacific liner and all of it is engrossing—so engrossing that when a prize contest was held upon the occasion of the film's original release, two lucky Washingtonians were awarded a round trip to Europe for their watchfulness in viewing it.

The bill at the Little is completed by abbreviated camera subjects and a new release of the picturized news events.

Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., May 1.—Wonder why studios bother with temperamental, tiresome people who make life so miserable for them when they have fine actresses like Margaret Sullavan, who does everything in her power to co-operate?

HEDDA HOPPER.

Margaret, who's in the midst of "Shopworn Angel," was told at 8 a. m. she would sing "Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag" at noon that day for a lot of soldiers about to go over the top. Surprised is rather a mild word for Maggie, who had never sung a note in her life—not even in the bathtub.

The studio tried to get Adele Rowland, who sang it originally on the stage, to come and give her a few pointers. But Adele was out on the golf course breaking records.

I arrived on the set just after Margaret had finished singing it. She said, "I never felt like such a fool in my life." They told her the boys at the front weren't so particular in those days. She reckoned that was true—even the extras took it sitting down.

Jimmy Stewart's friends thought he had developed a rash. 'Twas only the symmetricals he used under his soldier's uniform in "Shopworn Angel."

In case you don't know what symmetricals are—they are shapely pads worn under tights, or opera hose, to give you that Martha Raye or Marlene Dietrich underpinning look.

Get Elsie Janis to tell you the story she wrote about Jack Barrymore's legs in "The Jest."

Years ago, in a bathing sequence, when we all had to dash into Long Island Sound, a lovely girl ran up to whisper to the director. He doubled up with laughter. She told him she couldn't possibly go in the water. She was wearing symmetricals. For pure cussedness he made her do it just the same. I wish you'd seen her when she came out. Her legs had melted right down to her ankles. A life guard had to help her out.

Hogsett Checks Yankee Bats and Nats Win, 4-3

Sports | The Washington Post | Sports

*X WASHINGTON: MONDAY, MAY 2, 1938 15

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

It isn't recorded in the box score and if you weren't watching closely you didn't see the play that beat the Yankees yesterday at Griffith Stadium.

No hit rang out, no ball was even struck on the play that beat the Yankees. Victory for the Nats was achieved by the agile mind of John Kelly (Buddy) Lewis, whose contribution was so subtly smart it didn't draw a single cheer from the 31,000 customers.

POVICH

Let's reconstruct the situation in the fifth inning when the Nats were holding a 3-2 lead, with Melo Almada on second base after his double with one out had scored Rick Ferrell.

The 31,000 saw Almada start a daring dash for third and steal that base cleanly before picking himself up out of the dirt and racing home with the deciding run after Bill Dickey's throw to Third Baseman Red Rolfe went wild.

But only those among the 31,000 who were paying strict attention saw why Mel Almada got away with the bold piece of base running. For playing a huge part in that little drama was Buddy Lewis, the figure at the plate.

He Panicked Yanks.

Lewis, the boy who is doing a man's job at third base for the Nats, made capital of his reputation as one of the finest bunters in the league—if not the best. And it was his actions at the plate that threw the Yankees into panic and enabled Almada to score.

As Almada darted for third base with Gomez's pitch, Lewis was not content to let Almada operate on his own. With a bit of quick thinking, he made a gesture as if to bunt.

By any other player on the Washington team, a bunting gesture at that moment would have created no panic among the Yanks. But with Lewis up there sliding his hand along toward the big end of the bat and crouching as if to lay one down, the Yanks were forced to show great concern.

Thus, as Lewis feigned a bunt, Third Baseman Rolfe left the bag, rushed in toward the plate. With third uncovered, Almada was safe by a dozen feet. Catcher Bill Dickey, in his haste to get the pitch to third, could hardly conceive that the bag was uncovered during a steal and made a routine throw to third. Rolfe wasn't there, the bell went wild, Almada scrambled to his feet and raced home with the deciding run.

In the box score Lewis gets not even an assist on the play, but to those who were watching, he turned in a sparkling job.

Knew Hogsett Was Due.

A bit of long-range forecasting by Bucky Harris played no small part in that victory by the Nats yesterday, too.

Harris had scented just such a pitching performance by Elon Hogsett against the Yankees. The Nats' manager was squarely on the spot until the old left-hander turned in his winning five-hit job, however.

On the possibility that the side-arming southpaw would be effective against the Yankees in a starting role, Harris withheld him from the Nats' two preceding games, despite the Washington club's desperate need of a veteran relief pitcher.

On Friday, at Philadelphia, after the Nats tied the score in the ninth, the Washington manager failed even to send Hogsett to the bullpen, risked the Nats' chances on two rookie relief hurlers and saw his club beaten. Saturday, when relief pitching might have stopped the Yankees, Harris again passed up Hogsett.

He was saving the fellow for yesterday's ball game—and apparently he knew something.

Newsom Shows 'Em.

The happiest individual in baseball today is not, perhaps, Oscar Vitt, whose Cleveland Indians are far out in front of the American League race, but a tall, loud fellow in St. Louis named Louie Norman Newsom.

Vowing that he'd "show those bums"—meaning the Boston Red Sox who traded him to the lowly Browns last winter—Newsom yesterday turned in another fine performance, pitching seven innings and allowing only four hits as the Browns won over the White Sox.

Big Buck has won three games and each one has been an impressive performance. He was the only pitcher to beat the Cleveland Indians in the first week of the season. He's showing "those bums" thus far.

The suspicion has long been held that Newsom could be as good a pitcher as he trained to be. He has feats to his credit in the American League that stamp him a great pitcher on certain days. And when the Red Sox traded him away last winter, they were sending off the pitcher who was second to Gomez in strikeouts in 1937.

The thing that would sweeten Newsom's cup to overflowing would be his selection for the All-Star game in July. Making the All-Star team has been an obsession of Big Buck's for the past four years, but his mid-season record never warranted it. But this year, it looks as if it can happen.

There's Plenty of Action at Third Base When the Yanks and the Nationals Meet

Indians Nip Detroit, 4-3; Rookie Stars

Al Milnar Relieves Harder and Halts Rally by Tigers.

Cleveland, May 1 (AP).—Ninth-inning relief pitching by Al Milnar, a Cleveland sandlot product, helped the Cleveland Indians to a 4-3 triumph over the Detroit Tigers today before 23,782 spectators in the stadium, the Tribe's home, on Sundays and holidays.

Relieving Mel Harder, the youthful southpaw retired Dixie Walker, Charley Gehringer and Hank Greenberg in succession with the trying run on base.

The triumph gave Cleveland a 4-1 edge over the Tigers for the season so far. The present series will be concluded at League Park tomorrow.

Harder received credit for his second victory of the year and the loss was charged to Elden Auker, the submarine southpaw twirler.

The Indians scored twice in the first inning on hits by Lyn Lary, Jeff Heath, Sammy Hale and Earl Averill.

Detroit got one run back in the third on a single by Pete Fox, who garnered five hits for the day, and Walker's double.

Cleveland added its third run in the fourth when Trosky singled and Frank Pytlak doubled.

Fox's third hit in the fifth started a one-run drive for the Tigers in that frame. Walker singled and Gehringer drove a deep fly for the score.

In the seventh, Hale's single and passes to Averill and Trosky and a wild pitch, gave Cleveland another run. Jo Jo White batted for Auker in the ninth and doubled. Fox singled to make the count 4 to 3.

Barnes, Lott Pair To Annex Crown

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., May 1 (AP).—Bruce Barnes, of Austin, Tex., who captured the singles championship of the second annual Greenbrier Open tennis tournament yesterday, paired with George Lott, of Boston, today to annex the doubles title.

They defeated brothers Karel and Jan Kozeluh, of Greenwich, Conn., and Miami Beach, 6—3, 6—3, 4—6 and 6—2.

Man of the Month

By Arch McDonald.

(The Post today starts a new baseball feature. Ten points each day will be distributed by Arch McDonald among the players on the Washington Club whose contributions were most helpful to the Nats. The winner of the most points at the end of each month will be designated as "The Man of the Month" and will receive a gift from The Post in token of his honor.)

Four players share in the first award of points in The Washington Post-Wheaties Man-of-the-Month Club.

To Elon Hogsett, five points because his five-hit pitching was the dominant factor in the Nats' defeat of the Yankees yesterday. His feat of holding the Yankees to one hit in the last four innings sparkled with its brilliance.

To Mel Almada, two points because it was his timely double in the fifth inning that broke the 2-to-2 tie and because he got away with a daring steal of third that led to the deciding run of the ball game.

To Johnny Stone, one point because it was his triple in the fourth inning that put Washington in the ball game at a time when the Yankees were leading.

To Rick Ferrell, one point because he made three hits, including a double, twice leading off innings with hits, and scoring from first on a two-base blow.

THE SCORE.

Giants Win, 7-6; Extend Streak to 10

Crowd of 40,248 Sees Polo Grounders Defeat Brooklyn.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 1.—The Giants put their newly discovered slugging punch on display again today and stretched their winning streak to ten straight by nipping the Brooklyn Dodgers, 7 to 6, before the National League's largest crowd of the spring, 40,248, at the Polo Grounds.

Featured by Johnny McCarthy's fourth homer of the year, with two mates aboard, they put on a five-run spree at the expense of Luke Hamlin in the second frame, and then, after the Brooklyns had tied the score, they pushed over another tally in the eighth to make it five in a row over the Dodgers so far this spring.

All in all, they collected 14 hits off four of Boiling Boily Grimes' pitchers, with old Waite Hoyt being charged with the defeat by letting in the winning tally on Dick Bartell's double and Jim Ripple's single. Harry Gumbert, the Giants' starter, also failed to last, and Bill Lohrman took credit for the win, although he had to call on Dick Coffman for help in the ninth. The Dodgers made 11 hits.

Dolph Camilli did his best to aid the Dodgers' cause, but his two triples, driving in three runs, weren't enough. His first three-bagger, in the fourth, came with two aboard, and his second, in the eighth, scored Heinie Manush, who had singled. On both occasions, he scored himself, once on a fly and the second time on a fielder's choice.

Hendrix Takes Hot Springs Title

Hot Springs, Va., May 1 (AP).—Arthur Hendrix, of Lakeland, Fla., won the singles championship of the Hot Springs Invitation Tennis Tournament today, defeating Elwood Cooke, of Portland, Oreg., 6—4, 6—4, 6—4. Cooke was the 1937 winner.

The women's doubles title went to Florence Leboutillier, Westbury, Long Island, and Anne Page, Philadelphia, who won over Hope Knowles, Philadelphia, and Barbara Nields, Cleveland, 6—3, 9—7.

In yesterday's final events, Miss Knowles captured the women's singles crown, Hendrix and Cooke were victors in the men's doubles and the Leboutillier-Cooke team won the mixed doubles.

Phils Defeat Bees, 5 to 1

Mulcahy Gives Boston Only Two Hits.

Philadelphia, May 1 (AP).—Hugh Mulcahy limited the Bees to two hits today as the Phillies nicked Jim Turner, veteran Boston pitcher, for 11 and a 5-1 victory.

The win ended a Phils' losing streak which had reached nine in a row.

Boston got its lone tally in the fourth on two walks and two long outfield outs.

It was not until two out in the seventh that Vince DiMaggio made the first Boston hit. Ciccinello doubled in the ninth.

Goose Goslin Out a Week

Jimmy DeShong, Pearson Mound Foes Today.

With Goose Goslin incapacitated by strained muscles in his side, achieved while striking out yesterday, the Nats resume their warfare with the Yankees this afternoon in the finale of their three-game series.

Manager Bucky Harris will entrust today's pitching duties to Jimmie DeShong, whose debut last week was a victory over the Red Sox. Manager Joe McCarthy will send Monte Pearson to the mound.

In the absence of Goslin, who may be on the sidelines for a week, Taft Wright will return to the Nats' outfield.

The Nats and Yankees required actually only an hour and 28 minutes to play their ball game yesterday—the shortest game of the season. But frequent interruptions made the elapsed time 20 minutes longer.

Play was held up in the third inning when a batch of standing-room customers were admitted through the centerfield bleachers gates and shooed into the grandstand. Before the Nats went to bat in the fifth, another thousand fans, content to watch only half the game, were admitted from under the centerfield stands and waited in centerfield until a ground crew could rope them off.

Earlier in the inning, the game saw another delay when Bill Knickerbocker, sliding into third base on his triple, almost denuded Buddy Lewis, who was forced to the clubhouse for repairs, exchanging his badly torn trousers for a new issue.

The vagaries of baseball fans were demonstrated when DiMaggio delayed for ten minutes while a ground crew roped off a section of centerfield and admitted disappointed bleacher-seat seekers willing to see only half of the contest after their long wait outside the gates.

The 31,000 in the park saw a gallant figure in the venerable Hogsett, who engaged Lefty Gomez in battle and left-handed the Yankees into submission.

DiMaggio Hits Homer.

Rescued from the lowly St. Louis Browns in a trade engineered by the Nats last winter, Hogsett yesterday was, in the parlance of baseball, considerable pitcher. Relying chiefly on the annoying side-arm curve that dipped distinctly as it crossed the plate, Hogsett restricted the Yankees to five meager hits, while the Nats were extracting eight from Lefty Gomez.

It was a ball game to fit the overflow setting. The 31,000 saw the Nats come from behind to win, and they saw Joe DiMaggio, obviously recovered from his collision of the day before, hammer out his first home run offering of the 1938 season—a blow that was so much wasted effort in the light of Hogsett's stirring finish against the champions of the baseball universe.

For that blow by DiMaggio—a vicious swat that settled into the leftfield bleacher seats in the sixth inning—was the last hit that Hogsett permitted. Like something tender to his heart, the swarthy southpaw nursed his slender one-run lead through the seventh, eighth and ninth to seal the triumph of the Nats.

Two Big Innings.

But there were other Washington heroes yesterday, fellows who reached Lefty Gomez for those important hits and runs in the fourth and fifth innings. By the simple procedure of putting two and two together—in the fourth and fifth—the Nats made the necessary four runs.

There was Johnny Stone, who lashed out with a three-base hit in the fourth inning to drive across the tying run, and there was Mel Almada who thumped an all-important double against the rightfield wall in the fifth, to put the Nats ahead. Almada, too, was the fellow who stole third a moment later, and then scrambled up out of the dust to continue home when Bill Dickey's throw proved wild.

There was Cecil Travis, who made only one spotty hit, but in the field he performed like one inspired behind the pitching of Hogsett with fancy plays on a half-dozen hard-hit balls.

Yanks Score First.

It was a cheap run the Yankees scored in the first inning to take a 1-to-0 lead after Rolfe walked with one out. DiMaggio bounced a single off Hogsett's glove to move him to second, and Rolfe scored when Dickey made a scratchy hit down the first base line.

Hitless until Rick Ferrell singled in the third, the Nats wiped out the Yanks' lead in the fourth, which Buddy Lewis launched with a single past Knickerbocker. Goslin was a strike-out victim, straining his side with a last vicious swing, and then Lewis stole second. Bonura also struck out, but along came Stone with his three-bagger to the centerfield corner, and the score was tied. Travis beat out a dribble down the third base line and the Nats went into a 2-to-1 lead.

Rally Crushed.

Jake Powell and Bill Knickerbocker, with two sudden blows tied the score for the Yanks at 2-2 in the fifth. Powell lashed a double into leftfield and Knickerbocker scored him with a triple over Stone's head, forcing Lewis into the dressing room for repairs after tearing a gaping hole in the third baseman's trousers with his slide into the bag.

But with Knickerbocker resting on third with none out, Hogsett left him stranded there, striking out Gomez, and forcing Crosetti and Rolfe to tap out harmless grounders to the infield.

The Nats shook off the tie in the fifth when Ferrell beat out the second of his three hits for the day—a dribbler down the third-base line. With one out, Almada made his only blow of the game—a double against the rightfield wall—and Ferrell raced home. The 31,000 received an unexpected thrill when Almada stole third and then flashed home when Dickey's throw to head him off sailed over Rolfe's head.

The security of Hogsett's 4-2 lead was badly shaken when DiMaggio walloped his homer into the stands to launch the next inning, but it was not known then that the Yankees were never to make another hit.

In the eighth, the Chief was confronted with a situation after walking Rolfe with one out. He retired DiMaggio on a fly to Almada, but then he walked Gehrig to move the tying run to second. This brought him up against Bill Dickey, but Zeke Bonura eased all the tension by grabbing Dickey's hot-shot grounder over first base for the third out.

$2,500 Test Will Feature Card Today

Preakness, Dixie Chief Attractions at Meet; Purses Are High.

By Walter Haight.

At historic Pimlico, stronghold of the Maryland Jockey Club, Maryland's spring racing season starts on its last lap today. The 12 days of sport to be sponsored by the Baltimore track promises to be far and away the most important of the Free State sessions.

Under the new setup of officials that put young Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt in a prominent position, Pimlico inaugurated a "stake-a-day" program last fall and offers the same schedule for the first two weeks of May. The climax of the meeting will be reached a week from the coming Saturday when the forty-eighth running of The Preakness will be run.

Older than the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness always has been a first-flight test. This year it takes on added significance by being the richest stake in this country for 3-year-olds. With $50,000 added, the Preakness will gross to the money horses upwards of $80,000.

With the exception of Belmont Park, due to stage the $100,000 added Seabiscuit-War Admiral clash, no track in the country will offer more cash on a daily average than Pimlico. The Baltimore course, through its fine programs, has served to keep many stake horses in the State which might otherwise have headed for New York and New England at the conclusion of Havre de Grace.

While the Preakness is the brightest spot on the two-week card, the $20,000 Dixie Handicap runs it a close second as an outstanding race. War Admiral and Seabiscuit are among the eligibles and in some circles there are whispers that the West Coast star may yet be shipped down for the engagement. But regardless of the two topnotchers, the Dixie will draw a good field of stake performers.

The race will be run on Wednesday, preceding the Preakness this year instead of Saturday, allowing those who go to Louisville for the Derby a chance to witness both the major Pimlico races.

Visitors at the Baltimore track hardly will recognize the infield. The famous mound that has caused the track to be called "The Hilltop" has been removed. It is now possible to see the horses circle the course from the brick lawn in front of the grandstand and the lower clubhouse. The grading of the infield is not complete and steeplechase racing, long a feature at Pimlico, will not be conducted until the meeting next fall.

Today, the Maryland Jockey Club offers as its feature the $2,500 added Baltimore Spring Handicap, a 6-furlong sprint that would be a "Saturday race" at other tracks. Despite the fact that only five horses have been named, they are evenly matched and should provide a sizzling race.

The probable favorite, despite a weight assignment of 125 pounds, is Bruce Howard's Jay Jay. This speedster, second to Masked General in the Harford Running at the Graw, has worked nicely for the test. Hal Price Headley's Preeminent, prominent in sprint circles last year, was shipped in yesterday from Kentucky for the battle and will carry 120 pounds. Zostera, owned by William Ziegler, jr., is considered formidable due to a 109-pound package. The Millsdale Stable's Infantry with 110 and Dark Beau with 100 complete the field.

Post time at Pimlico, with the possible exception of Preakness day, will be 2:30 p. m. with the daily double closing 15 minutes earlier.

With Bill Ackerman.

(Ed. Note—The following letter from B. F. Stiffler, of Silver Spring, Md., so thoroughly covers the plaint of many nearby Maryland anglers, we are using it as is. We admit to being "teched"—note the particular stream as Paint Branch—and hope we are not canned in agreeing with Mr. Stiffler.)

Do you just write fishing articles or are you "teched" with the "bug" as well? In either case does the remuneration for service performed obscure your vision of our present fish picture in Maryland?

ACKERMAN.

Since most fish or fishing articles are written in lighter vein, the serious-minded sportsman, turning first to your column, is made to wonder when this power will be used to influence the fish-minded army in Maryland into a united demand that the State conservation commission begin at once to increase production of game fish.

Would you be "canned" if you bluntly told your public that Maryland is about "tail end" among our States in this matter? Our hatcheries in Maryland produce annually about 70,000 trout with equipment for producing 1,000,000. With $48,000 invested in hatcheries and equipment the State turned out about 70,000 trout of three varieties and 40,000 bass with an expenditure for operation of $15,000 and for salaries and wages $7,500, in the year 1935-1936, and offering no more new.

Why are we so beggarly? New Jersey puts into its streams at least 3,000,000 trout and bass, with an investment of $500,000 in hatcheries and equipment, $85,000 in cost of operations and $24,000 in salary and wages, each year and progressively increasing output. The executives of the Maryland conservation commission have no records of what the State streams would support in game fish life. There has been no concerted survey action ever taken to learn.

• • • •

When a citizen put in two years of his time to do the work the State should have done, and proved beyond question that there are hundreds of miles of streams near our heaviest center of population which would support brook, brown and rainbow trout, he was almost completely ignored. The few trout the State delivered to a good stream between Washington and Baltimore, augmented by a few hundred from the Bureau of Fisheries, has created a wonderful impression on local and Washington anglers. So that almost every day reports of good sport with fly rod come to me along with requests for restocking. Old timers declare it to be as good or better than the "cracked-up" trout water in mid-west Maryland.

Since this stream was first stocked in March of this year I know of many men who had never fished before, had bought their first licenses and their first trout tackle and equipment and also there has been a notable increase in nonresident licenses sold by our county. Every time our officers have been asked to increase the supply of game fish their answer is invariably the same: WHERE IS THE MONEY COMING FROM? Can it be possible that a few men, nursing a salary, can continue to keep our numerous sportsmen's clubs soothed in dreamy expectation forever by smooth, evasive letters of political promise and doubtful complaints of no funds? Does it make sense, when all our border States are surging ahead with a constantly increasing production?

• • • •

The Washington-Baltimore section has more potential trout water than our hatchery at Lewistown could supply if it turned out its 1,000,000 capacity each year. The 500 to 2,500 trout the State doles out to each of the scattered streams in western Maryland through the fishing season become but a tantalization to the sporting readers of your column. It forces them to travel too far for their sport of angling; makes them pay for the fun of the fishermen in the thinner populated part of the State.

If you cannot get the statistics you need from the Maryland conservation department, they are to be had from the Bureau of Fisheries in the Commerce Building. The kind of statistics we need to set before our sportsmen would be deeply interesting to them and, being enlightened, they would be more inclined to demand, and get, the improvements we so sorely need.

It is an established fact that there is no such thing as natural increase of trout in our highly cultivated farming area. The fish we try to fool with artificial fly must be made in a factory (hatchery). Said product cannot continue to operate by selling its output at 90% below the cost of production. A Maryland resident pays $1.25 for a license but he may take from our streams $10 to $15 worth of trout each day. If you dig into hatchery costs of our Federal and State hatcheries you will be amazed to learn what you may take for either a resident or nonresident license.

Our neighboring states are all doing something to help fill the orders of the new sportsmen you are graduating from your writings. Don't forget that you are distributing "sheepskins" to anglers as the colleges are handing out degrees.

• • • •

Maryland is making no progress with its inland fisheries and there must be a reason for it. You hold a position wherein you could be a power for the good of thousands of present and future fishing enthusiasts. You should be one of this clan to know their problem. Your salary should not be your paramount objective. Then too you could get behind the reason for this Maryland conservation stagnation. You could make every other, or, a weekly article that would be so serious and educational as to bring about good trout fishing in hundreds of miles of our State streams now without any kind of fish worth while.

Klein Nine Wins Opener On Sandlots

Seven League Games on Schedule as National City Opens.

In the opening of the National City A and B leagues yesterday, Klein's Tavern defeated Union Printers, 6-3, in the feature attraction of the day on the East Ellipse diamond.

In other league A tilts, Police Boys Club trounced Sanitary Grocery, 19-1; Fairfax Farms Dairy walloped A. & P., M. B. A., 27-1, and Rose Liquor won over Market Pharmacy, 5-1.

In League B, the Capital Transit Co. nine whipped the Girardians, 5-3; Read's Pharmacy trounced Anacostia Motors, 26-5, and the Pirate Athletic Club nosed out Joe Tucci Plumbers, 4-3. The Russell Motors-Noland Supply game was postponed due to the lack of a playing field.

Three thousand people watched Bill Liggett, Klein's Tavern hurler, pitch five-hit ball while his teammates were slamming out nine safe blows. They shoved across four runs in the second, which as things turned out, was enough to win the game.

Danny and Alan Burton Defeat Barnett and Spencer at Army and Navy

Humphrey Wins Manor Golf Play

Bethesda Upsets Georgetown Prep in School League; Mr. and Mrs. Pat Winkler Win at Congressional; Tie at Beaver Dam.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Danny and Alan Burton, brother professionals at the Army and Navy Club, defeated Bob Barnett, Chevy Chase, and Cliff Spencer, Beaver Dam, two-up yesterday in an informal match over the Service Club course before several hundred spectators, to top an unusually heavy day's tournament play over the local links.

At Manor, H. J. Humphrey won the Dogwood Blossom trophy, while Mr. and Mrs. Pat Winkler copped the mixed Scotch foursome event at Congressional. Dr. Alex Rosenbloom and Leo Schlossberg paired to win the Scotch foursome event on Woodmont's opening day, while a miniature tourney at Beaver Dam, match play in the French High Commission Cup at Chevy Chase, and Selective Handicap events were in full play at the other clubs.

Bethesda-Chevy Chase High golfers upset the Metropolitan Scholastic League leading Georgetown Prep team yesterday at Garrett Park, and went into a first place tie with Gonzaga with five victories and no defeats. Several post entries were received for the Washington Invitation event, starting Tuesday with the first day's qualifying.

A round-up of yesterday's play.

ARMY AND NAVY.

The Burton brothers were a little too consistent for the Spencer-Barnett duo at Army and Navy, but Spencer pulled the best shot of the day when his niblick shot from 125 yards off the ninth green found the cup for an eagle deuce, and squared the match.

Alan then won the eleventh hole with a par four and the host pros clinched the match on the final hole by scoring par threes while the visitors went over. The other holes on the back nine were halved. One bad hole by each of the contestants boosted the scores into the high seventies.

GEORGETOWN PREP.

Jackie Dettweiler defeated Bethesda's captain, David Ross, 1 up, in the feature of the Georgetown Prep-Bethesda team match but the high school lads were stronger in the second and third foursomes and won by a 7-to-2 margin. Brager (G) defeated Burgess, of Bethesda, but Burgess and Ross paired to win the best ball 2 and 1.

Sullivan, Bethesda, won over Messech, 4 and 3, and Lord, Bethesda, trounced Lord, 3 and 2, and Bethesda won the best ball, 5 and 4, in the next match. Bolton, of the Bethesdans, chipped in 15 feet off the final green to win over Titus and clinch the best ball in the final foursome, as Holland (B) also beat McDonnell 3 and 1.

BEAVER DAM.

Edgar Johnson, John R. Miller and J. M. Palmer tied for the medal in the miniature tournament at Beaver Dam, with 37's, with Forest Thompson next with 38 and W. A. Parks, J. J. Morris and E. E. Bailey also in the first flight with 39's. Match play will be held next week-end.

CHEVY CHASE.

Five more second-round matches were completed in the French High Commission Cup play at Chevy Chase: L. B. Platt defeated C. Hayes, 3 and 2; Robert Stead, jr., won over J. P. Nolan, 2 up; F. W. Coleman won 3 and 1 over F. Fisher, E. Clifford won by a 4 and 3 margin over John Chase and Dr. T. Foley won by a like margin over E. A. Hickman.

KENWOOD.

George A. "Buddy" Tew deuced Kenwood's 418-yard ninth hole yesterday, using a six-iron for his shot and plunking it in the cup. He and his partner, Volney Burnett, lost, however, to George Diffenbaugh and C. D. Hanson on the eighteenth hole, with Diffenbaugh playing the course for the first time as club professional in even par 70. George had nines of 34, one under par, and 36, one over par.

MANOR.

H. J. Humphrey used a 21 handicap to full advantage in winning the Dogwood Blossom tournament at Manor, for the R. T. Edwards trophy. The winner had a gross 84 and net 63. Mack Myers was second with 76-11—65; Herb Lacey and R. R. Springs next, Lacey with 77-10—67, and Spriggs, 80-13—67.

W. J. Peters and W. J. LaBille paced the Maryland State Golf Association Handicap play at Manor, with gross 79s. Play will continue through the week.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. Pat Winkler scored a net 72 to win the mixed Scotch foursome event at Congressional, with 94-22—72. Dr. O. U. Singer and Mrs. E. Miller were next with 93-19½—73½, with Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Rhyne winning the gross prize with a 90.

Myron Davy and P. R. Blouke tied for the low net scores in the Breakfast foursomes. Davy had 91-20—71, and Blouke, 96-25—71. The latter was also a member of the winning foursome, with Bob Holland, 86-7—79; J. E. Wellborn, 90-15—75, and E. McFarland, 87-13—74.

WOODMONT.

Dr. Rosenbloom and Leo Schlossberg's 74 was the lucky number in the feature event on Woodmont's opening day card, a Scotch foursome bogey tournament. Alex Forman and Nathan Sterling, and Louis Crossberg and Dave Dubb tied for second with 73's.

Al Steinem and Dr. Milton Harris won low gross with 86, two strokes ahead of Dave Ligum and Edmund Dreyfuss. The team of Ralph Goldsmith and Maurice Eismann had the most pars, six. High strokes on eight went to Fred Burka and Fred Kogod, and high on 17 to E. Melnicker and Maurice Simon. The lucky number in the draw at the get-together breakfast was held by E. R. Haas.

INDIAN SPRING.

Four tied with net 79's in the Selective Handicap event at Indian Spring yesterday, including Earl Clary, 85-6—79; D. E. DeVeau, 86-7—79; J. P. Jeffrey, 89-10—79, and R. R. Irvine, 104-25—79.

CAPITOL.

Seventy-seven was the lucky number in the blind bogey event at Capitol, with E. Talley, 82—5, 77; W. C. Whittle, 85—8, 77, and R. Gates, 94—17, 77, all tied.

ARGYLE.

Wilton Allen and W. H. Flannery won the top prizes in the blind bogey event at Argyle, with respective 82—14, 75, and 87—12, 75 scores. James Hutchison, 9—18, 73, and Ralph Sterling, 98—25, 73, were next with Ralph Lillibridge completing the prize winners with 92—22, 70.

WASHINGTON.

A. F. Keenon is willing to stay in the 14-club limit but he wants to add a stepladder to his bag after losing his second ball within a week yesterday at Washington, although he could still see the ball.

Last week Keenon hit a high shot on the eighteenth hole and the ball lodged near the top of a tall tree, and yesterday he repeated the performance on the eighteenth hole with his third shot again resting near the top branches of a tree, not safe for climbing. They're still there if anyone wants to go after them.

Tommy Webb Enters Washington Event

Seventeen additional entries for the Washington Golf and Country Club Invitation Tournament yesterday boosted the total to 118, with Army and Navy and Congressional entries yet to be received.

Among the prominent golfers in yesterday's post-entries were Tommy Webb, host club ace, and Commodore E. K. Popham, of Army and Navy.

The course will be open today for practice rounds with a majority of the entrants expected to test the course. Brick Wood, caddymaster, announced that no outside caddies would be needed.

Bosox Lose As Foxx Hits Two Homers

Athletics Win, 8-6, With the Thomas Jinx Holding Foes.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, May 1.—Though Jimmy Foxx crashed two home runs over the leftfield wall his first two times up, four Boston pitchers couldn't hold Philadelphia in check today and the A's walked off with an 8 to 6 victory in the postponed series opener before 17,200 fans.

Two were on base when Foxx made his first homer in the first, but the bases were empty when he made the second. Foxx, who has driven in 19 runs so far this season, made both homers off Luther Thomas, who went seven innings and was credited with the victory.

Thomas' victory merely continued his jinx over the Red Sox. The A's won only three games from Boston all last season and Thomas won two of them. After the first inning today he was in good form and was relieved by Lynn Nelson only after Peacock opened the seventh with a single and Pinch-Hitter Nonnenkamp drew two balls. Nelson retired the side with no score.

Jim Bagby, jr., bore the brunt of the Philadelphia onslaught, yielding five runs in the third before Emerson Dickman took up the cudgels, the starter being credited with the defeat.

Orioles Bow In 2 Games

Baltimore, Md., May 1.—Buffalo's belting Bisons opened their series with the Baltimore Orioles today by rapping out 33 base hits and taking both ends of a double-header, 12-9 and 16-2. Seven home runs and nine errors marked the wild games.

The Herd shelled three Baltimore pitchers in the opener for 17 hits.

While Jumbo Kline held the Flock to six safeties in the second game, Buffalo socked four Oriole pitchers for 16 hits, exploding an 11-run attack in the fifth inning.

Takoma Cardinals Bow To Tex's Tavern Nine

Tex's Tavern, formerly known as the White Haven Athletic Club, played its first game under the new name yesterday and emerged the winner, 6 to 3, over the Takoma Cardinals on the Cabin John field. Kessler and Morris pitched four-hit ball for the winners.

Sports Postscripts

Gershon Fishbein, Central Bulletin sports ed, recently was named Washington's outstanding scholastic sports scribe in the Quill & Scroll contest . . . Joey Kaufman, G. W. football fullback last season, already has started summer work for the Department of Playgrounds . . . This job is but temporary, though, for he envisions a movie career . . . Botchy Koch, popular G. W. football coach, played left and center fields for an intramural squad the other afternoon and is still panting . . . You see, Koch's team was shy an outfielder and he had to chase no fewer than four home runs . . . Koch, incidentally, is behind a movement at G. W. to book Baylor for a '40 football game . . . He's an alumnus of the Texas college.

Pitt, which is planning a varsity baseball team for next season (after years without the diamond sports), may name Roland Logan, former G. W. and Red Sox trainer, as head coach . . . Logan, who once trained movie actresses (what a job!) is now Pitt's trainer . . . Bogdan Nicksick, who is expected to win a place in G. W.'s backfield next fall, returned from the Smoky City recently and was singing the football praises of not Pitt but Carnegie Tech . . . He confided that the Panther will fall from its mighty perch no later than '39 . . . Had G. W. been able to meet the guarantee asked by Southern California, the two schools would meet in basketball here next winter . . . The Colonials, however, may play host to Oregon, runner-up to Stanford in the Pacific Coast Conference . . . Which would be an attractive game, since Coach Bill Reinhart of G. W. is a grad of Oregon and coached its basketball teams for 12 years.

Quirk department . . . Joe Krakauskas, Washington's pitcher with the name headline writers dread, was charged with a loss to Philadelphia last week . . . Although officially he didn't hurl an inning or yield a single hit . . . stepped to the plate in the first inning after spending the night in a hospital under observation. Amid applause there was a generous sprinkling of boos.

Joe Gordon, the more seriously hurt of the pair of Yankees who collided yesterday, was in mufti in the stands. The Washington club doctor advised him to rest his bruised shoulder and he may not return to the line-up for a week. Meanwhile, Bill "Knickerbocker shows no disposition to give up the second-base job.

Jake Powell, unpopular in Washington since his wild base-running incident which incapacitated Joe Kuhel last season, was reminded of that fact in each of his batting appearances yesterday. Boos greeted his every trip to the plate.

George Washington Case achieved his first hit of the season after replacing the injured Goslin in the fifth inning. He laid down a bunt that was so perfect Third Baseman Dahlgren attempted no throw to first. Cast's sprint down the baseline won him many backers if his race with Ben Chapman is ever staged.

G. W. Honors Rifle Squad

George Washington University's national championship rifle team is represented by two men on the all-American squad of 10, announced yesterday by the National Rifle Association. Dana Wallace and Bill Wetzel, both Washington natives, are the Colonials honored on the mythical team.

This pair paced the George Washington team to a highly successful season, which was climaxed when the Buff marksmen, second in the country last year, dethroned Navy as national champions on April 2.

This is the second year Wallace has been named an all-American. He was high scorer most of the season, but yielded individual honors to Wetzel in the firing of the national championship. The 281 out of a possible 300 Wetzel registered was instrumental in putting G. W. out in front.

Navy, placing third in the nationals behind G. W. and Minnesota, also placed two men on the all-American. They are W. L. Kitch and H. J. Weller. Kitch becomes the first gunner to be placed in the top collegiate group for the third straight year.

George Meeks, of the University of Maryland, ranked sixth nationally, was named on the second team. Each of the first 10 will receive golden bullets from the National Rifle Association.

Reds Defeat Pirates, 4-1, For 2 in Row

Al Hollingsworth Hurls 5-Hit Ball to Down Pittsburgh.

Cincinnati, May 1 (AP).—The Reds made it two straight over the Pirates today, already surpassing their last season's mark of one victory over the "jinx" team. The score was 4 to 1.

While Al Hollingsworth was holding the Bucs to five hits, the Reds collected nine off Bill Swift and "Rip" Sewell.

The Reds scored one in the first and two more in the fourth as Harry Craft was hit by Swift and Linus Frey knocked a homer. Hollingsworth then singled, sending Swift to the bench.

Cubs Score 6-5 Victory

St. Louis, May 1.—Don Gutteridge's fumble of a grounder was a major factor in the St. Louis Cardinals' 6-to-5 defeat by the Chicago Cubs today.

After Frank Demaree singled to start the Cub second inning, the St. Louis shortstop muffed Joe Marty's blow on what appeared to observers a cinch double play ball. Then the former Yank, Tony Lazzeri, hit into the leftfield seats for a home run. The error was the fourth in two days for Gutteridge.

Joe Medwick and Gutteridge combined in a freak play in the seventh. Gutteridge went after Marty's fly in short left, got hold of the ball, then dropped it but Medwick caught it before it touched the ground.

Abrams Bout Tonight Ends Indoor Season

John O'Boyne to Test Local Middleweight in 8-Rounder.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

A new and supposedly more potent George Abrams will be unveiled tonight at Turner's Arena where the 1938 indoor socking season ends with an attractive program featuring the District middleweight in an eight-round bout with Irish Johnny O'Boyne, of Boston.

Hanging in the balance is Abrams' immediate fistic future. A decisive victory, preferably a knockout, will send him winging on his way toward more lucrative scraps with "name" pugilists, while defeat will serve to prolong his sojourn in the bush leagues.

A bout with Phil Farr in mid-June is next on Abrams' calendar if he survives tonight's test, and beyond that lies the promised land of bigger purses. The issue is squarely up to George. He must be impressive, hit sharp, crisp blows, and show a trace of killer instinct if he hopes to step up the ladder.

Packs a Wallop.

The new Abrams to be trundled out before one of the most critical fight audiences in the Nation has all that the old Abrams had—plus a knockout punch. He is reported to have developed a mysterious lethal larrup since outpointing Jimmy Jones in their second meeting and intends to use it on O'Boyne's chin. Whether he actually possesses such a weapon remains to be seen.

This much is certain, however, that he is boxing better than ever and that his body punches carry more steam than before. Jones evidently taught him a good brand of midsection mauling goes a long way toward cutting down an opponent to your size. He also picked up a trick or two from Jones, a better than average ring general.

The District boy will weigh heavier for this bout than any previous one, coming in at approximately 161 pounds. A week in the mountains, plus another of intensive gym work have added poundage to his frame and polish to his work. He will attempt to build up to around 165 pounds, to be ready for any of the better boys who weigh around that figure.

Likes to Slug.

O'Boyne is not, the boxer that Abrams is, but prefers to slug and let nature take its course. A former New England Golden Gloves titleholder, his professional record shows victories over Johnny Rossi, Tom Chester, Jackie Aldare, Mark Hough, Rudy Marshall, Gasper La Rossa, Al Diamond, Butch Lynch, and Mickey Buttone and a loss to Lou Brouillard, former world's champion. The lad is clearly entitled to the label, "promising."

Bantamweights will cavort in the six-round semi-final, Jerry La Bella, of New York, meeting Lew Transparenti, of Baltimore. This may well steal the feature's thunder, for La Bella is rated championship timber while Transparenti is a tough lad and willing to mix it.

Four-round preliminaries include a return bout between middleweights Fred Wallmyer, of Richmond, and Buddy Thomas; Charlie Gilley, Baltimore lightweight, vs. Tommy Hoover; Pete Long, Navy welterweight, vs. Eddie Gorman, of Richmond, and Henry Peterson, former Columbus University ace, vs. Frankie DeAngelo, featherweight.

Boat Crash Marks Race

One boat was dismasted in a collision off Hains Point yesterday, as blue skies and fine sailing weather brought a record fleet of 42 windjammers out for the second race of the Potomac River Sailing Association's Spring Series.

W. W. Valentine's snipe Eleanor came to grief near the starting marker at the start of the second lap when her stays fouled with Black Cat's boom. Both boats were sailing fast on a broad reach in opposite directions. Black Cat, sailed by Chris Johnson, was on the starboard tack heading for Hains Point, and Eleanor was on the port.

Judge Prentice E. Edrington won the 20-foot open event and scored best time of the day, negotiating the course in 1:05.35. Verner D. Smythe took the Comet race after finally losing Charles Dodge's tenacious Nandua.

Hoyas Lose DinghyRaces

Hoya skippers tied with the Princeton dinghymen in two fast races off Hains Point this morning, but lost the three-race series, in the first intercollegiate sailing ever held here, by a single point, due to the Tiger's win on Saturday.

In the second race, held at 11 a. m., Martin Quigley and Wilson Sweeney, of Georgetown, left the four-boat fleet astern. William Carl and Thomas Ulmer, of Princeton, were second. Another Georgetown boat, piloted by Basil Harris and Jim MacDonnell was third, and Tigers' Theodore C. Ill, jr., and Ted Fuller brought up in the rear.

The steady 10-15 miles breeze slackened off at the start of the second race and slack water with less chop gave the tiny 10-footers a better chance. Ill and Fuller negotiated the 2,000-yard course in 25 minutes 23 seconds to score for Princeton, with Quigley and Sweeney, of Georgetown, 13 seconds astern. Next was the Carl and Ulmer team followed by Harris and MacDonnell of the Hilltop.

Funeral Today For Mrs. Smith, Virginia Native

Relative of Generals and Jurists Will Be Buried Here.

Services for Mrs. Anna Lewis Smith, 86, who died Saturday, will be held at 2 p. m. today at Hines Funeral Home, 2901 Fourteenth street northwest. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Born in Lewiston, Va., which was named after her family, Mrs. Smith was a close relative of many distinguished Virginians. Her grandfather was Judge John Tayloe Lomax, first professor of law at the University of Virginia, and her father was Gen. Samuel Hance Lewis. An uncle of Mrs. Smith was Gen. Andrew Lewis, C. S. A.

She was the widow of Charles Maurice Smith, Washington attorney, who died in 1903, and the sister of Judge Lunsford L. Lewis, one-time president of the ViVrginia Supreme Court of Appeals, and John F. Lewis, former United States Senator from Virginia.

A battle during the Civil War was fought on the Lewis estate. Mrs. Smith often recalled how, as a little girl, she had watched wounded troops from both sides brought into her home, which was used as a hospital.

Mrs. Smith is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Lottie Smith Wedderburn, of the Dresden apartments, and three grandchildren, Misses Jean Addison and Anna Lewis Wedderburn, of Washington, and Alexander John Wedderburn, of Laurel, Md.

Banker Enters Conflict for C. & O. Control

Earl Bailie, Partner in J. & W. Seligman & Co., Asks for Proxies.

By the Associated Press

New York, May 1.—Earle Bailie, Wall Street banker who tried vainly to compose the differences between Robert R. Young and the Gharanty Trust Co. in the fight for control of the profitable Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, today started a proxy campaign of his own.

Bailie, partner in J. & W. Seligman & Co., investment bankers, sent letters to C. & O. stockholders, signed by himself John L. Dickinson, Charleston, W. Va., banker, and John B. Hollister, Cincinnati, Ohio, attorney, asking proxies to vote for a C. & O. board which would include themselves and Young.

They also ask revocation of previous proxies obtained by the C. & O. management, and which, according to Young, yesterday reached a total of 37,000, or three-quarters of the public individual stockholders. The proposed Bailie board, which, the signers say, would not affect present operating management of the C. & O., includes in addition to the four named:

Dart and Myers Omitted.

Herbert Fitzpatrick, C. & O chairman; John D. Brooke, president; H. B. Erminger, jr., considered an ally by Young; F. B. Bernard, representing the Ball interests from whom Young obtained control of Alleghany Corporation last year, and J. M. Miller, jr., Richmond banker. All are present directors except Bailie, Dickinson and Hollister. Conspicuously omitted from the list are two present directors Joseph A. Dart and John C. Myers.

Bailie and his associates said at last week's "peace conference" they had proposed election of that board, that pending litigation be voluntarily terminated, and that the Chesapeake Corporation, be dissolved "in due course."

Young said yesterday that he had been laboring for the dissolution in the interest of the C. & O., although such action would eliminate his influence exerted through Alleghany Corporation, and Chesapeake Corporation. He said in effect that the Guaranty was working against C. & O. by opposing Chesapeake Corporation dissolution.

The end of the negotiations was signalized yesterday by a letter sent by Guaranty Trust Co., to Alleghany Corporation bondholders, putting itself on record as believing the C. & O., "should not continue to be subject to the control of Mr. Young."

70-Billion Debt Looms Next Year

New York, May 1.—Lending and spending promises to raise the Federal debt to a new high record of $41,440,000,000 at the end of the next fiscal year, according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute. This figure, however, does not include guaranteed obligations. Such obligations at the end of February amounted to $4,646,000,000, and a substantial increase is in prospect in view of the new housing program involving from $2,000,000,000 to $3,000,000,000. On the basis of these figures, the total Federal debt will be nearing the $50,000,000,000 mark by the end of the next fiscal year.

By that time, State and local debts will be in excess of $20,000,000,000, making a grand total public debt of about $70,000,000,000. This will represent over 20 per cent of the total national wealth of approximately $325,000,000,000.

Atlantic Elevator Buys Gurney Firm

New York, May 1.—The Atlantic Elevator Co. has acquired the good will, name, patterns, drawings, patents and service facilities of the Gurney Elevator Co., and will continue the operation of this well-known company.

The New York offices of the two organizations will be consolidated at 109 West Sixty-fourth street, the present location of the Gurney Elevator Co.'s executive offices. The manufacturing facilities of the Gurney Co. at Honesdale, Pa., will be consolidated at the plant of the Atlantic Elevator Co. in Philadelphia.

Refined Sugar Exports 36% Under Year Ago

New York, May 1.—Refined sugar exports by the United States during the first three months of 1938 totaled 11,111 long tons, as against 17,494 tons during the similar period last year, a decrease of 6,383 tons, or a little over 36 per cent, according to Lamborn & Co.

The refined sugar exports during the January-March period of 1938 went to over 40 different countries.

World-Wide Inflation Looms As Deficits Rise, Babson Says

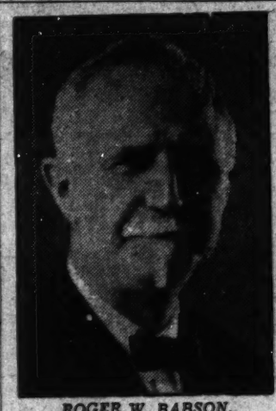
The Six Great Nations Are Spending More Than Taxes Yield, He Says; Predicts a Bear Market for Cash.

By Roger W. Babson.

Babson Park, Massachusetts, May 1.—Not one major nation in the world today is paying its bills out of current earnings! The governments of the six big powers are spending far more money than they are taking in from taxes. The resultant deficits are being met by public borrowing. This condition has been going on now for years and there is no end in sight. Moreover, the deficits for 1938 promise to be the biggest on record since the World War. Because of these astronomical shortages, I am convinced that currency inflation is a world-wide, not just a national, probability.



ROGER W. BABSON.

The fact that public finances abroad are in such bad shape is overlooked by most people when considering inflation. If the pound, franc, mark, yen, and lira weaken to the crumbling point they will carry down with them the value of the dollar. Following the short period of improvement after the devaluations of 1932 to 1934, the international currency situation has already again become acute. Despite the sleight-of-hand tricks being played with national figures, comebody, some day, must pay the piper. When the pay-off comes, there can be only one way out—inflation.

The seriousness of our own situation is well known. The President's new program of gigantic outlays to "lick the recession" simply accents it. Few doubt that the accepted method of fighting hard times from now on will be to spend billions. But remember that it is far easier to turn the faucet on than it is to turn it off. Since this country committed itself to a spending program, the cost of all branches of Federal Government has driven ahead full steam. The figures for 1938-9 will be the largest in peacetime records. Our Federal debt is today $39,000,000,000—almost double the level of eight years ago and rising faster than ever.

Furthermore, practically every major city, county and State treasury is following the same course. Relieving the unemployed and priming the pump is a good policy provided it results in people going off relief and Government expenses being slashed. In practice this does not happen, however. Small pressure groups succeed in keeping costs at a high pitch while people soon learn that the Government will support them if they do not work. Public expenses today equal at least one-third our national income. In 1912 they represented only one-tenth!

Hitler Magician.

The trend is the same in every other major nation. The Fascist countries are the worst off. Hitler and Mussolini can be licked by finances long before they are by guns. It has been years since Germany's budget was truly balanced. Her credit is so poor that she can hardly buy foreign exchange. If it were not for Der Fuehrer's b

ADAM A. WESCHLER & SON, Auctioneers.

TRUSTEES' SALE OF TWO-STORY SEMI-DETACHED BRICK DWELLING, SIX ROOMS AND BATH, NO. 3605 THIRTY-FOURTH STREET, N.W., WITH BUILT-IN GARAGE.

By virtue of a deed of trust recorded in Liber No. 6837, folio 409, et seq., one of the land records of the District of Columbia, and at the request of party secured thereby, the undersigned trustees will offer for sale by public auction, in front of premises, on MONDAY, the SECOND DAY OF MAY, 1938, AT FOUR-TEN O'CLOCK P. M., the following-described property in the District of Columbia, to wit: Lot 98 in John H. Woodberry's subdivision of lots in square 2061 "Richmond Park," as per plat recorded in the Office of the Surveyor for the District of Columbia in Liber 77 at folio 100, subject to the building restriction line as shown on said plat. Subject to and together with a right of way over parts of Lots 94, 95, 96, 97, 98 and 99 as delineated and reasoning thence parallel to 34th Street (60 feet wide) and distant 61 feet East therefrom, North 64.76 feet to the North line of Lot 97; thence North 43 degrees 48 minutes 51 seconds East 18.04 feet; thence North 20.64 feet; thence parallel to the North line of Lot 99, and distant 12.86 feet South therefrom East 32 feet to the Southeasterly line of Lot 99; thence parallel to the East line of Lot 94 and distant 14.50 feet West therefrom, South 19.06 feet; thence West 12 feet to the West line of Lot 94; thence South 48 degrees 26 minutes West 31.41 feet; thence parallel to the West line of Lot 95 and distant 3 feet East therefrom, South 59.98 feet to the Northerly line of Porter Street (60 feet wide); thence with said Northerly line of Porter Street deflecting to the left with the arc of a circle the radius of which is 1007.35 feet Westerly 50.00 feet to the point of beginning, all as shown on plan of computation in Survey Book 81 at page 251 in the Office of the Surveyor for the District of Columbia. Subject to the right of redemption by the maker of the aforesaid deed of trust, her heirs and assigns, within a period of sixty days from the date of sale, not excluding Sundays and holidays, as provided in said deed of trust. Subject to any and all liens created by conditional bills of sale for heating and other equipment, if any, and overdue water rentals. All other taxes and assessments to be adjusted to date of transfer of title.

TERMS OF SALE: One-third of the purchase-money to be paid in cash, balance in equal installments, represented by promissory notes of purchaser payable in one and two years, with interest at 5 per cent per annum from day of sale, payable semi-annually, secured by first deed of trust upon property sold, or all cash, at option of purchaser. A deposit of $500.00 required of purchaser at sale. Examination of title, conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps and notarial fees at cost of purchaser. Terms to be complied with within ten days from expiration of redemption period, otherwise trustees reserve the right to resell property at risk and cost of defaulting purchaser, after five days advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C., or deposit may be forfeited, or without forfeiting deposit trustees may avail themselves of any legal or equitable rights against defaulting purchaser.

Bob Burns Says—

A city fella was tellin' us the other day that the reason there are more bachelors in the city than in the small towns is because the city boy don't have a chanco to know the girls so well.

He said, "I would like to get married if I could find a beautiful girl who is honest and faithful and true—one that won't nag at me and that'll never question me, and who will live within my means."

Grandpa Snazzy said, "It oughta be easy to find a girl like that—jest stand down in front of the public library and the first time a girl like that goes by, them stone lions'll rise up on their hind legs and roar."

BENNY The Real McCoy By J. Carver Pusey

The Federal Diary

Reg. U. S. Patent Office.

By Scott Hart.

Whither goes the research of science: At the recent Apple Blossom Festival in Winchester there was a ong midway, full of barkers with wondrous wares. And one of the cudest of these was a man selling "a marvelous, revolutionized" spark plug which, he howled, bore out all the scientific advances and studies made by the United States Bureau of Mines. He quoted at loud length "a statement" from the bureau, and it sounded like a press release, made us homesick for the desk back here . . . And by way of showing a trend in human affairs and the ways of men, the Commerce Department declares that exports of American slot machines have doubled in the last year; showing, perhaps, that some of the foreign boys still have the will to mix some folly with their political foolishness . . .

Our friend James W. Keady turns out to be secretary of the Kansas State Society of Washington (something he'd held back) and sends in word of a meeting, to be held at the Y. W. C. A. at 8 p. m. Tuesday. The officers are: Harrison Barkman, president; Frank Carlson, first vice president; Thurman Hill, second vice president; James W. Keady, secretary; Charles Helsper, treasurer, and Morse Salisbury, sergeant-at-arms . . .

Personally (and entirely that way) we liked the tribute Jesse H. Jones recently paid Senator Carter Glass:

"Virginia, the birthplace of Presidents, has given us many great statesmen, but none of greater integrity or purer democracy than Carter Glass . . . In my opinion, Senator Glass will be best remembered in the annals of history by his career in the United States Senate. His pungent phrases and the skill of his rhetoric have challenged his adversaries and won the admiration of his colleagues on many occasions. No one knows his recipe for getting so much weight, salt and philosophy in just plain speech."

The "recipe" for those pungent phrases somehow seems quite evident to us. It is simply a fine choice of unusual words that must have come from a serious reading of those earlier American state papers. The same sort of delicacy of wording, the search after strong and unusual wording is in all the speeches of the earlier and renowned Americans. The Declaration of Independence is a gleaming example in the use of words. It is English, biting, pungent, effective and so pure and forceful that no wonder it baffles this age when most, who pass for statesmen, haven't time to read anything other than the garbled-up squawks from the voters back home. And that the Senator from Virginia has equipped himself to say what's on his mind in the best forms of the language is something else to be remembered for. A man does very well by himself when he does some reading . . .

In the recent evening of the Federal Club at the Hotel Roosevelt, those who did the most to prepare for the enjoyable event were: Ralph B. Miller, Edward J. McGinnis, Miss Myra Mae Pettenger, Miss Beatrice Conrath, James Garrioch, Miss Mary Paterson, Miss Margaret Gourlay, Miss Anne O'Connor, Miss Ida Giltner, Lloyd Swanson, Miss Lois Wilkins, Cleve Bagwell, Rolph Sauls, Joseph Krahling, Allan Curry, Donald Curry, Joseph P. Carlo, Willis Ray Gregg, Ralph E. Day and R. D. Jones . . . Historians at the Fredericksburg and Spotsylvania National Military Park have completed the third lecture tour of the season, covering several important schools of the State . . .

Jobs: The Civil Service Commission announces applications for the positions of farm manager, $2,900, assistant farm manager (dairying), $2,300, Bureau of Prisons, Justice Department. Certain specified experience or combination of education and experience is required. The top age is 53, unless preference is granted because of military or naval service . . . Some time ago a group of Gros Ventre Indians from North Dakota came here en route to New York to recapture, from a museum, a mystical thunderbird or rain-years with the result of many disastrous droughts on the region. They have taken the sacred charm back home and, we hear, the rains have come bountifully to their spring fields. It has caused much comment among the realists in the Office of Indian Affairs here. They don't like to think that such a charm can bring rain, but rains have come with the return to the land of a queer bag of feathers and somebody will have to do some tall talking to the Gros Ventres to convince them that they haven't got the right prayer . . .

Coming events: St. Elizabeth's Hospital Lodge, 28, A. F. G. E., will hold a tag dance on Thursday evening, May 19, at Hitchcock Hall.

Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson

A Bid Leads to a 'Percentage' Play.

It is scarcely new, or profound, to point out that the bidding has a tremendous influence on the subsequent play. But I wonder if the average player realizes how subtle or remote that influence may be. The true student of the game will find the following hand of unusual interest:

South, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.
Match-point duplicate.

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| | ♠ 10 8 5 4♡ K 9 6 3◇ A 10 7 2♣ Q | |
| ♠ 7 3♡ Q J 10 5◇ Q 8 3♣ 8 6 4 2 | NorthWest EastSouth | ♠ Q 9♡ A 4 2◇ 9 4♣ A J 10 9 5 3 |
| | ♠ A K J 6 2♡ 8 7◇ K J 6 5♣ K 7 | |

At all eight tables in this duplicate game South became the declarer at a four spade contract. As may be seen, the final result in each case boiled down to a guess over the position of the diamond queen. There were three certain losers in hearts and clubs: Thus, if declarer guessed right about the diamond finesse he fulfilled his contract; if he guessed wrong, he went down. The traveling score slip revealed the interesting fact that six out of the eight contracts were fulfilled. This apparent good guessing intrigued me and I took the pains to investigate whether in every case it was a true guess, or whether some outside factor had entered the picture. The result of my investigation was highly significant.

The six successful declarers had been unerringly guided to the winning decision in diamonds by the bidding that had taken place! The two defeated declarers had been deprived of this guidance by a bad bid of their own partners! This is what happened: At six tables, South opened with one spade, West passed, and North raised to two spades. All six Easts then overcalled with three clubs. South rebid his spades and North raised to four. In the subsequent play these six declarers, noting the club queen in dummy and the king in their own hand, rightly assumed that East's three club bid could not have been made on less than a six-card suit. Hence, when East followed to two spades and three hearts (West in each case opened the heart queen and three rounds were played), it became an odds-on chance that he had started with only two diamonds, which placed West with an original holding of three diamonds. This count made it probable that the diamond queen was with the three-card, rather than with the two-card, length.

At the other two tables North gave a horrible double spade raise and thereby effectively shut East out of the bidding. Now the declarer, in reaching four spades, had to play blindly. He had no count whatever on East's holding and, therefore, had to make his diamond guess unassisted. As it happened, both declarers went wrong.

Exhibition of Art Opens Tomorrow

An exhibit of architectural designs, paintings and sculpture will open at 8 p. m. tomorrow at the National Museum, under auspices of the Association of Federal Architects.

A bronze medal is to be awarded the Government department with the best architectural design, and certificates of merit will be given for other work.

Judges will be Dr. Leicester B. Holland, director of the fine arts division at the Library of Congress; Dr. Louis Justemena, president of the District Chapter, American Institute of Architects, and Theodore Irving Coe, president of the Washington Building Congress.

Sen. Bailey to Talk At South's Banquet

Senator Josiah Bailey (Democrat), of North Carolina, will speak at a banquet to be tendered at the Willard tonight to presidents and secretaries of industrial, trade and commercial organizations of the 15 Southern States by the officers and directors of the Southern Industrial Council.

Senators and Representatives of the Southern States have been invited.

Church Plans Banquet.

The Atonement Lutheran Church will give its first annual mother and daughter banquet Friday at 6:30 p. m. in the church auditorium.

St. Paul Paper Suspends.

St. Paul, May 1 (AP).—The St. Paul Daily News Sunday announced it would suspend publication as a daily subscription newspaper with today's issue and be printed henceforth twice weekly as the St. Paul Shopper for free distributoin. The News was established March 1, 1900.
